

COAST OF CHINA BEING MINED BY CHIANG; FOREIGN SHIPPING WARNED

Red Ports of Foochow and Amoy Could be Closed by Nationalists' Tactics Around Off-Shore Islands.

By WILLIAM MILLER
TAIPEI, Formosa, May 6 (UP)—The Chinese Nationalist Ministry of Defense announced today it had begun mining the China coast to counter the Communist threat of invasion.

Foreign shipping was warned that defensive minefields are being placed around such offshore islands as Matsu and Quemoy in a move that could close the big Red ports of Amoy and Foochow.

These two ports are visited regularly by international shipping including British. Today's communique made it clear such ships visit the Communist ports at their own risk.

Quemoy Heavily Shelled. The announcement followed the heaviest Communist artillery barrage against the Quemoy area since last September.

The ministry said the Reds fired 200 rounds, 150 of them within a one-hour period. Most of the shells were aimed at Little Quemoy. A few, however, were directed at Quemoy itself. Nationalist artillery fired back while heavy air patrols went up to watch for a possible invasion attempt.

Quemoy is menaced by artillery on three sides but the heaviest firing apparently came from the Amoy section during the attack Thursday night and Friday morning.

Although Nationalist planes have bombed shipping in the Amoy and Foochow area, this was the first time they have mined the ports. The communique did not say whether the mines were sown by plane or ship.

Communication on Mining Coast. The area mined apparently extended for about 200 miles along the coast, the approximate distance between Matsu and Quemoy, but the Nationalist communique said only: "The Ministry of National Defense of the Government of the Republic of China announced that in view of the declared intentions of the Chinese Communists to invade Taiwan (Formosa) and their repeated attacks on offshore islands near the coast of the Chinese mainland defensive minefields have been laid as of today in the territorial waters of all such islands controlled by this government."

Meanwhile, the British freighter Incharran, reported stopped and boarded Wednesday by crews of two motor junks which fired on it, radioed Hong Kong today that "everything is okay" and that it was proceeding to Shanghai.

Chinese Nationalist spokesmen at Taipei denied any knowledge of seizure of the 3539-ton Incharran which was en route from Foochow to Shanghai at the time of the attack. An announcement said no damages or casualties were reported.

Effect on Insurance Rates. By the Associated Press. Both foreign and Nationalist quarters believed the result of the mine-laying will be to boost insurance rates, which may tend to lessen shipping to that part of Red China.

Foreign officials viewed with reserve a Taitao news agency report that the Communists intend to launch simultaneous attacks against Formosa, South Korea and South Viet Nam.

Taitao, agency of the Interior Ministry, said the report represented the view of authoritative—but unidentified—military observers. It said conference on the establishment of an overall Communist Far East military command had been going on in Peking since the middle of April.

Gen. Peng Teh-huai, Red China's defense minister, was said to be presiding over meetings attended by representatives of Russia, North Korea, North Viet Nam and outer Mongolia.

Russia, Taitao said, agreed in principle to furnish air and naval units which could be under orders of the unified command.

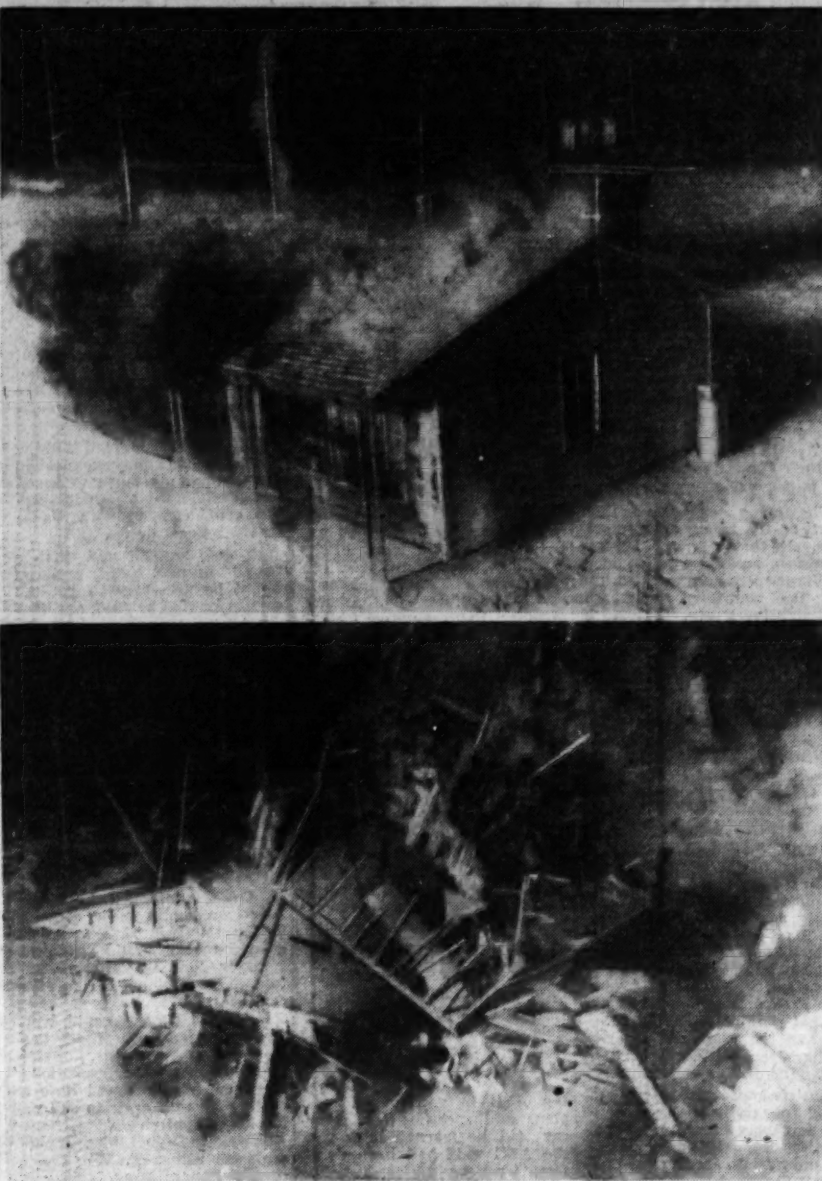

HOT ROD MOORE
SENTENCE UPHELD

Special to the Post-Dispatch. BOWLING GREEN, Mo., May 6.—Robert H. (Hot Rod) Moore of St. Louis did not appear in Pike County Circuit Court today in a case brought here on a charge of venue, and a 60-day jail sentence and $100 fine imposed at Glendale, for speeding and reckless driving, were upheld.

Circuit Judge James D. Clemens entered a default judgment. Moore was sentenced at Glendale in August 1953 and appealed to circuit court in St. Louis county. Glendale officials were present when the case was called.

Moore was paroled Jan. 4 at Mexico, Mo., after serving four months of an eight-month sentence in another St. Louis traffic case, also moved on a change venue.

DIOR SURRENDERS,
LONGER IN FASHION

PARIS, May 6 (UP)—The "flat look" decreed by fashion czar Christian Dior was a thing of the past today, a loser in the battle with Mother Nature.

Even Dior himself appeared ready to join other French designers in scrapping his attempt to suppress the feminine bosom. His latest creations actually called attention to it.

Patrons watching the first Paris summer collections were frankly and outspokenly pleased at the revolt against the "flat look," happy once again to display their natural curves.

Jean Patou featured low, strapless cocktail dresses hugging in around the waist. Fath stressed low, rounded necklines. Carven favored a box-shaped neckline with buttons up the front of the dress, a tight waist and a flared skirt.

Dior showed a near sheath cocktail dress with a square top and thin shoulder straps. Just under the bosom he put a large bow to draw the eyes toward the bust.

Wreckage of Atomic Test City
BEING TRIED OUT ON BUSES HERE

Public Service Co. is experimenting with a new kind of safety door on its St. Louis avenue bus line, a company spokesman said today.

Five busses on this line have been equipped with the new door thus far. The driver unlocks the door by an electrical device which flashes a red light above the door. A sign states: "Push doors out on red light."

After a passenger has opened the door and alighted, the door is closed by a spring, the operator locks the door again and the bus moves forward. The vehicle cannot move until the door is closed and the red light is off.

The device is in use on busses in some southern cities. The experiment is in line with company policy to try out technical devices used in other cities, the spokesman said. It is more costly to install than the pneumatic type now in general use here and no conclusions have been reached yet on whether to adopt it for all busses, he said.

Frame and Brick Homes
Demolished — Concrete Houses Withstand Blast

SURVIVAL CITY, Nev., May 6 (AP)—The reality of survival in the atomic age was driven home to Americans today as the damage to this desert test community was totaled up.

The shock wave of yesterday's atomic explosion buried the Darling family—fortunately only mannequins—in their home on Domesday drive, wiped out their neighbors next door and the folks down the block.

The row, 4700 feet from ground zero, was not a complete loss—two of four homes withstood the pressure of the biggest open test shot ever held in the United States. Its power was equal to 35,000 tons of TNT.

But a home at the 5500-foot mark, especially built and reinforced, did not stand up as well as expected. The roof was blown off, much of the front caved in and all windows smashed.

The Darling family's fate and that of their neighbors—especially the luckier ones—pointed up one object lesson: YOU can survive a nuclear attack if you have the right kind of home.

Fifteen members of the Darling family "perished" in the collapse of their two-story brick and cinder block home. The walls blew out, the chimney fell in sections.

Civil defense workers planned to enter the basement after un-

PRESIDENT TAKES WIFE'S PLACE AT CLUB BREAKFAST

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—President Eisenhower told a group of congressional wives yesterday that Mrs. Eisenhower's health has improved and he hopes "to see her circulating around very soon."

The Chief Executive substituted for his wife at the congressional club's midday "breakfast" in her honor at the Statler Hotel.

Dr. Howard McSnyder, the White House physician, has advised her to cancel all social engagements this week so she may complete her recovery from a respiratory ailment.

Having arisen at 6:15 a.m. the President expressed some puzzlement about attending a breakfast at 12:45 p.m. He also pointed out that he had substituted for almost every government official at one time or another but never before for a woman.

He told the 625 wives of Senators, Congressmen and members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court that Mrs. Eisenhower regretted her inability to attend.

"But she is, I'm happy to report, much better," he said.

ST. LOUIS MUST CHOOSE

By WILLIAM K. WYANT JR.
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Tabulation of election results in St. Louis will be speeded up and the chances for error or fraud in casting and tabulating votes will be reduced if the proposal for voting machines is approved in the bond issue election May 26.

A $110,639,000 program comprising 23 categories of public improvements will be submitted to the voters in the special election. Proposition No. 10 allocates $2,100,000 for purchase of 1150 voting machines and $175,000 for construction or purchase of a warehouse in which to store the machines. Each proposition requires approval by two-thirds of those voting on it.

Use of voting machines would reduce by several hours, in some instances, the time now required for reporting election results, and it would minimize the possibility of fraud or error, Joseph P. Uxa, chief clerk of the Board of Election Commissioners, said.

Need for Precinct Revisions. The 1150 machines would be sufficient for the entire city if the Missouri legislature passes a pending bill that would permit revision and consolidation of precincts in St. Louis. A screening subcommittee on election facilities assumed that passage of the bill was reasonably certain.

In its recommendation, the citizens' committee said more than 7000 communities in the United States now use voting machines. When a large number of these communities were surveyed by the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, all reported satisfactory results, and none wanted to return to the old paper ballot system.

Chief Advantages. Chief advantages claimed for the machines are:

1. Renewal of confidence in the ballot by reducing the possibility of fraud. This relates particularly to such practices as stuffing ballot boxes, changing votes after they are tabulated, or marking tally sheets for the wrong candidate. It is mechanical, of course, to register votes on the machine even though a legitimate voter is not present.

2. Swift and accurate tabulation of all returns. When polls close, election officials need only the results machine, read off the required figures, and return to the required forms. The wearisome job of counting ballots is eliminated. In some communities using machines, final outcome of an election is known within two hours after polls close.

3. Reduced cost of elections. In most instances, Baltimore, Boston, Dayton, O., Detroit, New York, St. Paul and San Francisco have reported savings. Some other cities said there had been no change, while Jacksonville, Fla., was the only city of those surveyed that said use of machines had increased costs.

If voters approve the voting

Workhouse Sentences Imposed on Charges of Sale of Public Office and Fraud in Office.

Former Alderman Walter W. Ziegenbalg and Ben Oliver were sentenced to serve one year in the City Workhouse today by Circuit Judge William K. Koerner on charges of sale of public office and fraud in office. They had previously pleaded guilty.

Judge Koerner, in a statement read from the bench, said each defendant was being sentenced to one year for the sale of public office and to six months for fraud in office, the sentences to run concurrently in view of "their somewhat impaired health."

A court-appointed physician, who examined each of the men, said Oliver is suffering from "extreme obesity" and a Workhouse stay "might very well be helpful rather than harmful." In the case of Ziegenbalg, the physician said he is suffering from "minor ailments" which would "not interfere with his serving in the Workhouse."

Physician on Stand. Prior to the sentencing, Ziegenbalg's attorney, Louis Sher, placed Dr. John J. Connor, coroner's physician, on the witness stand. He said he had examined physicians' reports of physical examinations of Ziegenbalg and it was his opinion that the former alderman should not be "placed in an atmosphere of stress" and a sentence to the Workhouse "would imperil his life."

Mark Hennelly, Oliver's attorney, made a strong plea for a parole. The judge denied paroles for both men.

"These defendants have pleaded guilty to charges of sale of public office and fraud in office," Judge Koerner said. "Each defendant has thereby admitted that he has violated his oath of office and the trust placed in him by the public as well as the laws of the state."

"These offenses are such as tend to undermine our democratic form of government. If our elected legislators at any level are venal, if their votes can be bought and sold, then our democracy is threatened."

Ziegenbalg and Oliver, who entered pleas of guilty last March 21, were to have been sentenced April 27, but they said they were ill, and the court deferred sentencing. Ziegenbalg was said to be suffering from the effects of a coronary occlusion and Oliver from hypertension.

Report by Physician. Judge Koerner appointed Dr. William H. Olmsted, 3720 Washington avenue, to examine the two former aldermen and report to the court.

His report said "Oliver is suffering from extreme obesity" and as a result "there is some elevation of his blood pressure and his heart is enlarged. I have considered the matter of whether Mr. Oliver's physical condition was such that his health might be endangered by serving a term at the Workhouse and I find that this is not the case."

"In other words," the report said, "a stay at the Workhouse might very well be helpful rather than harmful."

The report on Ziegenbalg said: "I find nothing in Mr. Ziegenbalg's physical condition that is threatening his life at present, whether he lives at the Workhouse or elsewhere. I do not find Mr. Ziegenbalg a completely healthy man, for he has minor ailments. It is my opinion that these minor ailments would not interfere with his serving in the Workhouse."

"No evidence whatever is present to indicate that Mr. Ziegenbalg had a coronary occlusion," the report concluded. When the two appeared in

PRODUCTION GOES
SAYS AT HEARING
BY HOUSE GROUP

Surgeon General Voices Own Confidence in Product—Declares Agency Considers Its Own Checks.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Surgeon General Leonard Scheele today announced a temporary halt in the release of any more Salk polio vaccine, but emphasized his own confidence in the product.

The cutoff in Government clearance of any additional batches of the vaccine is effective, Dr. Scheele said, until recommendations come out of a conference of top-level medical scientists now going on here.

He said the scientists may prescribe some "conditions" for going on with vaccinations. He said too the Public Health Service would decide soon whether it must make its own safety checks on all of the product.

Safety Standards. (The United Press quoted Dr. Scheele as saying the approval has been "brought to a standstill until we can evaluate standards and safety.")

Dr. Scheele, head of the Public Health Service, was testifying before the House Banking Committee. The hearing had been called originally to consider vaccine distribution problems and the possibility of federal controls.

The emphasis, however, quickly shifted to the problem posed by the development of paralytic polio among 44 children vaccinated in the nationwide inoculation campaign.

Before his announcement of the cutoff in clearance of new batches of the product, Dr. Scheele expressed confidence that the meeting of scientists will come up with a vaccine excellent and that the vaccination program should go on. He added his own belief that it should proceed.

Dr. Scheele said the 44 cases is a small number in relation to the estimated 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 children already vaccinated in the campaign of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. That program provides for free inoculation of all first- and second-grade school children on a voluntary basis.

Dr. Scheele said production of the vaccine is going ahead but federal approval of additional supplies has been held off "for several days."

Awais Further Word. In New York, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said it would have to await further word from Washington before it could determine what effect the withholding of vaccine would have on its program of free inoculations for school children.

The foundation said a slowdown in vaccine deliveries likely would delay the inoculation program. In such case, it said, it would notify state health officials accordingly.

Dr. Scheele said there has been no effort to prevent vaccinations from supplies already released, or to slow down production. The only slowdown, he emphasized, had been in federal

D R. J. EARL SMITH, city health commissioner, said today make-up shots of Salk polio vaccine to first- and second-graders in the city's private and parochial schools who missed the first shot given last week will start Monday, as scheduled.

Decision to go ahead with vaccine on hand, despite the embargo placed on the release of additional vaccine by the United States Public Health Service, was reached after a telephone consultation with Dr. E. A. Belden, director of communicable diseases in the State Department of Health, at Jefferson City, Mo.

DIEM IS REPORTED READY TO ACCEPT BIG 3 DE WEST BACK HIM

South Viet Nam Said to Be Awaiting Assurance Big Powers Would Recognize It as a Republic.

By JOHN RODERICK
SAIGON, South Viet Nam, May 6 (AP)—South Viet Nam will proclaim itself a republic, assured recognition by the Western Big Three, a source close to Premier Ngo Dinh Diem said today.

The informant said Diem's government is confident of quick recognition from such countries as Japan, the Philippines, Nationalist China, South Korea, Cambodia and Thailand.

At present, this source continued, the only stumbling block to the south's move to throw out Chief of State Bao Dai is the attitude of the great powers. "There is no question of creating a constitutional monarchy suggested in the United States," said Diem's associate. The idea is outmoded, unacceptable to the aroused Viet Nam people, and absurd.

Bao Dai, who has been logical contender for the throne of a constitutional monarchy. He was the figurehead emperor of the central Indochina kingdom of Annam—now part of South Viet Nam—until his abdication in 1945. The United States reportedly to have considered even figurehead monarch would have a stabilizing influence on the politically fragmented country.

(In Washington, however, State Department spokesmen Lincoln White said it is up to Viet Nam to decide on its own form of government.)

"The United States has great sympathy for a nationalist cause that is free and effective," White's statement said. "For this reason, we have been continuing to support the legal government of Ngo Dinh Diem. As to the ultimate constitutional organization of that government it is up to the Viet Nam people to decide this problem and to decide their form of government by whatever constituent process they freely choose."

Two Viet Nam assemblies—a 400-man national political congress and another congress of 100 local and provincial councils—called yesterday for removal of the powers of the chief of state. The political congress demanded outright that he be deposed. The other group called for him to give his powers to Diem until a national assembly could be elected as the supreme authority.

Diem was scheduled to forward the two assemblies' decisions to Bao Dai today or tomorrow.

The former ruler, who has been watching the Viet Nam situation from his villa on the French Riviera, hurried by car to Paris today to appeal to the Western powers to save his job. French Premier Edgar Faure and his top ministers will meet with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on the Indochina situation tomorrow.

(The United Press said Bao Dai had summoned his personal pilot to France, causing reports in Saigon that he was preparing to return to South Viet Nam for the first time in more than a year.)

The French, who appointed Bao Dai chief of state in 1949, were reported to have their own plan for solving the crisis. It calls for forming a governing council headed by Diem and including former Premier Nguyen Van Kham, Nguyen Phan Long and Huu Loc, and former Defense Minister Pham Huy Quat. Also included would be representatives of Viet Nam's main religious sects.

Diem moved yesterday to further reduce Bao Dai's hold on the military. The Premier relieved Col. Nguyen Tuyen Linh as head of the imperial guard and replaced him with Col. Linh Quang Vien, a Diem man. The national army already is considered loyal to the Premier.

The imperial guard is part of the national army but it has generally followed Bao Dai's orders. The guard took over some of Saigon's public buildings briefly last weekend when the emperor's newly appointed chief of staff, Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, made his abortive attempt to stage a coup d'etat.

Attend General's Funeral
Diem and his ministers attended state funeral services today for Gen. Trinh Minh The, Cao Dai religious sect commander killed in the battle with the Binh Kuyen. The government declared a national day of mourning and thousands of Viet Nam officials and members of the diplomatic corps attended the ceremony in front of Saigon's city hall.

Viet Nam government sources said today the chief remnant of the outlawed Binh Xuyen rebels have been pushed into swampy jungle along the Saigon river, about 18 miles south of the capital. Government troops were reported finding no resistance.

ATOM TEST CITY AN OBJECT LESSON IN SURVIVAL

safe timbers are removed to see whether two persons in a corner shelter may have survived. The single-story frame ramble next door was a total loss except for the specially constructed bathroom shelter. This withstood the blast so solidly that only one pane of glass was blown out of the rear window.

A multi-tone hydraulic press standing just behind the Darlings' home showed the difference between frame and mortar, and solid steel.

But even more pointedly: The two one-story, flat-roofed masonry and concrete homes farther down on Domesday Drive suffered only cracked walls and loss of windows. Every single pane of glass was blown out of the homes at 4700 feet— $\frac{1}{2}$ of a mile.

One of these two homes was built of concrete block. The other has solid concrete walls. The aluminum garage door on one of the concrete homes was shredded. Only the hinges remained. In the same home, the blast buckled the lid of a food freezer and ripped the blouse of a mannequin seated in the kitchen.

The transmitter of the community's 250-watt radio station was silenced, although officials believed it might be repairable. Its 350-foot antenna was blown down, another tower bent. Power lines along Domesday Drive fared perhaps better than expected. Four poles were snapped, two others were leaning, but a half dozen held firm.

Part of a highline transmission tower was sheered off and blown 200 feet.

The sight reminded veteran newsmen of an American suburb that had been hit by earthquake or hurricane.

Two of three industrial sheds at 6800 feet were nearly complete losses, despite being specially constructed of steel and aluminum.

And what does atomic blast do to television antennas that sprout on homes in nearly every American suburb? The Darlings' antenna was just a metal pretzel lying 40 feet behind their home.

Antennas on the two concrete homes were twisted double.

Tank Blown Apart
A pumping station standing near a tank of propane gas also blew apart, but the gas did not catch fire.

There were other vagaries, but the bathroom shelter that stood up to the mighty blow impressed most observers.

It's a concrete walled shelter costing $500 and people in it would have come through unscathed, Harold L. Goodwin, test director of the Federal Civil Defense Administration, believes.

"I think we learned a lot from the test," Goodwin told the Associated Press. "It is too soon to tell how much. We need information from instruments measuring various effects."

His summary indicated that within a mile and a quarter your chances of survival depend largely on what type of structure you're in. Outside one and one-fourth mile, your chances are good in even a large atomic blast if you take modest shelter precautions. But blast effects were noticeable on structures as far away as three miles.

Up-close shelters seemed to be intact, except for household tool shed types at 2750 feet. Underground bunkers apparently came through intact.

There was no residual radiation in the test town. The fallout went north away from the homes, although the 4700-foot line probably received an initial bath of 400 roentgens of X-rays, which could be fatal to humans. But when X-rays pass through mortar or wood, they do not leave any residual radioactivity.

Most food shelves in the two smashed homes at 4700 feet were still up, with some food-stuffs spilled onto the floor. At that distance they would not be radioactive but whether the bath of X-rays might have altered their flavor or created toxic effects remains to be tested.

A food station located at 2500 feet was subjected to neutron bombardment from the blast. Items stored there are expected to provide an accurate guide, when tested, of what happens to some 60 different kinds of food.

The fourteenth and final test of the 1955 nuclear series—another 500-foot tower shot on Yucca Flat—will not be held until Sunday at the earliest.

PRESIDENT SENDS HEUSS MESSAGE ON REICH UNITY

BONN, May 6 (AP)—President Eisenhower has expressed to West German President Theodor Heuss hope that western co-operation will bring about the reunification of Germany.

In a message delivered last night by Ambassador James B. Conant, and published today, President Eisenhower said:

"This is a happy day when a new, powerful and democratic Germany stands shoulder to shoulder with the other peoples of the free world."

"I am aware of the task before us, of bringing about the reunification of Germany and entertain the hope this aim will be reached with mutual co-operation."

In Washington, meanwhile, Heinz L. Krekler, head of the German diplomatic mission, presented his credentials to President Eisenhower as the Ambassador of the Federal Republic of Germany, which came into formal being yesterday by agreement with the Allies.

SIX-PAGE ORDER CHANGES ARMY BAKERIES TO KITCHENS

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—The Army's bakeries are going to be called kitchens hereafter, but it took a six-page order to make the change.

The regulation was decreed by Secretary of the Army Stevens, signed by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of staff, and sent to Army headquarters in this country and overseas.

"The central facility" previously designated "central pastry bakery" is redesignated "central pastry kitchen," the order begins. At the Pentagon, it was explained that Congress has demanded that the Army stop competing with civilian sources of supply, and it was thought the new name might eliminate some misunderstandings.

KIMMSWICK MAN SEIZED ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Frank G. Crow of Kimmswick was arrested today on an indictment returned by the Jefferson county grand jury at Hillsboro yesterday, charging manslaughter in the fatal shooting of his son-in-law, Patrick J. Haley, in the Crow home Jan. 29, 1954.

The indictment charged Crow, who is about 70 years old, was "culpably negligent" when cleaning a shotgun which was discharged, killing Haley. A verdict of accident had been returned by a coroner's jury, which heard seven witnesses. The grand jury summoned 19 witnesses in the case.

The jury also criticized Deputy Sheriff C. F. Holtgrave of Kimmswick, who handled the initial investigation of the Haley case, and recommended that his commission be canceled.

PACIFIC (MO.) MAN DIES; HEAD INJURED IN FIGHT

Russell Huff of Pacific, a carpenter, died today at St. Joseph Hospital in Kirkwood of head injuries suffered in a fight Feb. 25 in Pacific. He was 55 years old.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Granemann of Franklin county said Huff had a dispute with James L. Collins, a laborer, of Pacific, at a restaurant where both had been drinking beer.

The two men went outside. Collins knocked Huff down. Granemann said, and as Huff fell, his head struck either a curb or the sidewalk. Collins was arrested Feb. 28 on a warrant charging felonious assault. He was released on $2000 bond.

FOUND DEAD IN CAR IN GARAGE

Edward W. Herget, a laundry truck driver, was found dead yesterday in an automobile in a garage at the home of his wife, 310 Grove avenue, Times Beach. Sheriff's deputies reported. The engine was running and a hose led from the exhaust into the window, they said.

Herget, 41 years old, had been living in the 2700 block of Accomac street recently.

BIG FOUR ENVOYS TAKE UP LAST 2 AUSTRIAN SNAGS

Unsettled — Foreign Ministers May Get Neutrality Problem.

VIENNA, May 6 (AP)—The Big Four ambassadors took up today the last two major obstacles to agreement on an independence treaty for Austria.

The envoys of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union were expected to settle one issue—the Western demands for return of prewar oil properties to American, British and Dutch oil interests.

They likely will leave the other problem—a Big Four declaration guaranteeing Austrian neutrality—to be worked out finally by their Foreign Minister bosses.

Finish Likely Tomorrow
The envoys may conclude their work on the treaty draft tomorrow. In that case, the Foreign Ministers are expected to meet in Vienna late next week to iron out the neutrality declaration and sign the treaty.

The treaty provides for withdrawal of the 70,000 occupation troops within three months after ratification of the pact. Russia has called for completion of the movement by Dec. 31. The United States commander, Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, said yesterday removal of his 10,000-man force would stretch over several months.

Austria already has announced it would pledge to stay out of military pacts or blocs in exchange for recent Soviet concessions on treaty provisions. It wants a public declaration by the Big Four that they will respect its neutrality, even if they will not guarantee to go to war to defend it. For that protection it expects to depend on the United Nations, since both Russia and the West are reported to have said they will back its claim for U.N. membership.

Austria hopes particularly that a Big Four declaration will deter its neighbors—three are Communist—from getting ideas of expanding into its territory. It hopes, too, that such a declaration will deter any Communist countries from attempting political infiltration.

Double Division

The oil issue continued to divide not only the West and the Russians, but even more the West and the Austrians.

British Ambassador Sir Geoffrey Wallinger has taken the lead in pressing the Western companies' claims based on their prewar "development" of the Austrian oil industry. The German seized the holdings soon after the war broke out and the Russians took over after the armistice.

The companies complain that the Germans forced them to sell out and did not give them a fair price. The Austrians, backed by the Russians and spurred by Socialist members of the government who want the industry nationalized, contend the Germans paid the full market price for most of the properties.

Congress May Torpedo Plan For Atomic Peace Ship Voyage

Opposition to President's Proposal Grows —Sterling Cole Calls It '$30,000,000
Publicity Stunt.'

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 6—President Eisenhower's proposed atomic peace ship crashed into a congressional demand yesterday that it be scuttled before it ever gets onto a drawing board.

Representative Sterling Cole (Rep., New York, a faithful friend of the Administration on atomic energy matters, said the ship would be a waste of money. He called it, in effect, a "$30,000,000 publicity stunt that would do little if anything to promote peaceful use of the atom."

Mounting opposition to the President's plan for an atomic ship that would sail around the world as a goodwill gesture appeared at a hearing before the Research and Development subcommittee of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Chairman Melvin Price (Dem., of East St. Louis, said he doubted Mr. Eisenhower's proposal was practical. Another member, Representative Carl T. Durham (Dem., North Carolina, indicated he felt the same way.

Mr. Eisenhower's proposal, which he revealed April 25 in a speech at the annual meeting of Associated Press in New York City, came close to taking his own Administration by surprise, it was brought out at the hearing.

Maritime Administrator Clarence G. Morse testified that the Maritime Administration first heard of the peace ship a day or two after the President's speech. Then an assistant handed him a note, and Morse changed his statement, saying the agency had been told of the project April 19—six days before the speech.

Atomic Energy Commissioner Thomas E. Murray said he first learned of the plan April 9, two days after the date of a National Security Council directive to the AEC to get started with plans and specifications. Murray said he learned later that the AEC staff had been doing some work on the project, but added that no one had told him about it.

Murray said he had withheld his approval until he learned more about the feasibility of the plan.

Thus, the two agencies that would be most concerned with the peace ship were shown to have had nothing to do with its initial planning. This bore out the President's own comment at a press conference April 27, when he said the proposal was his own idea.

Acting AEC chairman Willard F. Libby praised the peace ship as a "wonderful idea" and said it would provide a graphic demonstration of the peaceful applications of atomic energy.

Envisioning its popular appeal in foreign ports, he said: "They'll see a ship going around without smoke coming out of its funnels. It won't have to stop for fuel. It will contain a vast number of exhibits."

Cole took issue with this, saying: "You talk about people getting all excited about no smoke coming out of the funnels or whatever they are. Do you think they'll be so excited when they know it is costing five or 10 or 20 times the cost of a ship with smoke?"

As a matter of fact, the ship would not have funnels, Libby said he hoped it would be possible to omit them, and Morse added, "No. No funnels."

Early Plans Described
Describing early plans for the ship, Libby and Morse said it should be ready to sail by the end of 1957. It would cost $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 to build the ship and train a crew and about $500,000 a year to operate it, they said. Construction probably could start in a few weeks, Morse said.

Both witnesses argued that the project, though uneconomical in itself, would do much to speed the development of atomic ships that could compete with vessels fueled by coal or oil.

It was brought out that a "crash" (utmost speed) program would be necessary to get the ship in service by 1957, and that the AEC had no choice as to the best type of atomic engine and was forced to settle on the same type of reactor that powers the first atomic submarine, the Nautilus, since it already is developed.

Morse said planning was in such a preliminary stage that it had not been decided whether or not the ship would have auxiliary engines of conventional design.

Cole, who was chairman of the joint committee in the last Congress, contended that the American public would demand to see the ship first and calculated that it would spend 10 years in New York harbor before it ever set out for foreign countries.

He asked how it could help educate persons who lived away from the seacoasts. Price quipped that he wondered whether "this boat will have a shallow enough draft to sail up the Mississippi river."

Trying to help Libby, Representative James E. Van Zandt (Rep., Pennsylvania, asked if the ship would not reach a large part of the world's population if it touched the world's major seaports.

Libby, a chemistry professor, kept to the role of the careful scientist. He replied, "I imagine that would do so, but I am not prepared to answer that question."

LOCKHEED WORKS ON 18,000-M.P.H. GUIDED MISSILES

Some Projects at Van Nuys (Calif.) Division Reported to Involve Atomic Energy.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, May 6—Scientists of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation here are working on missile projects involving speed possibilities as high as 18,000 miles per hour, it was announced today.

Several such projects involve atomic energy, according to Elwood R. Quesada, vice president and general manager of the Lockheed Missile Systems Division of Van Nuys. Quesada said also his branch has increased dollar volume more than 1000 per cent in the last year, and is at work on more than 12 contracts instead of the two it had when the missile section was given division status in January 1954.

The corporation reported profits for the first quarter of this year as $4,600,000, which President Robert E. Gross said was "approximately comparable" to earnings for the like period of 1954. Gross said 1954 was the best period of sales and earnings in the company's history, but said first quarter earnings of 1955 would be within 4.2 per cent of the same period last year.

Backlog for Lockheed's three divisions is about $1,085,000,000, compared with $1,295,000,000 a year ago. It was further reported. Commercial backlog was listed as $170,000,000 or 18 per cent of the total. Expressing confidence in the outlook for both commercial transport and military defense orders, Gross said defense has become an integral part of everyone's life in the country—as "normal" and "regular" as rent, doctor bills and insurance. Aircraft companies, he added, now face greater responsibilities than ever before.

Future aircraft, he said, will be more complex. Employment is about 25,700 at Lockheed's three main factories and subsidiary plants in California. Employment in the Georgia division is now up to 17,000, it was reported.

ALL ST. LOUIS DETECTIVES TO BE PUT UNDER ONE COMMAND

More Than 80 Special Officers in Districts Affected by Move Designed to Increase Solution of Crimes.

Special officers now under the command of St. Louis's 12 police district captains will be transferred to jurisdiction of the detective division by the Board of Police Commissioners in a move intended to increase solution of crimes, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

The action, which is expected to be announced following next Wednesday's police board meeting, will add more than 80 men to the division headed by Chief of Detectives James Chapman. He now has a 151-man force.

When the new directive is put into effect, the district officers will be responsible for prevention and detection of crime, and the detective division will be responsible for solving crimes.

22 Per. of Crimes Solved. Criminals were apprehended in only 22 per cent of the major crimes committed in St. Louis last year. The number of major crimes reported last year increased 24 per cent over the number reported in 1953. The crime rate rose even more during the first three months this year, compared with the January-March period last year, and the rate of solutions has remained low.

Earlier this week Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell issued an order directing detectives to work split shifts so that all of them would be working during the night-time hours when most crimes occur.

Each district captain has had several special officers working under his command. The special officers operate in plain clothes and perform duties similar to those performed by the regular police officers. The special officers have worked on the same investigations.

Before recent police department reorganizations designed to step up the fight against crime, Chief of Detectives Chapman had five squads of detectives assigned to the Hampton avenue, Lucas avenue and Page boulevard stations. The rest operated from police headquarters.

Bill for 95 Patrolmen. Meanwhile, a bill which would require the Board of Police Commissioners to hire an additional 95 patrolmen exclusively for beat duty was passed by the House at Jefferson City yesterday and sent to the Senate for consideration.

Representative Joseph W. Martino (Dem.), a member of the St. Louis delegation sponsoring the bill, said the need for additional patrolmen to walk beats was "urgent."

Newspaper articles have pointed up the need for more uniformed men on the streets, he said. He added that L. A. Long, president of the St. Louis police board "finally has endorsed the bill."

Approval of the measure was voted 99 to 0. The bill would increase the authorized uniformed personnel of the department to 1500 men.

Another bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate would save the city of St. Louis an estimated $30,000 a year. It would provide for refund to the various political subdivisions of the state of state gasoline taxes paid on gasoline bought for exclusive use in motor vehicles owned and operated for public services.

It was estimated the measure would result in the loss of $150,000 a year in state gasoline tax revenue. The bill was approved by a vote of 97 to 4.

Antarctic Arbitration Rejected. SANTIAGO, May 6 (UP)—Argentina and Chile have rejected a British proposal that the three nations submit their conflicting claims to Antarctic territories to arbitration, it was disclosed yesterday.

11 SHOTS FIRED IN AUTO CHASE, 2 YOUTHS ARRESTED

15-Year-Old Driver of Stolen Car Identified as Driver in Similar Chase Sunday.

Two youths, one 15 years old and the other 19, were arrested last night after police fired 11 shots at a stolen automobile in which they were riding. The car, driven by the younger boy, was struck by 10 bullets. The youths were not injured.

The 15-year-old boy was identified as the driver of a stolen car that overturned Sunday night near Ste. Genevieve, Mo., during a high-speed chase in which pursuing officers shot out a rear tire with a riot gun. Two 15-year-old St. Louis girls riding in the machine Sunday were injured seriously, but the driver escaped.

Special Officers John Mohan and Edward Longinette of the Penrose Street District had gone to Fourteenth and Farrar streets last night to investigate a report that the driver of the car in the Ste. Genevieve crash was in a stolen machine there.

The policeman said the 15-year-old boy sped away when they attempted to question him. They fired a warning shot, then emptied their revolvers at the fleeing car before giving chase.

The pursuit, which reached speeds up to 75 miles an hour, ended at Eleventh and Ferry streets when the stolen car stopped after running onto a sidewalk.

The driver was found hiding on a nearby garage roof. His older companion, who said he was Charles Klein, living in the 1100 block of Buchanan street, was arrested in the vicinity.

Police said the 15-year-old boy admitted stealing six automobiles since his escape April 18 from the Children's Building, where he was held for the theft of 18 other cars.

A 15-year-old boy led police on a chase of about five miles over city streets last night. Four shots were fired at the tires in an effort to stop him. He was booked on 17 traffic charges and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Patrolmen Joseph Grau and Clinton Crandall fired two shots each. The pursuit began at Jefferson avenue and Russell boulevard, where the youth was speeding.

The officers said they drove more than 75 miles an hour. They quoted the youth as saying he was on parole from the State Training School at Booneville, had been drinking and feared that his parole would be revoked if he was arrested.

BIG STORE SALES IN DOLLARS GAIN
1 PCT. FOR WEEK

Department store sales in St. Louis, measured in dollar volume, increased 1 per cent during the week ended last Saturday in comparison with a similar period a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

Sales for the four-week period ended last Saturday also showed an increase of 1 per cent, compared with a like period in 1954. Since Jan. 1, sales have increased 5 per cent over those during the first four months of last year.

Gains were not general throughout the district because of differences in the timing of seasonal promotions, the bank reported. Sales throughout the nation averaged 7 per cent higher, compared with 1954.

MARION MARLOWE AND LARRY PUCK ARE MARRIED

Marion Marlowe, television singer, and Larry Puck, a television producer, were married today in a simple, five-minute ceremony at the home of her mother, Mrs. Marion Townsend, 9100 Brownridge road, Overland, Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield of St. Louis officiated.

Miss Marlowe, fired last month by Arthur Godfrey on his television program, and her new husband, who is a producer for Godfrey, left immediately by plane for New York. They will depart for Bermuda tonight on a 10-day honeymoon.

Champagne and wedding cake were served to the small group of relatives who attended the single-ring ceremony in Mrs. Townsend's new, ranch-type home. The 26-year-old bride wore a powder-blue gown and carried a bouquet that included lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, Miss Marlowe will fulfill an engagement at a Philadelphia supper club, then go to Las Vegas, Nev., for a month's appearance, starting June 23, at the Dunes Hotel. She said she will receive $15,000 a week.

WEBSTER GROVES AIR CONDITIONERS MUST SAVE WATER

Webster Groves residents with water-cooled air conditioning units of one ton capacity or larger must use water conservation devices this year under an ordinance passed last night by the City Council. City Manager H. C. McClintock announced today.

He said owners of systems which can be equipped with water savers without structural or mechanical alterations must conform by July 15. Others must conform by Aug. 15. New systems must be approved by the city building commissioner. The ordinance sets a use limit of 10 gallons of water per hour for each ton of refrigeration.

The ordinance of the ordinance will be subject to a $50 fine for each day of illegal operation and the water service can be discontinued by the city. The purpose is to avoid a water shortage during the peak consumption periods in summer months.

Residents living in Glasgow Village, a subdivision in a hilly section of north St. Louis county, complained of low water pressure for about three hours early Wednesday night. The St. Louis County Water Co. reported the amount of water pumped was far below capacity, but the Glasgow Village residents said the flow was reduced to a trickle in their homes.

GIRL, 5, HAS SELF LOCKED IN SUITCASE, IS ALMOST KILLED

Five-year-old Audrey Patton of Forrest Homes, a subdivision near Alton, almost suffocated yesterday when she had a younger sister lock her in a suitcase so she could "prepare mother."

Mrs. Charles A. Patton had been packing in preparation for a vacation trip, and Audrey planned to spring from the suitcase, shouting "Boo," when her mother opened it. However, Mrs. Patton discontinued packing and went into the kitchen to prepare the evening meal.

Byrsville, Audrey's 3-year-old sister who had locked the suitcase, tried to tell the mother of the older girl's predicament but had difficulty making herself understood.

Finally, Mrs. Patton, sensing something was wrong, investigated. She found Audrey almost unconscious from lack of oxygen. The child was rushed to Wood River Memorial Hospital, from where she was released after emergency treatment.

ESTIMATE BOARD OK'S $51,475,000 BUDGET FOR YEAR

Amount Is $1,552,000 More Than Last Year —Large Part Marked for Pay Rises.

Expenditures totaling $51,475,000 to operate municipal departments during the current fiscal year, which started April 12, have been authorized by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, it was announced today by Comptroller Milton Carpenter. If approved by the Aldermen, it would be the largest budget the city has ever had.

The record budget is approximately $1,552,000 larger than the $49,923,000 which was appropriated for the last fiscal year and is $3,640,000 more than the $47,835,000 which was actually spent during the last year.

It is only $12,000 less than the money the city anticipates it will have available for operational purposes during the current year. The available funds are expected to total $51,487,000. Of this, $48,585,000 is expected from current revenues and there is an accumulated surplus of $2,902,000.

A large amount of the additional appropriations will go to pay salary increases, Carpenter said. Raises recently provided by the Legislature for the Police Department personnel will cost the city $1,300,000 and increases to other state-controlled departments are expected to total about $200,000.

A breakdown of appropriations by departments, as agreed by the Board of Estimate, is not yet completed, Carpenter outlined some of the new items which the Board has added to the budget.

Substantial increases have been made in the budget for sanitation and rat control work by the health division, for providing additional personnel at all city hospitals and for providing better street lighting, he said.

The municipal tax rate will remain at $1.81 for each $100 of assessed valuation. Municipal revenue will receive $1.35 of this, bond retirement will receive .32, library .10, zoo .02 and Art Museum .02.

PARK EMPLOYE HIT BY AUTO ON EXPRESS HIGHWAY DIES

William Cronin, a City Park Department watchman employed at Forest Park, died in City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered March 30 when he was struck by an automobile on the Express Highway.

He was 77 years old, and lived at 5463 Delmar boulevard. Police quoted the driver, Richard Conway, of the 7700 block of Lohmeyer avenue, Maplewood, as saying Cronin ran across the highway and was just missed by another car. Apparently he was taking a shortcut on the way to work.

BOARD LETS VETO OF FREEHOLDER VOTE DATE STAND

Upholds Mayor 26 to 1 in Objections to June 21 as Too Near Bond Issue Election.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker's veto of a bill that would have called for election June 21 of a board of freeholders to draft a new city charter was sustained by the Board of Aldermen today by a vote of 26 to 1.

In his veto message the Mayor had said an election that day would cause confusion with the forthcoming bond issue election May 26.

The only vote to override was by Alderman John Curry, Third Ward Democrat, who explained to reporters later that he thought the elections could be held the same day, and that if they were not, June 21 would be as good as any other for the vote on the freeholders.

The ways and means committee decided to return a pay increase bill for city employees to the City Service Commission, since some union leaders have complained that the increases—about $782,000 a year—are not enough. It asked for "further consideration by you and interested labor representatives."

The board cannot change a compensation bill submitted by the commission, but must accept or reject it altogether. Last year's ways and means committee returned a bill likewise, and the proposed projects "will greatly affect and improve the everyday life of all of our citizens."

It was introduced by Alderman Clinton Watson, Sixteenth Ward Democrat. The vote was 25-2. Aldermen T. H. Mayberry, Fourth ward, and Wayman Smith Jr., Eighteenth ward, Democrats, said they voted against it only because they thought other projects were needed more than some of those proposed. They favored most of the propositions being submitted to the voters.

The board adjourned until May 16, when members expect to start work on the budget bill.

UNIONIST FINED, GETS YEAR FOR ACCEPTING GIFT

Peter R. Weibert Assessed $2500—Took $200 'Without Due Consideration.'

Peter R. Weibert, business agent for Local 513, AFL Operating Engineers, was sentenced to one year in a penal institution and fined $2500 today by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper when he pleaded guilty of accepting a $200 gift from a contractor "without consideration."

Denying a motion for probation, Judge Harper gave Weibert, who lives at 4115 Federer place, until May 16 to wind up his affairs. He will then report to the United States Marshal for commitment to whatever penal institution the United States Attorney General may select.

The offense, a misdemeanor under the Taft-Hartley Act, occurred when Weibert was given $200 by O. A. Holdren, president of the Mid-States Construction Co. of Mount Vernon, Ill., in March or April, 1952, Assistant United States Attorney Robert C. Tucker told the court.

At the time, Tucker continued, Holdren was building a pipeline near Villa Ridge, Mo., the line beginning in Texas and extending to a point near Chicago. Holdren sought permission of Weibert to employ two of his own holding engineers instead of the men supplied by Weibert's local.

Weibert told Holdren he could use his own men if he was willing to pay $100 a man, Tucker said. The following day Holdren handed Weibert a check for $200 in a St. Louis county restaurant and put two of his men on the job.

Morris A. Shenker, Weibert's attorney, offered a different version of the transaction. He said Weibert and Holdren had been arguing about overtime allegedly owed by Holdren to some of the men. While denying liability for overtime, Holdren agreed to give Weibert some money "as a present," but added that he did not think he owed anything, Shenker said.

Shenker said Weibert distributed the money among the men claiming overtime.

The lawyer asked for probation primarily on account of Weibert's health. His client, he Glendale Patrolman Suspended After Charge He Stole Materials From Subdivision.

Patrolman Emmet S. Huelskamp of Glendale was under suspension today and at liberty on $3000 bond following his arrest yesterday on a warrant charging grand larceny in theft of $285 in building materials from a Warren Woods subdivision he had been patrolling at the owner's request.

Police Capt. Robert D. Snow of Glendale said Huelskamp, a member of the force a year, had admitted thefts over a three-month period of doors, lumber and fixtures, some of which he had used in construction of a rathskeller at his home, 11223 Marley drive, in southern St. Louis county.

The warrant was issued by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton on complaint of Everett Schneider, head of a firm developing the Bennett Hill subdivision, on the north side of Manchester road and adjoining Glendale.

Schneider said he had offered to pay Huelskamp to serve as part-time watchman during off-duty hours, and that Huelskamp had refused pay but agreed to drive through the subdivision occasionally both while he was on duty and off duty.

Snow said Schneider reported his suspicions of Huelskamp six weeks ago, and that he had questioned the officer about materials he was using at his home.

3 ART STUDENTS AWARDED FANNIE COOK SCHOLARSHIPS

George Gene Ortel, Washington University art student, Peter Hoefler, graduate of the University of Missouri, and John Arthur Yates, formerly of the Layton School of Art, Milwaukee, have been awarded Fannie Cook scholarships in art, it was announced today.

Each scholarship carries with it a stipend of $250 for use at any accredited art school. The awards were presented at People's Art Center by Miss Louise Carr, chairman of the awards committee. Richard Scharrer, a student at The Dyce School, 2202 East Harris avenue, received an award that will enable him to study art at the center.

An exhibit of works by the award winners will continue until May 14. Works of former scholarship winners also are on display. They include Billy Jackson, art instructor at the University of Illinois; Doris Lomax, student at Chicago Art Institute; Jeana Dale, art director, Central Institute for the Deaf, and Karl Korn, who has just received a scholarship for a year's study at Cornell University.

BRITAIN HOPES CITIZENS GROUP FOR TALKS WITH TO CAMPAIGN FOR REDS, QUEEN SAYS SCHOOL BONDS

Elizabeth Sends Parliament Home to Campaign for May 26 Elections.

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II sent Parliament home today to campaign for the May 26 general elections. In a farewell speech she said Britain hopes to "enter into fruitful negotiations" with the Soviet Union now that West Germany is once again a free and sovereign nation.

Britain will be without a Legislature until June 7, when the new House of Commons will sit for the first time.

Prime Minister Eden and his cabinet will continue to run their various departments. They do not resign until after the election—either for Eden to form a new cabinet if the Conservatives win, or for the Laborites to take over the government if they are victorious.

The present Parliament came into being with the national election of October 1951, when the Conservatives under the leadership of Winston Churchill unseated Clement Attlee's Labor government. Eden succeeded to the prime ministership and called the forthcoming election after Churchill retired last month.

The Queen's statement on hopes for negotiations with the Russians came in her speech prodding the old Parliament. Written for her by Eden and members of his cabinet, it was read in both houses of Parliament and summed up the almost four years of government by the Conservatives.

The speech emphasized the Government had followed a policy of seeking talks with the Kremlin at any level, including heads of state.

The Queen also told of Britain's interest in the troubled Formosa situation, saying:

"My Government have been greatly concerned at the dangers of the situation in the Formosa strait. They have been in constant consultation with the various governments concerned, in order to open the way for a peaceful settlement."

On domestic affairs, she said "it is a source of great satisfaction to me that my people's employment has been fully maintained. Fresh incentives have been given to production and to productive investment, and substantial programs of road and rail development have been announced."

Members Named—Proposed $16,395,000 Issue to Be Voted on May 26.

Names of St. Louisans who will work on a Board of Education citizens' committee for passage of the $16,395,000 school improvement bond issue were announced today by Mrs. Gilbert Harris, chairman of the campaign. The special election will be May 26.

The school bond issue, which will provide funds for new school buildings to relieve overcrowding and new auditoriums and gymnasiums, cafeterias and classroom improvements, will be on a single small ballot as one proposition.

The city's $110,639,000 civic improvement bond issue election is on the same day. The civic bond issue, however, will be on a long ballot listing each of the 23 propositions.

In both elections a two-thirds majority of those voting is necessary for passage.

Members of the citizens' committee for the school bond issue will be asked to make talks, explaining the necessity of additional funds for school building and repairs. They also will make telephone calls to neighbors and friends urging passage of the proposition, Mrs. Harris said.

Those on Committee.

Those named to the committee are: The Rev. Ralph C. Abele, Mrs. S. Thomas Alexander, Claude L. Bakewell, Dr. William C. Benton, William J. Blasse, Arthur A. Blumeyer, M. Leo Bohanon, Fred Bruch, Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, Henry F. Chadeayne, Mrs. W. L. Chandler, Armstrong Chinn.

EAST SIDE GAMBLING SQUAD TO HAVE 4 MORE OFFICERS

Four additional officers will be added to the East St. Louis police department's gambling squad to check on tavern owners suspected of taking horse race bets over the bar, Police Commissioner Russell T. Beebe announced yesterday.

"We have known that some of them haven't been able to catch them at it," Beebe said. "But we're going to stop them if we have to station policemen in their doors to do it."

Beebe said the tavern owners had been receiving odds and race results by telephone from a clearing house of racing information established recently over the Terrace Lounge, 127 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis. Police raided the establishment Wednesday, arresting two men and seizing seven telephones and a quantity of racing information.

WARRANT NAMES 2 MEN IN HOLDUP OF EUREKA BANK

Arrests Follow Robbery of Bank in Buckner, Mo. — Part of Loot Recovered.

A warrant charging John William Farr of Kansas City and Charles L. Posey of St. Louis with the $15,900 robbery last August of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Eureka, St. Louis county, was issued today by United States Commissioner Edwin J. Bean.

The men were arrested yesterday by police and FBI agents in Kansas City following a holdup of the First State Bank of Buckner, Mo., in which about $12,000 was taken. The FBI said $6000 in loot, apparently taken in the Buckner robbery, had been recovered in Farr's apartment in Kansas City.

FBI agents today recovered an additional $5336 of the Buckner bank loot from Posey's home at 917 Baden street, it was announced by J. Earl Milnes, special agent in charge of the FBI office here.

Milnes said Posey had mailed the money to his home in an insured package shortly after the robbery. Agents were waiting when a postal employee delivered the parcel, a shoe box, this morning and Posey's wife turned it over to them.

Assistant United States Attorney Herbert H. Freer, who applied for the warrant, said the FBI had informed him that Farr, a former convict, had admitted holding up the Eureka bank and named Posey as his accomplice.

Farr, 37 years old, and Posey, 28, were arrested about five hours after the noon robbery of the Buckner bank in which three employees were forced to lie on the floor while the robbers took the money from a vault. Buckner is about 15 miles east of Kansas City.

One of the robbers threatened the Buckner bank employees with a revolver while the other went into the vault. Neither was masked.

In Farr's apartment the officers found a pair of striped coveralls similar to those worn by one of the robbers. The $6000 was tied in a trouser leg.

Farr had in his possession a .38-caliber revolver, the FBI said, but offered no resistance. The FBI said he had been convicted of burglary in Texas and formerly lived in the 5700 block of Dale avenue in St. Louis. He has followed the trade of interior decorating.

In the Eureka bank robbery last Aug. 26, the robbers forced four employees and two customers to lie on the floor while they robbed the vault. A customer who entered while they were leaving the bank was struck on the head by a revolver. They abandoned a stolen automobile used in the getaway about two miles from Eureka.

SALES, INVENTORY TOTALS IN MARCH UNUSUALLY HIGH

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—Business firms sold $52,400,000,000 worth of goods in March and had $78,800,000,000 worth in inventory at the end of the month, according to a Department of Commerce report.

Sales were higher than any other month on record after seasonal adjustments, the report said. Both sales and inventories rose more than usual.

Sales climbed for the fifth month in a row, except for a slight post-Christmas dip in January. Inventories rose for the third month in a row, after having dropped for 16 months.

And in April, the volume of construction rose to a new high, the Commerce and Labor departments reported today.

The April increase continued an upward trend which began in the summer of 1953. However, this one month's increase was considered no greater than usual for springtime.

The dollar value of all construction work during the month was $3,225,000,000.

NAVY FLYERS HOME AGAIN AFTER LONG TRIP ABROAD

WHIDBEY ISLAND NAVAL AIR BASE, Wash., May 6 (UP)—The men of Navy patrol squadron were reunited with their wives and children today after taking the long way home from Okinawa.

Six months ago the 12 P-2V planes of the squadron flew westward from here for a tour of duty in the Far East. On April 19 they took off toward the West again. When they arrived home yesterday, they were the first navy air squadron ever to complete a trip around the world.

The planes made stopovers at Singapore, Ceylon, Naples, Port Lyauty and the Azores. They made the 16,000-mile flight without incident and without changing an engine. On hand to greet the returning flyers were 15 new babies who never before had met their fathers.

MONSANTO STRIKE ON EAST SIDE ENDS

Workers Return — Talks to Be Resumed on Dispute Leading to Stoppage.

Production workers returned to their jobs at Monsanto Chemical Co.'s Krummrich plant at Monsanto, Ill., today, ending a strike which began April 28.

Decision to end the walkout was made last night at a meeting of the 1500 strikers, members of Local 12, AFL Chemical Workers' Union. The meeting, held at Croatian Hall, 1300 North Ninth street, East St. Louis, was called by John Gratz, international vice president, who said the strike was unauthorized.

Gratz told the union members talks would be resumed with Monsanto in an effort to end the dispute which led to the work stoppage.

The East Side union signed a one-year contract calling for a 6-cent hourly increase last April 12. There was a verbal understanding, however, that the contract would be altered if additional benefits were granted workers at Monsanto's St. Louis plant with whom the company then was negotiating.

The St. Louis workers later went on strike which ended when they agreed to a two-year contract providing for an immediate 8½-cent pay rise and another 5-cent increase next year.

Monsanto officers offered the East Side workers the same contract but the workers balked at accepting a two-year contract and walked out.

SPEEDY ASPHALT-LAYING JOB PROBABLY A WORLD'S RECORD

COLLEGE PARK, Md., May 6 (AP)—How long does it take to lay a coating of asphalt over 383 feet of 24-foot wide street?

Twenty-eight men, two spreaders, two rollers, and 14 trucks did it in 24 minutes and 35 seconds yesterday.

The Corson-Gruman Co. of Washington furnished the crew for the job at the dedication of the Asphalt Institute's new headquarters on the University of Maryland campus here. As far as the institute knows, it is the asphalt-laying record of the world.

FIREMEN ABANDON SIREN FOR FORMER RUN-YELL SYSTEM

WINCHESTER, Idaho, May 6 (AP)—The Winchester volunteer firemen, tired of turning out to false alarms on a new-fangled siren system, are going back to the old-fashioned run-and-yell method.

The fire siren now sounds off when anyone dials the department number on the telephone. The modern system was installed just last December, but City Clerk Walter Dugger said the station telephone will be removed today. The siren has been wailing false alarms four or five times a day.

Dugger said citizens will have to phone someone who lives near the fire station when they discover a blaze or they can run down and report it to the volunteers in person.

ADENAUER URGES BIG 4 TALKS ON REUNIFICATION

Another Goal of Chancellor is Speedy Rearming of Bonn as an Ally of West.

BONN, May 6 (UP)—Chancellor Adenauer plans to push for the earliest possible East-West talks on German reunification now that West Germany has regained sovereignty, informed sources said today.

Adenauer flies tomorrow to Paris for a series of Western diplomatic conferences. The informants said he would press the leaders of the Big Three to seek an early conference with Russia on the German problem.

Two Major Goals.

The 78-year-old Chancellor laid down two major goals for his government's policy as an immediate sequel to the end of the Western Allied occupation of West Germany:

1. East-West talks on German reunification and a European security setup. Adenauer wants the Bonn government represented in talks whenever the German questions come up for discussion.

2. Speedy rearmament of West Germany as an ally of the West.

Adenauer consistently opposed a Big Four conference until ratification of the Paris treaties which granted West Germany its sovereignty and the right to rearm was completed. He also has made clear that the rearmament program should not be held up pending such a conference.

Official sources here welcomed the announcement by United States Foreign Aid Administrator Harold E. Stassen of a heavy backlog of military assistance funds for rearming West Germany. It will be some time yet before such funds can be applied, the sources pointed out.

It will be late fall before the first volunteers are told to report for duty in the army forces that will eventually total 500,000 men.

The first six months will be taken up with passing laws permitting the new sovereign nation to raise troops, define government control over the military and provide the necessary station and maneuver areas.

Heavy Equipment.

The Germans will get most of their heavy military equipment from the United States and other allies. Uniforms and light equipment will be German-made.

Meanwhile, the American forces radio network, a branch of the United States armed forces information and education division, spelled out what the birth of West German sovereignty means to Americans in Germany.

"All military personnel, non-German employees of the United

35-Inch Ballot, Machine Could Replace It

MRS. EILEEN ALBERTI, 3304A Lemp avenue, a clerk of the Board of Election Commissioners, exhibiting the 35-inch-long official ballot for the $10,539,000 bond issue for public improvements which will be before the voters next May 26. Behind her is a voting machine which would replace paper ballots if voters approve Proposition No. 10 of the bond issue.

States armed forces and non-German dependents now will be designated "members of the forces," the broadcast told an estimated 400,000 Americans in Germany.

The forces, the radio said, are no longer occupiers but "guests" of the German federal republic. They are expected to observe German laws and are not here to run democracy down the throats of the population," the former occupation troops and their families were told.

Pravda Denounces Restoration of Reich Sovereignty as Phony.

MOSCOW, May 6 (AP)—Pravda today denounced the restoration of sovereignty to West Germany as a phony and said it "merely prolonged the occupation in disguise by American, British and French troops for an indefinite period."

The two-column article from Bonn in the Communist party newspaper said the ceremony according the restoration of sovereignty marked a restoration of Fascism in West Germany.

An accompanying article, signed by Walter Ulbricht, East Germany's Communist party boss, declared East Germany would "carry out all its obligations" under the 1954 Moscow security conference declaration. This conference of Russia and east European bloc nations decided the Communist countries would increase and merge their armed forces under a joint command in answer to the rearming of West Germany.

APPROVAL OF VOTE MACHINES WOULD SPEED TABULATION

machine proposal, the machines will be purchased from the Automatic Voting Machine Co., Jamestown, N.Y., which quotes a price of $1622 for each machine, or the Shoup Voting Machine Co., Canton, O., whose price is $1688. These two concerns are the only manufacturers of the devices.

Both machines have given satisfactory service elsewhere. Inner mechanism are said to be substantially the same, and each type can be operated electrically or manually. The $2,100,000 allocation for purchase of the machines includes approximately 10 per cent for possible price increases.

In support of its recommendation of $175,000 for warehouse space, the citizens' committee pointed out that most large cities store their voting machines at a central location, rather than at polling places. It is doubtful whether under Missouri law the election board could legally store the machines in a place where they would not be in board custody between elections, it was said.

Installation of voting machines by St. Louis has been urged by various groups as a means of increasing efficiency and preventing irregularities. The groups include the Board of Election Commissioners and the Republican City Central Committee.

Another advantage claimed for voting machines is that they are less confusing than long and complicated paper ballots that list many candidates or proposals. The ballot for the St. Louis bond election May 26 will be 35 inches long.

St. Louis county voters approved purchase of voting machines in a bond issue election in February 1954. The county has bought 400 Shoup machines. A citizens advisory group has recommended purchase of 200 more. The county's machines are to be put into use early next year.

In East St. Louis, which has used voting machines since 1950, the Board of Election Commissioners has 122 of the automatic type machines for 48 precincts. John F. Moynihan, chief clerk of the board, said all city precincts in the school election April 9 had reported an hour and five minutes after polls closed.

$153,841 PAYOFF LIST IN DALE TAX CASE DISCLOSED

District Council of the AFL Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, has pleaded not guilty to the tax charge and is awaiting trial here May 16.

He is being held at City Jail in St. Louis pending appeal of a 15-year prison sentence imposed as a result of his conviction for attempting to extort $1,030,000 from a contractor. made payoffs to Dale were: Maxon Construction Co., Dayton, O., $7500; Missouri Valley Dredging Co., Omaha, Nebr., $4250; Ottinger Construction Co., Fort Worth, Tex., $11,650, and Regenhart Construction Co., Cape Girardeau, Mo., $2500.

U.S. TAXES PAID HERE IN 4 MONTHS 9 PCT. UNDER 1954

A 9 per cent drop in collections in the first four months of this year of individual and corporate federal income taxes for 1954, as compared with the amount collected in the same period last year, was reported today by Gus F. Koehler, director of the Internal Revenue Service here. Collections were from taxpayers in Eastern Missouri.

Individual income taxes collected so far total $63,595,000 compared with $69,903,000 in the same period last year. Corporation taxes collected this year total $110,500,000. In the first four months of last year $124,781,000 was collected from corporations.

Koehler attributed the decreases to more liberal allowances given taxpayers for their 1954 income. He said the amounts will be increased when taxes are collected from 1733 persons who have asked for extensions in filing returns. He added, however, that about $400,000 of the money already collected will be refunded to taxpayers from whom too much was deducted.

In computing last year's income tax, taxpayers were permitted deductions for income from stock dividends and for children who earn more than $600 a year but attend school. More liberal sick benefits also were granted.

TWO SCHOOL BUS BILLS KILLED BY HOUSE GROUP

Action Bars Enactment
At This Session of Measures on Free
Transportation.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, May 6—Two controversial measures dealing with school bus transportation were killed by the House Public Schools Committee on a 7-to-3 vote in executive session.

The bills, almost identical and both sponsored by Representative Jennie S. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis, were designed to provide free transportation to and from school for all school children in the state—regardless of whether they attended public, parochial or private schools.

Committee hearings on the bills attracted some of the largest crowds ever to attend such sessions in Jefferson City. The Schools Committee action ended any hope of enactment of the legislation at this session, but Mrs. Walsh said she would attempt next week to have a bill placed on the House calendar despite the adverse committee report.

Anti-Bias Bill Approved.
A bill which would prohibit discrimination because of race, color, or creed in the hiring of state employees was passed yesterday in the House, but a companion measure which would prohibit discrimination in private industry was beaten decisively.

The bill pertaining to hiring of state employees was approved 84 to 4 with 10 members voting present. It now goes to the Senate, but in view of the fact the session is drawing to a close it is doubtful that the measure will be acted on there.

The proposal to prohibit discrimination in private industry was debated at some length and at times the argument became heated. The vote was 47 for approval to 12 against. Thirty-seven legislators voted "present." Seventy-nine affirmative votes are required for passage of a bill.

Opponents of the defeated measure contended that the Legislature has a right to legislate against discrimination when public funds are involved, but does not have the right to tell private industry how it is going to expend its funds.

King-Thompson Act Revision.
Another measure passed and sent to the Senate would modify the King-Thompson act, prohibiting work stoppages in public utilities. It was approved 104 to 0.

Backed by labor interests, the bill would soften stringent penalty provisions of the present law for violation of anti-strike restrictions, during the time a utility might be operated under seizure by the state.

One of the chief relaxations provided is that union employees who refused to work while the utility was being operated by the state could be reinstated with full seniority rights after the dispute was settled.

It also would provide that any person violating the anti-strike provisions of the law would be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $10 to $1000 and imprisonment for a year. The present law provides a fine of $10,000 a day for each day of the work stoppage.

An additional "cooling off" period also would be provided. Tax Penalty Bill Approved. Any person willfully failing to file a state income tax return would be subject, on conviction, to a maximum fine of $1000 and a prison sentence of two years under provisions of a measure passed and sent to the Senate. The vote was 89 to 1.

The House passed a Senate-approved measure which would put the state grain warehouse division in the Department of Agriculture, as recommended by the Governmental Reorganization (Little Hoover) Commission. The bill now goes to the Governor.

The final appropriation bill of the session, the omnibus or catch-all bill, was introduced in the House. It calls for allotment of $10,000,000, more than half of which would go for county road aid, the state university and colleges.

The county road aid program would receive $3,000,000 in addition to $4,000,000 included in an appropriation bill passed earlier yesterday and sent to the Governor.

Funds for Colleges.
The University of Missouri would receive $1,800,000 for constructing and equipping a fine arts building. Four of the state colleges would receive $300,000 each for construction of additional dormitory facilities.

Also, the bill would provide $2,000,000 for direct relief to employable persons temporarily unemployed.

A total of $480,000 would be provided to pay the cost of establishing six traveling psychiatric clinics authorized in a bill already signed by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

The Senate, which started work last Monday with plans for full sessions all week in its drive toward final adjournment of the 1955 regular session, quit

GLOBE-GIRDLING RADFORD TOO BUSY TO WIN GLOBE
WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was so busy reporting on his globe-girdling that he lost out on a globe. The globe was a door-prize raffled off at a meeting of the Explorers' Club. Radford's name was picked, but he did not qualify to receive it because he was not there. The Admiral had just returned from Formosa and he had to make a report on his trip. The globe will be offered again at the club's next meeting.

7 WEU NATIONS SAID TO AGREE ON ARMS POOL PLAN

Details of Proposal to Control Making, Distributing Munitions Not Disclosed.

PARIS, May 6 (AP)—The seven nations of the new Western European Union have agreed on an "arms pool" to co-ordinate the manufacture and distribution of munitions, informants said yesterday.

The structure and powers of the future organization remained secret. However, they were believed to be much more modest than the original French plan which would have delegated all authority over the manufacture, import and distribution of arms to a WEU commission after a two-year transitional period.

Representatives and experts of the seven member nations finished a lengthy study of the plan with adoption of a report to the future WEU foreign ministers' council. The seven are Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

The WEU, one of the main pieces in the series of Paris accords for West German rearmament, will be officially brought to life Saturday night, following a dinner in the British Embassy for all the seven ministers. One of WEU's first actions will be to receive the arms pool report from a group of experts.

Reliable informants said the experts recommended a seven-nation commission with limited powers to co-ordinate munitions programs.

The report contains a provision for some of the member states to make closer arrangements among themselves if they so desire. One such deal which has been widely discussed is joint French-German aircraft building.

In setting WEU into motion the ministers will have several other decisions to make. One is to appoint the future "European" high commissioner of the Saar. Under the French-West German agreement he is to be a "neutral" national—neither French, German nor Saarlander. It is generally assumed that this post will go to a Briton.

INDIA TRIBE BURNS MOST OF PRO-GOVERNMENT VILLAGE

NEW DELHI, May 6 (AP)—Headhunters of northeast India's Naga tribe burned down most of a pro-government village recently as part of their drive for an independent "Nagaland." Parliament was told yesterday. Deputy Foreign Minister Anil K. Chandra reported 60 homes and 25 granaries were destroyed in the northeastern Assam village. The tribe fired it because the villagers were co-operating with the government, he said.

ZIEGENBALG AND OLIVER RECEIVE ONE-YEAR TERMS

court April 27 the parole office recommended that their applications for parole be denied. The circuit attorney's office made a similar recommendation.

The parole office, noting that the original charges against the former aldermen had been changed, said: "This is not a case wherein both applicants committed a single or isolated offense."

The indictments against the two came after an investigation of city contracts, city ordinances and other related matters by the Circuit Attorney's office, which started early in 1954.

One indictment charged them jointly with soliciting a bribe and another accepting a bribe. Ziegenbalg was charged individually with accepting a bribe in a third count and Oliver with accepting and soliciting a bribe in two other counts.

In each case of accepting a bribe, the charge was modified by the circuit attorney to sale of a public office, which is a felony and for which the penalty ranges from one day in the workhouse to five years in the penitentiary. In each solicitation case, the charge was reduced to fraud in office, the penalty for which is a day to a year in the workhouse.

Penalty for soliciting and accepting bribes ranges up to seven years in the penitentiary. Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd said the charges were not technically reduced, but "modified" to give the judge a wider range of possible punishment.

Deputy sheriffs formed a cordon around Oliver and Ziegenbalg outside the Municipal Courts Building today, preventing newspaper photographers from taking pictures of the two prisoners.

Charges Outlined. One joint indictment against Ziegenbalg and Oliver, returned

July 6, 1954, charged they solicited a $250 bribe from Charles M. Kirkham, attorney for the Steamer Service Co., which operates the steamer Admiral. The alleged bribe was to assure passage of an ordinance that would permit the company to install an electric cable near the boat dock.

The other joint indictment alleged payment of $150 by C. Kenneth Theis, attorney for Cleveland Engine Division of General Motors Corp., following passage by the Board of Aldermen of an ordinance sought by Theis's client to permit installation of a power line to a barge operated by the company in the Mississippi river.

In a separate indictment, Ziegenbalg was charged with receiving $350, through a third party, from Capt. J. W. (Bill) Menke, proprietor of the Golden Rod Show Boat, to assure passage of a bill to provide electricity for the boat.

Other Indictments. One of the two separate indictments against Oliver charged him with accepting $200 from Fred Schwalz, president of Wrisberg Real Estate Co. for passage of a rezoning bill. The other indictment against Oliver charged him with soliciting $500 from Neil T. Maloy, secretary of the National Lightning Protection Co. in connection with a bill for the sale of city-owned property to the firm.

Oliver was suspended from the Board of Aldermen July 12, 1954. Suspension action against Ziegenbalg, who was vice president of the board, did not come until the following Aug. 5. Both men are Democrats.

Ziegenbalg, known as "Ziggy" to his associates, had been a member of the board since 1936. Before that he was a state liquor control inspector. He lives at 3650 Garfield avenue.

Oliver was elected to the board in 1951. When he was indicted he listed his age as 49 years and his address as 4503A North Market street. He was a minister of Our Lord Jesus Christ Church, 2401 North Taylor avenue.

HOUSING SLOWED BY ANTI-WINDFALL CLAUSE, COLE SAYS

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—Housing Director Albert M. Cole told Congress yesterday that the "anti-windfall" provision it wrote into the housing law last year is slowing down slum clearance and other housing programs.

The provision specifies that the amount of a Government-insured mortgage will be based on the actual cost of construction as certified by the builder.

Cole said builders are reluctant to go into Government-insured projects unless they are sure they are going to get their entire investment back.

He made the statements at a round-table discussion of the housing law conducted by the Senate Banking subcommittee on housing.

The anti-windfall provision was enacted because many post-war apartment builders made huge profits by receiving Government-insured mortgages for more than the cost of construction and pocketing the excess as capital gains.

PATIENTS IN JEWISH HOME FIRE TAKEN TO CATHOLIC HALL

BALTIMORE, May 6 (AP)—Fifty-seven aged and crippled patients were carried to safety this morning when a fire swept the roof of the Mount Sinai Kosher Nursing Home. All escaped injury.

The patients were taken across the street to the St. Ambrose Catholic Church hall.

Many residents of the neighborhood joined in the rescue, carrying patients from all three floors of the old white stucco building. The fire was confined to the roof.

EISENHOWER ASKS CONGRESS TO OK PHILIPPINE TRADE PACT

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—President Eisenhower yesterday asked Congress to approve revision of the 1946 trade agreement between the United States and the Philippines. In a letter to Vice President Nixon and House Speaker Rayburn, the President said the Philippines regard the agreement as "vital to the economic stability" of that country and to its permanent trade relations with the United States.

Discussion of Philippine proposals for revision started last September and was concluded last Dec. 15 when both governments agreed to ask their Congresses to approve the revision. The Philippine Congress voted approval Wednesday.

The revised agreement provides for "gradually rising tariffs" on the part of both the Uranium Found in Scotland.

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Two amateur prospectors have made the first discovery of uranium in Scotland, a government agency said last night. James and Archibald Sinclair, brothers, found the radioactive deposit in an old lead mine in the hills of western Perthshire. A government geologist said the chances were against the deposit being big enough to have economic importance.

CITY BOND ISSUE LEADERS DRAFT INTENSIVE DRIVE

1,000,000 Pamphlets and Sample Ballots to Be Distributed — Radio and TV Appeals.

Leaders of the campaign for a $110,639,000 bond issue made last-minute preparations today for an intensive drive to obtain passage of each of the 23 propositions for public improvements to modernize the city.

The campaign goes into high gear Monday with distribution of 1,000,000 pamphlets and sample ballots, display of 25,000 placards in store windows, advertisements on busses, streetcars and billboards, one-minute appeals in motion picture theaters and announcements on radio and television programs.

In addition, a campaign film will be shown to civic clubs and other organizations, a speakers' bureau will make a series of talks, and thousands of stickers will be distributed for display on automobile windows.

Citizens' Committee Meeting.
Approximately 500 members of the citizens' committee for passage of the bond issue held their first general meeting in an assembly hall at Kiel Auditorium yesterday.

Committee Chairman David Calhoun Jr. told them that voter apathy must be overcome if all the proposals in the bond issue program are to get the two-thirds approval required for adoption.

The tax increase required to finance the bond issue will be "infinitesimal," he said, explaining. "It will depend on the rate of bond issuance, and at the most will not exceed 5 cents for each $100 of assessed property valuation."

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker emphasized the need for St. Louis to modernize municipal facilities and keep pace with other large cities. Since 1944, he said, other cities have passed bond issues running into hundreds of millions of dollars, while St. Louis bond issues have amounted only to $5,500,000—$4,000,000 for rubbish disposal facilities and $1,500,000 for redevelopment of the Plaza area.

10,000 Volunteers Enrolled.
Mrs. Frankie Freeman, co-chairman of the women's division of the campaign, reported that 10,000 volunteers have enrolled in the drive, and telephone appeals to 50,000 registered voters will be made two days before the May 26 special election.

Radio and television time for campaign appeals will be donated by advertisers, it was announced by Stanley Richman, promotion chairman. Richmond C. Coburn, head of the speakers' bureau, invited clubs desiring information on the bond issue proposals to get in touch with his group.

Arthur A. Blumeyer, finance committee chairman, said funds for the campaign are needed and contributions will be welcomed. The AFL Building and Construction Trades Council, which has endorsed the bond issue by unanimous vote, sent Blumeyer a $15,000 check.

Joseph Cousins, secretary-treasurer of the council, in a letter accompanying the donation said:

"We are convinced that the bond issue is a must. We urge everyone to vote for each and every item on the ballot. We fully realize the necessity for a strong educational campaign to convince the voters of the need for the various projects and to show them how to mark their ballots."

"The Big Issue," a 13-minute motion picture, was shown at the Kiel Auditorium meeting. It contrasted traffic jams in St. Louis with expressway improvements made in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and other cities, and showed the need for other municipal improvements here.

The bond issue program calls for expressways, rubbish and garbage disposal facilities, expansion of the Art Museum, Public Library and Zoo, better street lighting, flood control measures, slum clearance, neighborhood rehabilitation, a planetarium, hospital improvements, new streets and a variety of other public works.

In a talk to the St. Louis Society of Automotive Engineers last night, Mayor Tucker said engineers helped draw up the program to modernize St. Louis, and they must help "sell" the program to the voters.

"This task is just one of those which the engineer must perform if he is to be more than a mechanical man using a slide-rule and T square," he said. "Plans gather dust. Progress does not."

Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., through management and union representatives, is urging all its workers to support the bond issue.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AWARDED MEDAL FOR REFUGEE AID

GENEVA, May 6 (UP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was awarded the first Nansen medal yesterday for outstanding services to the cause of refugees.

The Nansen medal award committee said it took into account Mrs. Roosevelt's active participation in the United Nations Human Rights Commission for many years. The award also was made in commemoration of the outstanding initiatives in refugee matters taken by her husband, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The committee recalled his part in setting up a 1938 conference to consider plans for assisting orderly emigration. It made the award to Mrs. Roosevelt for 1954. The 1955 recipient has not yet been announced.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO COUNTY WATER USERS:

$40.00 Per Ton Surcharge on Water-Cooled Air Conditioning
EFFECTIVE MAY 1, 1957

The St. Louis County Water Company has been authorized by the Public Service Commission of Missouri to charge, effective May 1, 1957, an annual surcharge of $40.00 per ton of capacity for water-cooled air conditioning of the non-conserved type operated by customers of the St. Louis County Water Company. The surcharge will be in addition to regular rates charged for the amount of water used.

The Commission's Order dated April 18, 1955, reads:

"ORDERED: That the St. Louis County Water Company be and is hereby authorized to file within ten days after the effective date of this Order, a rate schedule whereby said Company will be authorized to charge on and after May 1, 1957, for water furnished to its customers for use in non-conserved water-cooled air conditioning equipment a rate of $40.00 per season per ton of rated refrigerating capacity, said charges to be in addition to charges payable under other applicable rates for water used, and to be applicable to all customers using non-conserved water-cooled air conditioning equipment for comfort cooling."

The authorized rate was filed by the Company on May 1, 1955.

The Surcharge Applies To non-conserved air conditioning units which use water directly from the building plumbing system for cooling the refrigerant with discharge to a place where the water is not cooled and reused in the units or which use an average of more than 12 gallons of water per hour per ton of cooling capacity when operating. The surcharge applies to air conditioning used for comfort cooling.

The Surcharge Does Not Apply To air conditioning units having water conservation equipment such as cooling towers, atmospheric condensers or spray ponds which reclaim the water and which require less than 12 gallons per hour of make-up water per ton of cooling capacity.

The surcharge does not apply to air conditioners which do not use water.

Also, the surcharge does not apply to communities in the County which have their own water supply systems or to communities which purchase water wholesale from the St. Louis County Water Company.

Please phone us—Parkview 1-1600—for any additional information desired.

review and approval of the vaccine before it is released. Manufacturers send the Government a sample from each batch of vaccine they prepare. The batch is not released until the Government gives approval.

On the Salk vaccine, Government technicians have been making what they call "spot" tests rather than running an exhaustive test of every sample. That is, they make a thorough test only on random lots.

On each batch, however, the Government technicians examine "protocols" submitted by the manufacturer. The protocols are technical reports on the manufacturer's own testing and production methods.

Spot Checks.

Dr. Scheele, who has said safety standards are under study, said one of the questions figuring in the scientific talks is whether to go on making spot checks or to test every lot.

Asked why the Administration is opposing compulsory federal controls, Dr. Scheele said: "We believe we can make the voluntary system work."

The American medical profession has demonstrated in the past and will demonstrate again it can handle this type of thing very fairly.

The medical profession and the American people don't have to have a policeman standing beside them on something like this.

Representative Jesse P. Wadsworth (Rep., Michigan), commented it might be well to give President Eisenhower "standby powers" to clamp down controls over vaccine distribution and prices "when and if abuses develop."

Dr. Scheele said it would take "some time" to set up a staff and create machinery for federal controls over distribution. In fact, he said, he suspects that the vaccine will be available in much larger quantities before such machinery could be created.

Voluntary Allocation.

Scheele said the Administration plan called for a voluntary allocation by producers of the vaccine to each of the 48 states, based on the number of children in the most susceptible age groups in each state.

He said state and local governments' medical agencies, under the Administration's plan, would handle allocations within each state.

Representative Henry S. Reuss (Dem., Wisconsin), said he wanted a breakdown showing what procedure each of the 48 states is following "to make sure there is no black marketing or diversion of the vaccine away from children."

Reuss developed that 213,000,000 cubic centimeters of vaccine would be needed to complete vaccinations for all people in age groups susceptible to polio, including adults.

Dr. Scheele said an earlier calculation indicated 69,000,000 c.c.s would be available by Aug. 1, but this figure is now "out of date" and the total may be lower.

Report of Profit.

Representative Barrett O'Hara (Dem., Illinois), said he had heard that one manufacturer of the vaccine would make $20,000,000 profit out of $60,000,000 in sales and that this manufacturing firm planned to double its dividends to stockholders.

O'Hara wanted to know what the Health Department was going to do to "prevent excessive and tremendous profits from this blessing to mankind."

Dr. Scheele said the department had no control or responsibility as to profits.

Asked how "poor children" would be able to pay for inoculations, Scheele said the medical profession has indicated it would charge only ordinary office fees for its services.

The Surgeon General strongly backed the Eisenhower Administration's stand that voluntary methods will be adequate to assure that the vaccine is distributed first to children in the age groups most susceptible to polio.

Committee Chairman Brent Spence (Dem., Kentucky), had said in advance of the hearings that he feels "we need some legislation to make sure the vaccine goes to the children first without regard to ability to pay for it."

Dr. Scheele's opening remarks dealt more with the concern caused by development of polio in children already vaccinated than with distribution. As for controls, he said merely that the vaccine is in "very short supply and this causes many problems in distribution."

Dr. Scheele said without elaborating, that he is confident the Salk vaccine "can be safe." He said the fact that some inoculated children have been stricken with polio does not necessarily mean the vaccine caused the disease.

Own Son Gets Shot.
Dr. Scheele's own 7-year-old son received a first shot just after the reports of illness among inoculated children began to come in.

Dr. Scheele said he believes that while the vaccine is not perfect—"it's not 100 per cent protection"—the injections will protect "a high percentage of our children from this disease and should be very useful."

He said it is not possible at this moment to say whether the Cutter vaccine actually has caused any polio cases.

There is a possibility, he said, it is "sheer coincidence" that more than 40 children have contracted polio after being vaccinated.

Dr. Scheele said he has no information that the prices charged for this commercial vaccine were out of line with the price paid by the foundation.

But he said past experience indicates there would be only "very minor" attempts at black marketing.

Spence said before the hearing opened, that the Federal Government should have the power to step in and channel the vaccine first to the children who need it most, including those who can't afford to buy it.

In listing 44 cases of polio among children inoculated with the vaccine, the Public Health Service said the three new cases reported since yesterday were one each in Missouri, Texas and Hawaii.

The health service reported there now have been 41 paralytic cases reported and 3 non-paralytic cases among vaccinated children.

Thirty-eight children had been given vaccine from Cutter Laboratories and 6 received vaccine made by Eli Lilly & Co. of Indianapolis, a spokesman said.

Suspected Cases.

The health service is investigating other suspected cases of polio among inoculated children. The suspected cases are in Alabama, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada and Wyoming. The spokesman said he did not know how many cases are under investigation in each state.

In Berkeley, Calif., Dr. Fred Cutter, vice president and secretary of the Cutter Laboratories, said investigation so far had shown nothing wrong with any lot of the vaccine the firm distributed. Most of the children who have received shots and become ill were inoculated with Cutter vaccine. Unused supplies of the vaccine were recalled last week for further testing.

Dr. Cutter said the vaccine for free school use was put up in bottles containing nine shots each. He said he could not understand why, if the vaccine was at fault, one child might get the disease while others treated from the same bottle escaped.

DUKE OF WINDSOR SHAKEN UP BY TIRE BLOWOUT ON PLANE

PARIS, May 6. (AP)—The Duke of Windsor made his first flight from London to Paris since World War II today and he and other passengers were shaken up by a tire blowout.

The British European Airways plane had just landed at Le Bourget airfield and was taxi-ing down a runway when the tire blew out. The plane stopped with one wing touching the ground. The passengers were removed without difficulty.

The Duke had been making a five-day private visit to London. The Duchess had remained in Paris.

3 KILLED, 12 HURT IN CHICAGO HOTEL FIRE ON SKID ROW

Third Fatal Blaze in Same Area in 9 Days
—77 Men Were in 5-
Story Building.

CHICAGO, May 6 (AP)—A flash fire roared through a West Madison street skid row flophouse early today, killing nine men. Twelve other men were injured, two seriously.

It was the third disastrous fire in the same neighborhood in nine days. On April 28 eight persons were killed in a walkup hotel fire and four others perished in a blaze in a nearby rooming house.

A flash fire at another skidrow flophouse Feb. 12 took the lives of 29 men.

Today's extra-alarm blaze in the Comfort Hotel at 919 West Madison street was brought under control within one hour. The bodies were found on the upper floors of the five-story brick building.

Firemen said the hotel contains about 100 cubicles, about six by seven feet, separated by corrugated iron with chicken wire tops, for its residents.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Damage was estimated at $5000.

Most of the dead and injured suffered smoke inhalation and most of them were asleep in their tiny, 65-cents-a-night cubicles in the second and third floors.

Al Reese, a clerk at the hotel, said there were 77 men in the building when the fire broke out about 1 a.m.

Reese said he first saw smoke pouring from a second floor room behind his office. He said he pounded on the door of the room but got no response.

"Then I pulled the fire alarm and started banging on doors until the smoke got too thick," Reese said. "I called the telephone operator but I couldn't finish telling her about the fire because the smoke was choking me."

Recalling McCarthy Hearing

JOSEPH N. WELCH (right), special counsel for the Army in its controversy with Senator McCarthy last year, being greeted at Knoxville, Tenn., yesterday by RAY JENKINS who acted as counsel to Senate committee which investigated the dispute.

ROBBED OF $800, WATCH AND CLOTHING BY 2 MEN

Sylvan Wolf, operator of a dress shop at 2800 Cherokee street, reported he was robbed of $800, a wristwatch, three suits and a topcoat last night shortly after closing his store.

Wolf said he was accosted by two men as he was entering his station wagon in the 3400 block of California avenue. One of the robbers pressed a hard object against his head and forced him to hand over his wallet and watch, Wolf told police. The robbers fled in an automobile parked nearby.

U.S. FIRM TO TEST DRILL IRON MOUNTAIN IN BOLIVIA

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—The government has announced that
H. A. Brasserie & Co., Inc., New York construction firm, will test drill the Mutun mountain preparatory to exploitation for iron ore.

Mutun mountain is near the Brazilian border. Iron ore from that region could be shipped out by river boats to Argentina. Geologists who have worked at Mutun said the mountain may contain a billion tons of ore.

WELCH, JENKINS MEET FIRST TIME SINCE HEARING

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 6
(AP)—Joseph Welch and Ray Jenkins met yesterday for the first time since last summer's McCarthy-Army hearing.

Welch is the Boston lawyer who served as Army counsel for the prolonged, televised Senate hearings. Jenkins, of Knoxville, was special counsel for the Senate investigations subcommittee which conducted the hearing.

"The Army does not coddle Communists and a traitor could not exist among professional soldiers," Welch told a Knoxville Bar Association banquet. He touched only briefly on the hearing itself.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy
(Rep., Wisconsin), had accused the Army of "coddling Communists" to touch off the hearing.
"Some persons have the idea that the Pentagon holds a secret room where a handful of traitors meet to coddle Communists and see that they get honorable discharges from the Army," Welch said. "The corridors of the Pentagon are lined with men who have been shot at by the Communists."

MUNDT SAYS EISENHOWER ENJOYS JOB, WILL RUN AGAIN

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—
Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, voiced belief today that President Eisenhower—far from being tired of his job as contended by some Democrats —is enjoying his work so much he will run again.

Mundt said in an interview that Democratic Chairman Paul
M. Butler was doing some "wishful thinking" in saying yesterday that Mr. Eisenhower finds his office burdensome and is counting "the days and months until he will be liberated."

"It's just human nature that anybody likes a job he can do well," Mundt said. "It is my belief that the President is enjoying seeing his successful Administration develop and that he will want to develop it further in the next five years."

COSTA RICA WOMAN ENVOY SAYS 'CALL ME SENORA'

LONDON, May 6 (INS)— Costa Rica's first woman diplomat sent abroad has given a Latin American touch to the Perle Mesta story.

Senora Dona Virginia de Gal-

EISENHOWER'S ROAD FINANCING PLAN REJECTED

Senate Group Decides Instead to Try to Change Rival Gore Proposal.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—The Senate Public Works Committee today voted 8-4 to reject President Eisenhower's highway financing plan. Instead, it decided to try to make changes in a rival bill offered by Senator Gore (Dem., Tennessee).

Gore told reporters he believed the committee would finish work on his measure today and send it to the Senate. Senator Martin of Pennsylvania, senior Republican on the committee, offered the President's plan as a substitute for the Gore bill.

The cornerstone of the President's plan is a 21 billion-dollar bond issue to finance the bulk of spending on the nation's 40,000-mile interstate highway system.

Gore's Proposal.

The Gore bill would retain the present system of year-to-year federal allotments to the states on a matching basis, without any bond issues. However, he has suggested a cent hike in the present 2-cent a gallon United States gasoline tax to help finance the increased spending his measure proposes.

Before the session, Martin said in an interview "there is a good prospect that eventually Congress will pass the Eisenhower program."

Three Midwestern Governors proposed yesterday a "Missouri Basin" conference on the President's program.

Gov. Victor E. Anderson of Nebraska, Fred Hall of Kansas and Joe J. Foss of South Dakota said they were sounding out the Chief Executives of seven other states about the possibility of meeting in Omaha, May 17. All three have announced support of the Eisenhower plan.

An assistant to Anderson said the session will be open to "interested individuals and groups." He said the meeting chiefly would be for educational purposes, and that other highway financing plans also would be discussed.

Missouri Included. The other states in the basin are Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

Yesterday the Senate by a voice vote approved a bill appropriating $327,987,088 to finance the operation of various units of the Agriculture and Interior Department and some related agencies.

In another action, the Senate voted to delay installation of any new air navigation system for commercial and military aircraft pending investigation by a joint congressional committee.

Senator Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire) won approval of a resolution by voice vote after explaining that "several hundred million dollars worth" of air navigation equipment now installed in aircraft and at airfields was involved.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a compromise version of a bill to require the Civil Aeronautics Board to issue permanent certificates to 14 feeder airlines which at present operate under temporary certificates. The lines include Ozark Airlines.

HOUSE UNIT TO CHECK PUBLIC POWER REGULATION CHANGES

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—Representative William L. Dawson (Dem., Illinois) announced last night that a House subcommittee will investigate new Administration regulations which he charged are aimed at destroying the public power program.

Dawson said the Interior Department adopted without change new regulations submitted by attorneys for the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and other private utilities.

The new regulations repeal previous regulations under which the Government had a right to carry Federal power over the unused capacities of private utility lines located on Government-owned property. The change was made Aug. 11, 1954.

JAPAN BACK IN BLACK IN '54, WAS AIDED BY U.S. SPENDING

TOKYO, May 6 (AP)—Japan got back into the black in 1954, the annual report of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry showed today.

It was the first time since 1952, when huge American military outlays in the Korean war pulled Japan over the financial hump. In 1953 Japan sagged $200,000,000 into the red but last year the nation managed a trading profit of $172,000,000.

The ministry report showed that spending by American forces here again had a large part in boosting the nation into the black. However, exports rose to about $1,530,000,000 and imports were held to $1,360,000,000. American expenditures, tourist spending and the like ran to $802,000,000 to make up the difference and more.

CENTRAL AMERICANS SEEK ECONOMIC INTEGRATION

SAN SALVADOR, May 6 (AP)—A conference of economic ministers of leading Central American nations opened here yesterday to draft plans for the economic integration of the region. On the agenda were such problems as how best to encourage industrial development and train technological personnel. Also scheduled for intensive study was the question of how far the individual Central American governments should participate in long-range development projects, and what the role of private enterprise should be.

2 NEW EXPRESS BUS ROUTES TO BE OPENED

Kirkwood, Brentwood Lines to Begin Service Monday—Third Is Delayed.

Two new express bus routes from Kirkwood and Brentwood to downtown St. Louis will go into operation Monday but the start of a third express route from Jennings to downtown has been postponed, Public Service Co. announced today.

A time saving of 24 minutes for the round trip will be provided on the new Kirkwood express line and the new Brentwood express is expected to cut the round trip running time by 14 minutes, the company said.

Kirkwood express buses will leave Clay and Adams avenues every morning, Monday through Friday, at intervals of about 10 minutes from 6:45 to 8:07 a.m. Outbound trips will start at Fourth and Chestnut streets at intervals of six to 10 minutes between 4:40 and 5:40 p.m.

Route of Bus. Starting at Clay and Adams, the route will be east on Adams and Lockwood avenues to Big Bend boulevard, east and north on Big Bend to South Laclede Station road, east to Murdoch avenue and the Murdoch cutoff to Lansdowne avenue, east on Lansdowne to Chippewa street, east on Chippewa to Gravois avenue, east on Gravois to Twelfth street, north on Twelfth to Market street, east on Market to Fourth street, north on Fourth to Chestnut. The return route would go west on Chestnut to Twelfth, thence south on Twelfth, reversing the inbound route.

Most local stops will be made from Clay and Adams to Watson road and from Twelfth and Clark avenue to Fourth and Chestnut. Elsewhere along the route, stops will be made at principal cross streets such as Hampton avenue, Macklind avenue, Kingshighway, Morganford road, Grand boulevard and Jefferson and Chouteau avenues.

Brentwood express buses will leave High School drive and Wrenwood avenue in Brentwood, Monday through Friday, at intervals of from five to 10 minutes between 6:47 and 8:07 a.m. They will leave Fourth and Pine streets at intervals of five to 10 minutes between 4:40 and 5:50 p.m.

The new line will be consolidated with the present Forest Park express route between Dale and Boland avenues in Richmond Heights and downtown St. Louis. All buses on the consolidated line will carry a sign reading "Express Brentwood" and also a windshield card reading "Via Richmond Heights."

Starts at Intersection. Starting at High School drive and Wrenwood avenue, the express buses will go north to Eager road, east on Eager to Hanley road, south to Dale, east to Kraft avenue, north to Clayton avenue, east via Clayton, Oakland and Chouteau to Vandeventer avenue, north to Laclede avenue, east on Laclede and Market to Twelfth, north to Chestnut, east to Fourth and north to Pine.

Leaving Fourth and Pine, the buses will follow Pine to Thirteenth street, thence south to Market and reverse the inbound route to Brentwood boulevard, south on Brentwood to Wrenwood and west on Wrenwood to High School drive. On the outbound route, the loop now made at the end of the Forest Park express route—north on Boland from Dale to Harter and east on Harter back to Dale—will be eliminated. Forest Park local buses will continue to use the loop.

Opening of the Jennings express operation Monday from a starting point near Lucas-Hunt road and West Florissant avenue had to be postponed because the company was unable to obtain necessary operating permits for the use of certain streets in the Village of Country Club Hills, it was explained. It is hoped that a temporary terminal route may be established which will permit start of the service soon, the company said.

BRITAIN'S TOP ASTRONOMER SCOOPS AT 'FLYING SAUCERS'

TORONTO, May 6 (AP)—Sir Harold Spencer-Jones, England's astronomer royal and chief of Greenwich Observatory, said yesterday suggestions of flying saucers from other planets are bunk.

Spencer-Jones said in an interview he is convinced no life exists in the solar system except on earth and Mars. Only primitive vegetation exists on Mars, he said.

The astronomer also said it might be several centuries before a man could "satisfy his curiosity" in inter-planetary flight. "Space-travel enthusiasts pass over the problems very glibly," he said.

EUGENE LAVIGNE NEW HOUSING CHIEF IN COUNTY

Succeeds McKean—He Announces Policy Change on Financial Records.

Eugene E. LaVigne was elected chairman of the St. Louis County Housing Authority today at a meeting of authority commissioners with County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews. He replaces Lester S. McKean, who resigned yesterday.

In a prepared statement, LaVigne announced that County Auditor Clarence H. Hackmann would be requested to assist the authority auditor, Thomas J. Hargadon, in setting up a revised auditing system.

LaVigne, in answer to a question, said the authority intends to set up financial accounts that will clearly reflect purposes of expenditures made through each of the accounts, give a clearer picture of them and afford a more ready check on them.

The St. Louis county grand jury strongly criticized the authority's management, including its methods of bookkeeping, at the Jefferson Barracks Housing development in a report last Saturday.

"It is the intention of this board," LaVigne said, "to thoroughly look into all matters concerning the administration of the affairs of the authority and to correct at once any conditions which are not in conformance with sound fiscal and management policies."

The authority granted a request by Charles Blair, director and executive secretary of the authority, for a 90-day leave of absence because of ill health.

In addition to LaVigne, who is vice president in charge of manufacturing at A. S. Aloe Co., others present at the meeting were Walter C. Deem and Paul L. Krueger. A fourth member, William O'Connell, was absent.

The authority will meet Monday, LaVigne said, to consider problems of personnel "that must be determined at an early date."

McKean, who has been chairman of the authority since its establishment in October, 1952, said he resigned because of the question raised in the grand jury report as to whether he could serve on the authority's board while maintaining a home in St. Louis.

ACCEPTANCE OF IMMIGRANTS BY COMMUNITIES STRESSED

Foreign born persons, in order to give of their skills and talents effectively, must have acceptance in their adopted communities, Stuart Moore, educational director of International Institute, said yesterday.

Speaking before the Kiwanis Club at Hotel De Soto, he said that Americans are sometime provincial in accepting the foreign born, even though such immigrants have contributed to the strength of this country from its inception.

Moore explained the International Institute, the only agency here devoted exclusively to working with the foreign born, attempts to promote good citizenship and provide emotional security for immigrants through meetings with fellow countrymen, as well as other services.

BRITAIN TAKES FALKLANDS CLAIMS TO THE WORLD COURT

THE HAGUE, May 6 (AP)—Britain carried to the World Court today its dispute with Argentina and Chile over the Falkland Island dependencies, lying off the tip of South America.

It asked the court to recognize British sovereignty over "certain territories situated south of the Tropic of Cancer and to declare that Argentine and Chilean claims to these territories are contrary to international law.

Britain claims complete sovereignty over the dependencies, but Argentina and Chile have staked out rival claims. Most of the inhabitants are of British descent. The main commercial activities are sheep raising and whaling.

3 PCT. INTEREST ON FARM DISASTER LOANS FAVORED

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—A Senate Agriculture subcommittee today approved a bill which would set 3 per cent as the interest rate to be charged on emergency disaster loans to farmers.

Both Republicans and Democrats criticized Secretary of Agriculture Benson for boosting the rate on these loans from 3 to 5 per cent. They said the increase was not publicly announced when made Jan. 3. Spokesmen for three major farm organizations—the Farm Bureau, National Grange and Farmers Union—testified in favor of a bill to fix the rate at 3 per cent.

ZHUKOV IN EAST BERLIN FOR V-E DAY CELEBRATION

BERLIN, May 6 (UP)—Soviet Defense Minister Marshal G. K. Zhukov arrived in East Berlin by air today to take part in the Soviet sector's V-E day celebrations Sunday, the East Zone radio announced.

The announcement said Zhukov arrived with a Soviet government delegation headed by Soviet Deputy Premier M. G. Frolkin. It was the first time in nine years that Zhukov revisited the city his victorious armies conquered on May 2, 1945.

DRIVER WHO FLED POLICE IS FINED $200 IN 2 COURTS

Ric D. Smith, 5852 Bartmer avenue, who led police on an 18-mile chase at speeds up to 100 miles an hour through St. Louis and St. Charles counties early Wednesday, was fined a total of $200 in two courts in St. Charles today when he pleaded guilty of careless driving. He was fined $50 by St. Charles Police Judge Albert Ermeling and $150 by Magistrate Webster Karrenbrock. Smith, who operates a used automobile sales lot, surrendered to St. Charles police Thursday after outrunning police cars from six police departments.

Confessing it was "the most ridiculous thing I ever did," Smith, 23 years old, explained it all started when he sped away from a Breckenridge Hills police car at the urging of a friend with whom he had been drinking. Police cars from Clayton, St. Ann and the St. Louis county sheriff's office joined in the chase on U.S. Highway 40, but were unable to overtake him.

St. Charles police, alerted by radio, set up a road block near the west approach to the St. Charles bridge, but Smith drove around it. St. Charles county sheriff's deputies then pursued him for eight miles but lost him. Four other charges in St. Louis county are pending against him.

NUN WHO ESCAPED REDS ON TV SHOW DEPICTING FLIGHT

HOLLYWOOD, May 6 (AP)—A nun who in 1952 was sought by the Communists, made her television debut last night with Claudette Colbert.

Miss Colbert played the role of the nun who survived a harrowing ordeal as a refugee from the Iron Curtain in the CBS-TV Climax series — "The Deliverance of Sister Cecelia."

As a dramatic surprise, Sister

Cecelia appeared on the program with Miss Colbert and talked on American freedom.

The nun, a member of the Daughters of the Holy Savior order, took her first look at the script yesterday at a rehearsal and insisted on changes which were made.

"They played me up too much," she said.

Sister Cecelia is now assigned to Holy Redeemer College near Oakland, Calif. Her dramatic flight from the Communists, while dressed as a peasant woman, was the subject of a magazine article a year ago. She is a native of Czechoslovakia.

Cluck robbed Miss Margaret Kauffman, 1117 Hebert street, of $30 last May 21. When the case came up he pleaded not guilty and Judge Nangle on his own motion reduced the charge to assault to rob, a paroleable offense. Cluck was permitted to apply for a parole before he went to court to plead guilty to the lesser charge.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd filed a petition for a writ of prohibition in the Supreme Court to prevent Judge Nangle from reducing the charge against Cluck. Later the court ruled in favor of Dowd, stating that a circuit judge does not have the power to reduce charges, and the armed robbery charge against Cluck was reinstated.

Leland O. D. Cluck was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary yesterday on his plea of guilty of armed robbery before Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin. The charge against Cluck was reduced by Circuit Judge James F. Nangle and later reinstated by Missouri Supreme court order.

PERONISTS MOVE TO END OFFICIAL STATUS OF CHURCH

BUENOS AIRES, May 6 (UP)—A constitutional reform bill which would end the official church status of the Roman Catholic Church in Argentina was submitted to the Chamber of Deputies last night. It was sponsored by a group of 50 Peronist deputies representing the General Labor Confederation. The chamber was asked to approve the measure providing "constitutional reform" to cover

"everything related to the church and state." It provides for the convening of a constitutional reform convention to decide whether the church retains its present privileged status, whether there should be separation of church and state, or whether the church should be banished. Person raised these questions in his May day speech and said it was up to the people to decide. In the upper house, six senators yesterday introduced a bill to outlaw the teaching of Catholic religion in schools. Such instructions were recently suspended by a government decree.

UAW PROPOSES ANNUAL WAGE RESERVE FUNDS

Nearly Half Billion Dollars for Ford and General Motors.

DETROIT, May 6 (AP)—Nearly $500,000,000 in "reserve funds" to finance a guaranteed annual wage at Ford and General Motors is proposed by the CIO United Auto Workers.

Each fund—unofficially estimated at $135,000,000 for Ford and $335,000,000 for G.M.—would be created by company contributions of 4 per cent of the base payroll over a period of five years.

CIO President Walter Reuther's auto union made its proposal public for the first time yesterday. It was the first indication of what the union's guaranteed annual wage might cost.

Neither Ford nor G.M. commented.

The union, through a spokesman, said the proposal already has been made to the two companies.

How It Would Work.
(The United Press said a spokesman explained that during a layoff period the company concerned would draw from the fund to meet its guaranteed annual wage payments and the reserve fund would be replenished when production was resumed.)

(Although the union declined to put any dollar value on the total fund to be built up during the five-year period, it said the fund would be "about equal to what Ford and General Motors saved in the single year of 1954 as a result of elimination of the excess profit tax.")

Ford and G.M. are negotiating separately with the union over new contracts to replace the five-year agreements expiring within the next four weeks. Ford's expires June 1, G.M.'s June 7.

The negotiations, covering nearly 500,000 workers, are in recess until next week. In the interim the UAW's national Ford and G.M. councils will be meeting to hear negotiations reports and presumably plan future strategy.

Reuther, president of the UAW as well as the CIO, now has participated in both negotiations. He was absent from earlier sessions.

20 Pct. of Base Payroll.
The union proposed that the "reserve fund" at each company be equal to 20 per cent of the base payroll. It said five years of contributions should do this. Ford has 140,000 hourly-paid workers and G.M. 325,000. The present hourly pay averages between $2.05 and $2.10.

It was not stated what hourly pay rate the union has proposed. However, the union has said it wants a boost in base pay.

The union said the "base payroll" would be determined by the number of manhours worked in any one year multiplied by the average hourly pay.

The union did not go into technicalities of its proposal in publicizing the reserve fund proposition.

It did say that at no time under the plan would management have more than a "maximum liability" of 8 per cent of its base payroll. The union said that from its "employment experience" an 8 per cent figure would be rare.

During the five years of creating the funds, the company would meet the annual wage from both the reserve fund and regular operating expenses.

Charges Annual Wage Points to Controlled Economy.
READING, Pa., May 6 (UP)—The guaranteed annual wage would eventually result in a Government-controlled economy, former President Charles R. Sligh Jr. of the National Association of Manufacturers, said last night.

Sligh, chairman of the N.A.M.'s executive committee, told the twenty-first annual conference of the National Council of Industrial Management Clubs that such an economic measure would be "guaranteed pay for idleness" and "would mean the end of America as we know it."

He said the guaranteed annual wage sought by Walter Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers was "only the latest evidence of the strength that would derive from a union monopoly."

"I think that any company that signs up the guaranteed annual wage as proposed by Reuther is doing a disservice to the nation," he said.

Sligh, president of the Sligh Furniture Co. of Grand Rapids, Mich., told the 550 delegates that industry was fighting the proposal to "preserve the private enterprise system as we know it."

CHILE HALTS COPPER EXPORT PENDING NEW CONTROL BOARD
SANTIAGO, May 6 (UP)—A virtual embargo on copper exports was ordered by the government of Chile yesterday pending installation of a "Copper Department" created under new legislation.

It was estimated that exports will be suspended for two weeks and that some 15,000 tons of copper will be affected. Only the urgent needs of regular consumers will be supplied during the suspension.

The Copper Department will be directed by an 11-member committee, to be headed by the Minister of Mines. It will include two representatives of producing companies. It is "empowered to enter the world copper trade, authorize exports and imports, check on and fix prices, buy and sell copper and to assume the representation of the companies in the sale of all or part of their production."

NUMBER IN JOBS IN APRIL A RECORD FOR THAT MONTH

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—The number of employed persons in April rose to the highest level ever recorded for the month, the Government reported today. The number of employed in April was 61,700,000, an increase of 1,200,000 over March. Unemployment in April dropped by 200,000 to a level of 2,982,000, the Commerce and Labor Departments reported.

The April increase in employment was the second consecutive monthly increase following six months of decline. The report said it is especially significant that the number of factory jobs increased slightly in April, instead of taking its customary substantial dip.

The largest employment increases were in agriculture and construction and other activities which usually expand in springtime. Employment in transportation and public utilities industries declined because of strikes.

The report was based on a survey in the week of April 3-9.

STASSEN TELLS OF BASIC SHIFT IN AID FROM EUROPE

Explains New Program To Senators — More Defense for U.S. By Bolstering Asia.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Foreign Aid Administrator Harold E. Stassen said today that the Administration's proposed new $3,500,000,000 program "is a basic shift" away from Europe to other "critical areas."

He told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is considering President Eisenhower's new bill, that the National Security Council has determined that the $1,717,000,000 ticketed for military aid "will obtain more defense for the United States than would the same amount spent on United States military forces."

The emphasis in the program has been shifted to Asia from Europe, Stassen said, because that is where the "most immediate threats to world security are centered." He said nearly $1,500,000,000 in non-military aid is earmarked for Asia. Europe is not scheduled to get any economic aid from the United States during the year starting July 1.

Breakdown of Outlay.

The new program calls for $1,400,000,000 in planes, ships, guns, tanks and other military goods around the free world. Another $317,000,000 would provide "direct forces support" for nations with which the United States has defense agreements.

The balance of the $3,500,000,000 would be earmarked largely for various types of economic assistance.

Stassen emphasized that the program "is a basic shift... away from the highly developed and industrialized areas of the world toward other critical areas."

He told the Senators that economic recovery in Europe is "shining proof" of progress possible "under a system of free institutions and national self-determination."

Stassen, whose job as foreign aid chief ends June 30, said yesterday that reasonably adequate financing has been provided for the beginning of West Germany's rearmament. He said that an "important slice" of the $8,500,000,000 of unspent United States foreign aid money has been set aside for this purpose.

Stassen told a news conference that equipment for the West German Republic's armed forces, which will become part of the Western defense line, has already been stockpiled or ordered. It will start moving as soon as all the necessary approvals have been given, he said.

$2,700,000,000 Outlay in U.S.

(At his news conference yesterday Stassen said that $2,700,000,000 of the sum requested will be spent directly in the United States for commodities and services, the United Press said. He said the rest would be spent first abroad but would create resources which could eventually be spent in the United States trade.)

Senator Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, said today it was "just incredible" that President Eisenhower "did not know the views of John B. Hollister before selecting him to head the foreign aid program."

Mr. Eisenhower, who designated Hollister to supervise economic aid after July 1, told his news conference Wednesday he had no personal assurances that Hollister favored the Administration's program.

Senators Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, and Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, defended the selection, and Hollister himself told newsmen "I never would have taken the job if I had any intention of wrecking the program."

Hollister is a Cincinnati lawyer, a former member of Congress and a long-time associate of the late Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. He has been serving as executive director of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization.

Mr. Eisenhower named him Saturday to head the International Co-operation Administration, a new agency which will take over all non-military foreign aid next July 1. The selection was viewed in some quarters as an effort to reduce criticism of foreign aid by conservative Republicans.

Frightened French in Saigon Pressuring U.S. to Torpedo Diem, Getting Some Results

Collins, Other American Officials Bucking
Premier's Efforts to Oust Bao Dai — Patriotic Viet Namee Look to Washington for Support.

By KEYES BEECH

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright 1955.
SAIGON, South Viet Nam, May 6.

THE FRIGHTENED and angry French are bringing pressure on American authorities here to torpedo Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's week-old revolutionary government before it can gather steam.

What's more, they are getting an attentive ear. Instead of giving Diem's nationalist regime, an encouraging push, United States officials, including Ambassador J. Lawton Collins, are wringing their hands over legalities and bucking Diem's attempt to oust Viet Nam's playboy absentee chief of state Bao Dai.

Whether Collins' reflects Washington official policy isn't quite clear. That is only one of many things that are not clear in this explosive, suspicion-ridden capital which one American aptly described as "a basket of worms."

Anti-French feeling high. Anti-French feeling among the Viet Namee has reached a new and dangerous high since the Diem government charged the French military with helping the Binh Xuyen rebel forces last week. This feeling was stimulated by anti-French propaganda.

"They're looking at us with long knives in their eyes," complained a pretty French blonde, recalling the Viet Namee mass uprisings against the French population nine years ago. "It's all very well for you Americans to be anti-colonial," said a French officer. "You may be anti-French if you like. But remember that in the next few days you may have very little time to prove you aren't a Frenchman. To a Viet Namee all people with white skins and big noses look alike."

Critics of the French, while alarmed by the intensity of anti-French feeling, point out that the French invited violent reaction by covertly aiding the Binh Xuyen. Nor was the situation helped when the French moved 15,000 more troops into the Saigon area in the fighting between government troops and rebels.

Despite French fears, danger of Viet Namee uprisings appears to be lessening. Diem yesterday ordered an end to anti-French propaganda in line with a more moderate policy.

Looking to Washington. What many patriotic Viet Namee, and not a few Americans here, would like to hear from Washington is a forceful declaration reaffirming American support of Viet Namee national aspirations and demanding an end to French colonialism.

What they are getting is dead silence. "Why are you Americans so afraid of revolution?" asked an American-educated Viet Namee youth. "I believe that's the way your country got its independence. And you had to have a civil war before you could be united."

One observer likened the present American attitude toward South Viet Nam to trying to ride two horses—one French colonialism, the other Viet Namee nationalism.

"That policy led to Geneva and the partition of Viet Nam and there's no reason to believe it will do any better now," he declared.

"Some day soon America must make up its mind between the French and the Viet Namee. The French are through here, anyway, although they won't admit it, so you might as well support Viet Nam."

POWELL TERMS FRENCH TUNISIAN STATUS EXPLOSIVE

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Representative Powell (Dem., New York, unofficial United States observer at the recent Bandung conference, said yesterday the situation in French North Africa colonies is "absolutely explosive."

He told an Overseas Writers luncheon that Arab nation delegates at the Bandung meeting pledged $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 to buy arms and ammunition for delivery to Arab nationalists in French Tunisia within the next 60 days if no settlement is reached.

The New York Negro pastor and writer said he had other "urgent" information to give President Eisenhower if a meeting could be arranged next week.

Powell also called Prime Minister Nehru of India the "big loser" at the conference. He said Nehru seemed jumpy, nervous and sensitive and "acted like he was definitely ill."

"I don't think Nehru can continue long as leader of the Indian people," he added. He said Nehru and his constant companion, Krishna Menon, sided with Communist China Premier Chou En-lai "because they were afraid of him."

W. German Production Hike. BONN, May 6 (AP)—West Germany announced today that its industrial production is 22 per cent higher than a year ago. The output of all its industries is 58 per cent higher than in 1951, the base year for post-war production.

PEARSON Pro-Monopoly Speech of Counsel Snags Inquiry on Big Business

mittee Are Amazed But Aid to Chairman Retains Post.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1955.)

WASHINGTON.

IT HAS NOW been four months since the Democratic Senate convened with a big blare of trumpets about probing monopoly. Here is what happened when the Senate antimonopoly committee under Chairman Harley Kilgore of West Virginia got down to work on April 26 at 2 p.m.

As the Senators sat down, someone handed them a speech made at the University of Michigan law school by Joseph W. Burns, the man who had been picked by Senator Kilgore to be counsel of the investigating committee. Senators took a fast look and were flabbergasted.

"It looks as if our counsel is even to the right of Attorney General Brownell," remarked Senator Kefauver of Tennessee. Senator Tom Hennings of Missouri agreed. So did Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, the veteran trust-buster. Senator Bill Langer, North Dakota Republican, rubbed his eyes in amazement.

Burns, the man supposed to investigate monopoly, had delivered an attack on the anti-trust laws. He stated that lawyers owed it to their clients to secure favorable revisions of the anti-trust laws. He recommended virtual repeal of the Robinson-Patman Act, proposed ending the treble damage and criminal provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and made the statement that the Supreme Court had "no authority to upset the entire economy of the country. . . . In declaring invalid the freight equalization or basing-point price system."

"I am terribly upset," confessed Chairman Kilgore, after reading the speech of the man he had picked to defend small business. He had picked Burns as a favor to two old friends, Hugh Fulton and Rudolph Halley, each former counsel of the old Truman committee, both now Wall Street lawyers. Several of Kilgore's colleagues opposed Burns' appointment in the first place, but Kilgore insisted on appointing him.

GALLUP

Opinion 2 to 1 in Favor of U.S. Aiding Non-Red Nations in Asia

Among College-Educated Sentiment Is
3 to 1—Democrats and Republicans
See Eye-to-Eye on Issue.

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N.J., May 6.

THE PROPOSAL to send United States aid to the non-Communist countries in Asia has the support of a majority of the American public. A coast-to-coast survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion finds sentiment running 2-to-1 in favor.

Gallup Poll reporters, in interviews with a representative cross-section of adults, posed this question:

"Under the Marshall Plan, we sent aid to the non-Communist countries in Europe. Do you now think it would be a good idea or a poor idea to send such aid to the non-Communist countries in Asia?"

The vote:
Good idea — 56%
Poor idea — 27%
No opinion — 17%

The survey finds that the group most in favor of the proposal is made up of those who have attended college, where the margin of support is 3-to-1, that it is a good idea.

Throughout their political discussions and butters wouldn't melt in his mouth. Texas has 52 votes in the convention and Shivers will probably be the delegation chairman, so they all had to pretend they liked him just dandy. When he smiled, they smiled back.

Question of Bolters. Former National Chairman Mitchell is probably unwise to raise the issue, but he is speaking for a lot of Democrats when he continues to challenge the right of the Eisenhower bolters to come home without even saying sorry. That question inevitably will arise in the convention next year.

National strategists console themselves about the Texas problem by suggesting that Shivers would not be so cozy unless he thought the Democrats were again the winning side. They also mention the land scandals which now plague his administration. But they are whistling in the dark and they know it. The Governors told the Senators with whom they breakfasted that the troubles of the family farmers and the 3,000,000 still unemployed despite general prosperity are the exposed nerves of the Administration.

Govs. Harriman, Williams, Meyer of New Jersey, Freeman of Minnesota, Clement of Tennessee and Leader of Pennsylvania are in the group which argues that the trouble is not the President but Democratic inertia and failure to press the offensive. This group insists their states can tell the 1956 story, no matter what Washington says, and that all they need is more co-operation from the Congress.

One result of their arguments is that there will be a meeting next January, between Democratic Governors and congressional leaders to discuss the pre-campaign session of Congress.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Why REA Must Live

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your recent editorial, "A Proposal to Kill REA," was splendid, showing as it did your appreciation of the service of the Government to rural America.

There are, however, two further reasons, imposed by the act setting up REA, which make it imperative that REA be kept subject to congressional review and support rather than be made an independent agency as proposed by the Hoover Commission.

The REA Act imposed on the electric co-operatives (first) an obligation for "area coverage" which means that any resident or farm within a given co-op area is entitled to service at a uniform rate with all others therein.

This is the field the profit utilities have shied from, usually requiring a construction charge from around one hundred to several hundred dollars from the user away from their main lines.

The co-ops make no such charge. In the main, co-ops have honored this mandate. But in doing so they have built many extensions which in themselves will never pay out, the balance of the members in a given co-op absorbing those costs in their rates.

Second, the REA Act requires that loans be paid off. This puts a burden on the co-ops as against the profit utilities which generally re-finance their borrowings. If co-ops could do this, they could reduce rates to their members.

As it is, buying wholesale power in most instances from the profit utilities they yet provide service to their members at rates comparable to profit utility rural rates—and in some instances lower.

Rates, therefore, must be kept at least comparable profitably to profit utility rural rates if farmers are to use the service in their farming operations.

Recognizing these obligations imposed by the REA Act and the burden it places on co-ops, Congress provided that interest on loans should be at a figure approximating the average cost of Government borrowings.

From inception to June 30, 1954, there has been a net profit of $47,394,241 from REA lending operations (Report of the REA Administrator).

Administrative expenses have been $82,455,189, a net investment by the Government averaging some $1,750,000 annually over the 20 years, in promoting the general economy of the country through the tremendous market created for electrical supplies and equipment, additional profits to the profit utilities supplying wholesale power, and to the equalizing of living conditions on the farm with the city.

And this investment has been largely if not completely returned to the Government through increased income taxes, from manufacturing through additional profits, and labor through added employment.

WILLIAM M. PLANERT.

Unity, Ill.

As to Beer and Baseball

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

After reading, for years, the outstanding editorials for which the Post-Dispatch has been noted, I am greatly disappointed in "There Ought to Be a Law," dealing with beer and baseball, which would hardly have been worthy of the average college freshman.

J. WILSON CRICHLAW.

Assistant Secretary, Methodist Board of Pensions.

Kind Word From California

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It's been a week now since we have been receiving the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and may we say we are extremely happy to have this breath of fresh air come to us in southern California.

We read the critical letter from Irene and Charles Meyer of Ferguson, Mo., which you published April 26.

What irony—not one major daily newspaper in all of California with a Democratic voice—no bipartisan attitude; just a one-sided Republican press. May we suggest that the Meyers write to Long Beach or Los Angeles if they want Republican propaganda.

HELEN and ALLAN POTEPA.

Lakewood, Calif.

Carelessness in a Few

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The traffic commissioner is doing a splendid job in conducting the flow of vehicles and pedestrians through our downtown streets.

By adopting a system which has been successfully used for a long time in other cities, we are making much needed progress in traffic control. This system permits pedestrians to freely cross several downtown intersections without danger from automobiles.

With the coming of the new system one may have thought that the policemen who had been on duty at those corners would have been assigned to other parts of the city, where there is also a great need for orderly flow of traffic. But this could not be done because of a few thoughtless pedestrians.

What kind of citizen is it, who needs a uniformed policeman on duty to explain that when the signal lights flash Don't Walk, it means, do not cross the street at this time?

EDWARD B. MITCHELL.

'No' on the Income Tax

Under present circumstances it is absurd to pretend that increasing Missouri income tax rates would be more equitable than increasing the sales tax.

This was the pretext on which the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments substituted a 2 per cent additional income tax for the higher sales tax proposed by the State Senate to finance the school "foundation" plan of state aid.

Under this "equitable" tax plan, the largest proportionate increases would be levied in the lowest income brackets. Even if the increases were more fairly distributed, however, they would still involve a gross injustice.

So long as 100,000 or more taxpayers evade the state income tax altogether—and so long as the state neglects to collect it at the source by payroll deduction—any increase in rates would mean doubling or tripling the burden on the conscientious while giving the tax dodgers a continued free ride.

Who says this is equitable?

We hope the House will defeat not only the income tax increase, but the sales tax increase as well. With all due respect to Senator C. R. Hawkins and other sincere supporters of the school "foundation" program which, in their view, makes a tax increase necessary, we believe the House should give weight to these considerations:

(1) State school aid is already high.

Even without the "foundation" plan, legislation already passed by both houses would increase state grants under existing taxes by $5,000,000 a year to a total of $51,000,000. This is more than a 10 per cent increase over 1954. In the past decade, state school aid has virtually doubled. More increases may be needed in the future, but no critical emergency demands an immediate increase of $22,000,000 instead of $5,000,000.

(2) The primary aim of state school aid can be accomplished without a $22,000,000 increase right now.

The "foundation" program seeks to insure that every school district shall have at least $185 per pupil in operating funds. But only one-fifth of state grants under this plan would go into aiding weak districts. The other four-fifths would be available to all districts, rich and poor alike. Spreading the benefits lavishly around may be good politics, but it is not equalization—which should be the primary goal of state aid.

(3) Before state taxes are increased to finance greater state aid, local taxpayers should pay their fair share of school support.

The Hawkins committee plan tries to carry out this principle by requiring all districts to levy at least $1 on $100 of assessed property valuation. But assessments still vary widely from county to county, so that a $1 tax does not represent the same contribution in all districts. In addition to specifying a minimum levy, the state should specify a minimum assessment—such as the 30 per cent of true value which the State Tax Commission is trying to enforce.

In our judgment, these considerations call for revision of the "foundation" school program and for postponement of any tax increases.

Before submitting a tax increase to referendum this year or next, the Legislature should consider getting up a joint committee to study, not just schools, but all state responsibilities (especially in the welfare field) and all sources of state revenue available to meet those obligations.

Conceivably such a study might show a need for new taxes. But as of now the case for a higher income tax or a higher sales tax has not been made.

The AFL on Welfare Funds

With commendable vigor the executive board of the American Federation of Labor has issued a code of ethics to protect welfare funds. It also has suggested specific federal and state legislation for the same purpose. In doing so, the board was acting on the instructions of last year's Los Angeles A.F.L. convention.

It was to be expected that men in charge of such funds would guard them vigilantly, make regular and honest financial reports and resist temptations to use the funds or their trusteeship for improper personal gain. No doubt most trustees followed this standard, but there were others who accepted "honorariums" from insurance companies for giving them the union's business and in other ways abused their trust.

The new code is sufficiently detailed to prevent such conduct—if enforced. Violations might involve a penalty as severe as expulsion of a union from the federation, a power rather ineffectually exercised in the past. Autonomous A.F.L. unions on occasion have shown themselves more powerful than the federation. C.I.O. authority has been more effective in this respect. So it will be interesting to see if this firmer disciplinary power is carried over into the combination of the two organizations.

What showed that the A.F.L. executive board meant business was its proposal of legislative safeguards. These are worth serious consideration in Congress and in the various states. But even without such outside surveillance, organizations created solely for the welfare of their members ought to be able to administer funds which belong to their members.

Next Objective

A major goal in the diplomacy of the United States and its allies was achieved with the granting of sovereignty to West Germany and the official ending of a decade of military occupation.

But no German streets were draped with bunting and no bands played. To some extent this was indicative of the gradual relaxation of authority by the occupying powers. The day brought no dramatic climax. But it was also a reminder that to the Germans this is only a half-way step to their goal: reunification of the East Zone with the West. And the second step looks more difficult than the first.

The Adenauer government did not leave this objective behind the wings even for a day. In the proclamation on its independence, the Bonn regime declared it would "never rest" until East Germans are peacefully brought into a single state.

Perhaps this has become less difficult than it seemed only a few months ago. As far as it goes, Russia's new readiness to work out an Austrian treaty is hopeful. This change seemed more apparent than real when the Russians came up with proposals for the return of Iron Curtain refugees. But it took only a telephone call to Moscow to allow the Russian ambassador to drop this plan as well as a Soviet-suggested limit on Austrian armed forces. Considering Russia's record of stubborn stalling, this looks almost like a diplomatic miracle.

But even if this new alacrity carries through to the actual signing of an Austrian treaty, it seems overly optimistic to expect a similar attitude toward German reunification. After all, as Walter Lippmann says, Austria was never divided.

It will take time to create a German army, and Russia almost certainly will use that time in an effort to keep it from being created. Thus Western statesmanship must be ready for a variety of propositions, direct and indirect, which Moscow may make to Bonn.

The most heartening factor in this situation is that the West German government is democratic, libertarian and Western. This is not weakened by its lament for the East Germans: "The joy of our restored freedom is clouded so long as this freedom remains denied to you."

But there how is the No. 1 issue of continental politics.

Troops for Formosa

If the United States can persuade Chiang Kai-shek to accept a cease-fire by agreeing to base a token force of American troops on Formosa, the exchange might well be worth while.

President Eisenhower's careful replies to questions at his news conference left open the possibility that such a transaction is being considered. Adm. Radford strengthened the possibility when, after reporting to the President on his recent mission, he told newsmen that the United States Military Assistance Group already on Formosa probably will be enlarged.

The American commitment to defend Formosa would not be changed by a decision to send a token force of troops. The commitment is firmly embedded, not only in our treaty with Chiang, but in repeated public pronouncements and in the situation of Formosa as former enemy territory whose final disposition awaits a peace settlement.

Sending troops to bolster Chiang's morale would not in itself, then, create a new obligation. It would only recognize an obligation already contracted.

Whether the move would actually bolster the morale of Chiang's forces may be doubted. The sources of deterioration on Formosa may lie too deep to be affected by such a gesture. But if Chiang and the Americans who deal with him think otherwise, and if he can really be pinned down to a cease-fire by this means, the price is probably worth paying.

One basic fact about Formosa, however, should not be lost sight of. This is the fact that its ultimate and permanent status may have to be decided, not by the United States alone, but by international agreement, in or out of the United Nations.

Any troop assignment ought, therefore, to be clearly labeled as temporary. The United States has a clear right to defend Formosa from forcible seizure during the present period of its unsettled status, but some day our position may give way to the superior claims of an international settlement, and the door to such a settlement should be kept open.

When Chiang was persuaded to abandon the Tachen islands, he was apparently assured by American representatives that he would not be required to abandon Quemoy and Matsu. Now that our Government is trying to eliminate those islands as sources of conflict, its hands are tied to some extent by that earlier commitment. Great care should be taken to avoid similarly tying American hands on the long-range future of Formosa.

A Matter of Preference

In one of the British weeklies—to be completely frank about it, in The Economist—we have encountered a chaste little advertisement which states:

THE CIRCLE OF WINE TASTERS
(President: T. A. Layton) can take further Members for the Summer Series of Wine (with tasting) Lectures.
Details from: etc., etc.

Without going as far as London, could we enroll in a more or less similar Summer Series of Wine (without lecturing) Tastings?

The Dwyer Salary Bill

The Democratic-controlled Missouri House has passed a bill which would provide a $4000 annual salary increase for the St. Louis City Treasurer, an elective office now held by the Chairman of the Democratic City Committee, John J. Dwyer. The measure is objectionable on several counts, and deserves to be killed in the Senate.

First, in lifting the Treasurer's salary the bill would create a clear inequity in compensation between the Treasurer and all other elected officials in the "county" layer of St. Louis government. Since all of these jobs are of roughly comparable importance, the bill would violate the principle of equal compensation for equal work and responsibility.

Second, the increase would not be based on the Treasurer's principal duty, but on a secondary one, that of parking meter supervisor. The Treasurer's current base pay is $8000; he gets an extra $2000 for the parking meter "supervision." If the parking meter job is worth an additional $4000—making $9000 in all—it ought to be a full-time position. If it is a full-time job, then the Treasurer would be a dual officeholder, and that is not in the public interest.

Third, the Treasurer's total compensation as a result of the measure would be $14,000. That is more than the Mayor receives. The Mayor and every other employee and official of the municipal government, from whose till the Treasurer's salary would be paid, is limited by the City Charter to $10,000 a year. So long as that Charter limitation remains in effect no officer in the city's "county" layer of government ought to get a penny more.

About the only thing that can be said for the measure is that it is faithful to the constitutional prohibition against raising the salary of an elected official during his term of office. The proposal would not take effect until after the expiration of the Treasurer's current term. Unhappily, that one good point is heavily outweighed by the bill's several bad features.

Speaking of Bond Issues

Los Angeles voters have approved a school bond issue to end all school bond issues. It ran to $133,000,000—which is some $5,000,000 more than St. Louisans are being asked to borrow for both schools and municipal improvements.

What is more, the Los Angeles bond issue was approved not by slim majorities but overwhelmingly. For example, a $45,000,000 elementary school item carried by eight to one. A $74,000,000 proposition for high schools was authorized by better than seven to one. And a $14,000,000 junior college proposal won by more than five to one.

The total proposed for school purposes in St. Louis is a mere $16,393,500. But the municipal improvements proposal here totals $110,639,000, and even in Los Angeles that would be a lot of money. All that is necessary for the St. Louis school and municipal building program to begin is a two-to-one ratio of Yes votes May 26. Progressive citizens will not object, though, if the favorable ratio approaches the Los Angeles figures.

LONG TIME NO MOVE

An Interview with Chou En-lai

Between Book Ends

The Mirror of Public Opinion

American correspondent is first foreigner to interview Red China's Premier since Chinese Revolution; Chou En-lai explains position on talks with United States omitting Nationalists; says tension can be relaxed; writer asked to "play it straight."

From a Dispatch by Sam Jaffe to The Nation

This exclusive interview with Chou En-lai—the first granted to a foreign journalist by the Premier of the People's Republic of China since the Chinese Revolution—was obtained by The Nation's special correspondent, who also covered the Bandung conference for us. Mr. Jaffe, formerly on the foreign staff of Time-Life magazines, has spent several years in the Far East.—The Nation.

BANDUNG.

Red China's Premier Chou En-lai spoke to me for 10 minutes answering questions put through an interpreter. Question: Why did the Premier insert the statement regarding his government's determination to liberate Taiwan (Formosa) in his closing speech at the Asian-African Conference?

Answer: The liberation of Taiwan is China's internal affair. The Chinese people have the right to make the demand and to put it into effect. As to the tension in the Taiwan area, it has been caused by the United States' intervention. This is an international question. In order to relax the tension in the Taiwan area China proposes that China and the United States sit down and enter into negotiations in order to seek a solution to this question.

Question: Would the People's Republic of China be willing to sit down with the United States Government as well as the Nationalists to discuss the Taiwan question?

Answer: These are two entirely different matters. The relations between China and the United States constitute an international question. The relations between the People's Republic of China and Chiang Kai-shek are a question of internal affairs. These two matters should not be mixed.

Question: Does the Premier think the present situation in the Taiwan area dangerous enough to cause a third world war?

Answer: In the present situation in the Taiwan area there does exist the crisis of a new international war. However, whether the present situation will lead to a world war depends on the United States, because there is no war at present between China and the United States. As to the desire of the Chinese people, it has been stated in the statement issued on April 23.

(On April 23, in the course of the Bandung conference, Premier Chou En-lai issued the following statement to the press: "The Chinese people are friendly to the American people. The Chinese people do not want to have a war with the United States of America. The Chinese Government is willing to sit down and enter into negotiations with the United States Government to discuss the question of relaxing tension in the Taiwan area.")

The background of my interview was as follows:

At two minutes past 10 p.m. on April 25 I drove in a pouring rain to Chou En-lai's villa for the interview. As my car entered the heavily guarded driveway, a Chinese security officer asked how many were in it and then motioned the car toward the house. I was ushered into the drawing-room and asked to take a seat on a sofa by Chou Chang-pu, known as "Mr. Pu" (pronounced Poo), personal secretary and interpreter to Chou En-lai. I was told that I would be given only 10 minutes to ask questions.

As I sat down, Chou En-lai entered, dressed in a light blue business suit, white shirt, blue tie and brown shoes. Accompanying him was Mr. Kang Mao-chao, who was acting as press aide to the Chinese delegation during the conference. Kang is attached to the Chinese embassy at New Delhi as cultural consul. On Chou En-lai's right sat Mr. Pu; I sat to his left. Chinese green tea and cigarettes were served during the interview.

The first question I put had to do with the condition of the American flyers and whether they would soon be released. Chou En-lai replied, "No comment," offering me an off-the-record statement.

As the interview started, I was told for the second time that it would last only 10 minutes. During the talk Chou En-lai kept looking at his watch. The interview ended exactly within the time allotted. During it the Premier's attitude remained pleasant, but he seemed quite anxious to finish. On several occasions he spoke English; several times he corrected himself as he answered.

The room in which we sat had a large picture of Mao Tse-tung on the wall. Also two Chinese paintings. A Chinese servant and members of the delegation kept running in and out. Chou En-lai stayed a few minutes beyond the end of our talk to make sure I had his answers correctly. Finally he stood up, shook hands with me, and departed behind drawn curtains.

I remained in the drawing-room with Messrs. Pu and Kang until 11:10 p.m. typing out all the questions and answers; these they read and checked. I left them a copy. I was told that this was the first time Chou En-lai had given an interview to a foreign journalist since the Chinese revolution. I was asked to play the interview "straight," since the future of journalistic relations between China and other countries depended on my story.

Nevada Loses a Gamble With Utopia

From the Parsons (Kan.) Sun

Nevada long has paraded itself before the nation as a state without taxes, a sort of Utopia for persons wishing to flee the grasping hand of government.

The Western state didn't do it with mirrors, but with legalized gambling. It is a rip-roaring state, offering all sorts of games of chance to visiting sports and local gentry 24 hours a day. The state cuts itself in for part of the take and uses the proceeds to supplant taxes, or so the story runs. But like most good stories, it has come to an end. In this case, an unhappy end.

Beginning July 1, Nevada will become the thirty-fifth state in the union to levy a sales tax. The rate will be 2 per cent. Nevada had a theory about a substitute for taxes, but obviously has found it doesn't work. Not only that; it is discovering that legalized gambling brought all sorts of characters to the state and many of them are not exactly first-class citizens.

Big-time racketeers have taken over the gambling and, as a consequence, dictate policies of government now because of its reliance upon that source of revenue. Problems of government are piling up. A visiting writer found social welfare matters ballooning into a king-sized headache, as an example.

Nevada is a tax-free haven no longer. With both a sales tax and legalized gambling, the state will clip tourists and its own citizens coming and going in the future. It needs a new slogan. The old one must be discarded.

Those Lawless Days Out West

FROM GUN TO GAVEL, THE COURTHOUSE RECOLLECTIONS OF JAMES MATHER OF OKLAHOMA, as told to Marshall Heath. (William Morris & Co., 244 pp., $4.)

James Mather started the practice of law in Ardmore in 1896 when Oklahoma Territory was still wild and lawless with far-reaching stretches of open country almost entirely unprotected by legal authority. It was a haven for outlaws and fugitives from justice with its mountain fastnesses for hiding places and its rolling prairies as their parade grounds. Law practice in such a territory was by necessity a criminal practice and the great bulk of cases to come before the courts were murder cases.

Because of his ability it was not long before Mather was induced to become city attorney for Ardmore and when statehood was attained he was elected the first county attorney for Carter county. He began his job with 322 murder cases among the many on the docket.

One of his strangest cases was not a murder case, however. It was the case of Tim Inland, the tall, black-haired village blacksmith who disappeared leaving a wife and two children. Sometime later his red-headed, clean-shaven nephew arrived in town. Everyone said that except for the hair he was the spitting image of the blacksmith. He wooed and won Sally Gray, the belle of the town, and after a big church wedding the couple moved to another town.

About that time the blacksmith's wife began to suspect that Tim and the nephew were one and the same person. Then it was reported that Tim had been drowned and Sally and the nephew of Tim disappeared from the neighborhood. Years later Mrs. Inland found that Tim and Sally were living in Lexington, Ky., and were considered a fine, upstanding couple. She had long ago given Tim up for dead and had no desire to prosecute.

There are many more true stories told by this old-timer who seems to have had a profound belief in justice. Some are humorous, some are tragic. There are tales of murderers apprehended—and some who went free; innocent men framed—and some who were cleared. All of the strange, sinister, hilarious and surprising episodes that men are capable of are fascinatingly told by Mr. Mather, who helped bring law and order to a land that had once been an outlaw's paradise.

Uneven Collection of Poems

THE SHIELD OF ACHILLES, by W. H. Auden. (Random House, 84 pp., $3.)

This is an uneven collection of poems, a few of which represent Auden at his best, some of which seem one-handed finger exercises played by a master musician who is typing a letter to a friend with his other hand.

Auden's extraordinary youthful facility with verse has developed into a relaxation which at its worst sags into bad prose, or into such "cute" expressions as "our First Dad," "our dear old bag of a democracy," and "ever so comfy." At its best the same offhandedness results in a poetry which is simple and open, yet which speaks with the authority of all the complex experience and perception that have been worked through in order to arrive at simplicity.

Though one may carp at a collection so uncritical that it tosses together the good and the bad, the important and the trivial, one may delight in the poet whose wit and satire still turn as sharply upon his own foibles and follies as upon those of the rest of the world.

Quick German Settlement Impossible

ALTHOUGH THE WESTERN ALLIES, including Western Germany, are committed to negotiation with Moscow, it is, I believe, true to say that they have not yet worked out an agreed German policy. Working it out is no longer a matter of reaching an agreement in London, Paris and Washington.

It is more than that the three will and will not agree to when they meet Mr. Molotov. The shape of the problem has now changed radically. Henceforth, and increasingly, the question is how the Western Allies are going to protect their vital European interests as the Germans and the Soviet Union assume the initiative in the negotiation of an eventual peace treaty.

This is the developing situation, and in preparing for the coming conference with the Russians we have to bear it in mind. If the Westerners do not convince the Germans that they are able to engage in serious negotiations pointing toward German unification, the next phase will be some kind of direct negotiation between Bonn and Moscow.

The Example of Austria.

Indeed, it is not at all improbable that this is the objective of Soviet diplomacy, and that Mr. Molotov will not be at all unhappy if the forthcoming four-power negotiations fail.

For if the conference can be made to fail on issues where the strategic interests of the West are concerned, and that Mr. Molotov will not be at all unhappy if the forthcoming four-power negotiations fail.

It is in this sense primarily, I would suppose, that the Austrian example is significant for Germany. Apart from that, it is jumping to an unwarranted conclusion, which is to be sure the Soviet press has encouraged, that the Austrian pattern can be applied to Germany.

It cannot be. The differences between the German and the Austrian problem are radical. On several important counts the Austrian formula does not fit the German problem at all.

One Land, One Regime.

There has never been but one Austrian government, and that government is legally elected and its legitimacy is unchallenged by any Austrian. Although there are zones of occupation, Austria has never in the German manner been partitioned into two states with two antagonistically different social systems.

Vienna, unlike Berlin, has remained the capital of the whole country. Moreover, and by no means least, Austria has not been dismembered, its frontiers are unchanged.

These conditions which are present in Austria are the elemental conditions of independence — to have one legitimate government within legitimate frontiers. The essence of the German problem is that these elemental conditions do not exist, and have still to be brought into being.

The critical questions which have to be answered either by four-power agreement, or by some other form of negotiation, are how one legitimate government can be created in place of WASHINGTON. The two present German governments, and what are to be the internationally recognized frontiers within which Germany is to be reunited.

It is hard to see how at the present time these questions can be settled by four-power agreement. For even if the Soviets were willing to accept our condition of free elections, and if we were willing to accept their condition of a Germany which is neutral as respects its military alliances, we could still not afford to withdraw the Western forces from Germany as long as there is no settlement of the Eastern frontier which promises to be durable.

German-Soviet Accord.

It may be awkward to talk about these things now. But they are crucial and had better be brought into the light of day. The Western Allies cannot withdraw their armies from Germany if that means that they are leaving a sovereign and united German government to negotiate with the Soviet Union on a revision of the Potsdam frontier.

For that could lead only too naturally and readily to the nightmare of nightmares—that is to say to another German-Russian alliance, based once again on a revision of Polish territory.

Now it is most probable that eventually the Soviet Union hopes to strike such a bargain with a united Germany. But it would be astonishing if they were prepared now to make any such big concessions involving the territory occupied by the Poles.

A Matter of Years.

They would be risking very much when for them so much was still uncertain and incalculable. They would be giving up their military grip on Eastern Germany, and they would be jeopardizing their solidarity with Poland by affronting Polish, national sentiment.

Yet they would not know what kind of German government would in fact emerge from the boiling cauldron of an election. So it is hard to see how they can negotiate a final settlement of the Eastern frontier until a united German government exists.

In the light of all this it would be wise, I think, if we established the general idea that the reunification of Germany, the evacuation of German territory, and the fixing of permanent German frontiers are not something that can be achieved now by four-power agreement or even if everyone were more or less disposed to agree.

The solution of the German problem is by its very nature a process requiring almost certainly some years to mature. It is not something that can be agreed to and can be completed in one diplomatic action.

If that is correct, then we should be ready with specific and flexible proposals all looking toward eventual reunification, all recognizing that the process of unification cannot be completed by a military evacuation until the thorny question of the German frontiers has been settled.

MUSEUM DISPLAYS NEWLY ACQUIRED BUST BY COYSEVOX

A newly-acquired marble bust by the French sculptor Charles Antoine Coysevox was on display at the City Art Museum today. It is a gift of Paul Rosenberg, New York art dealer.

It is a sculpture of Madame du Vaucluse, who is believed to have been a member of the court circle of King Louis XIV, patron of Coysevox, who lived from 1640 to 1720.

William Eisendrath Jr., acting director of the museum, said Coysevox was a devotee of classicism, with high technical ability and a lively sense of beauty. The sculptor's works are in the Louvre, Palace of Versailles, Tuilleries gardens and Place de la Concorde in Paris.

MORE MODERATE SUMMERS, COLDER WINTERS PREDICTED

More moderate summers and colder winters will be experienced for the next few years, Edward M. Brooks, associate professor of geophysics at St. Louis University, predicted last night on the basis of his studies of sun spot frequency.

Addressing the annual dinner meeting of the university's chemistry alumni at Anheuser-Busch Brewery, Prof. Brooks said a correlation of the history of sun spots and weather data for the last 115 years showed that when sun spots are on the increase there is a general lowering of temperatures.

Noting through his telescope last week a number of the disturbances on the sun's surface after an absence of several months, he predicted this summer and those to follow in the customary 11-year sun spot cycle would be more moderate than those of the last three years. The winters will be colder, he said.

TRUMAN LIBRARY REDESIGNED, NOW SEMI-CIRCULAR

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—A new architectural design for the Harry S. Truman Library was made public yesterday.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the $1,750,000 structure will be held at Independence, Mo., Sunday, the former President's seventy-first birthday.

The new drawing, released by the Harry S. Truman Library, Inc., shows the structure will be semi-circular around a patio, in contrast to the original T-shaped building designed for a site on the Truman farm at Grandview, Mo.

Built in contemporary style on a knoll in Slover Park, Independence, five blocks from the Truman home, the library will cover 35,000 square feet. It will have an archives section for more than 3,500,000 papers and 10,000 books in the Truman collection, plus a museum gallery for the display of films and for lectures.

It will have the office and work space for the archives staff and for visiting scholars and students, and an office for the former President.

ST. LOUIS U. SOCIAL SERVICE PRIZE WON BY MOTHER GILDA

The 1955 St. Louis University School of Social Service award for outstanding study and field work was presented last night to Mother Gilda Gillan of the Helpers of the Holy Souls.

She received the $100 award at the supervisors' banquet of the School of Social Service at the Edgewater Club, 500 South Broadway. It was given by the Catholic Social Workers Guild of Kansas City, Mo.

Mother Gilda will receive the degree of master of social work on June 7. She lives at 4010 Washington boulevard.

ASSAILS U.S. SUPPORT OF COLONIAL POWERS

Negro Educator, 'Speaking Here, Says It Hurts Fight Against Reds.

United States support of colonial powers, such as France, in Africa, is the United States' greatest handicap in combating Communism, Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln (Pa.) University and frequent traveler in Africa, said here last night.

The Negro educator spoke before the tenth annual banquet of Homer G. Phillips Hospital in Africa, said here last night.

"The great curse of slavery also is in colonialism," he declared.

Predicting that Africa is on "the threshold of a new day," Bond urged the United States to direct its sympathies to that continent, and not Asia.

"The future destiny of the American people depends on the direction of that sympathy because Africa will increasingly be the storehouse of raw materials on which this industrial nation will depend," he said.

In urging support of Africans, he said, "Man there is still the natural man, similar in spirit to American pioneers. It is also a frontier land of great potentiality, the same as America."

"Africans have a great affection for America and their brothers here," he told the audience of more than 300 persons.

Reviewing race relations in Africa, Bond said they ranged from bitterness and hatred beyond hope of redemption, to West Africa, "where there is less race feeling than any place else in the world."

Pointing out that health conditions are among the greatest problems facing Africans, he told the medical organization that the "wonders of preventive medicine have never been shown better than in West Africa, where overpopulation is threatened due to medical progress."

ST. LOUIS SINFONETTA HERE FOR FIRST LOCAL CONCERT

The St. Louis Sinfonietta will play its first local concert tomorrow night at Sharron Emeth Temple, after 18 years of cross-country touring. The Sinfonietta is conducted by Paul Schreiber, former St. Louis Symphony violinist and former concert master of the Municipal Opera here.

The concert, beginning at 8:30 p.m., is presented as a community project by the Men's Club of the temple. There is no admission charge.

The program will include Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony, Mozart's "Serenade" Overture, Debussy's "Petite Suite," Bruch's "Violin Concerto in G Minor" and Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro for Harp." Christine Stavache, harpist and Kenneth Gordon, violinist, are featured soloists.

THINKS ALL DISCORD HAS BIOLOGICAL BASE

Educator Tells Nurses Women Hold Secrets That May Save Civilization.

Roots of human discord in the home, in industrial relations and in international relations are basically biological in nature, Dr. Raymond B. Allen, chancellor of the University of California at Los Angeles, said here last night.

He suggested the study of biology, anthropology and ecology of women in contemporary society is a matter of "profound significance" to the future of mankind.

Addressing the National League for Nursing in convention at Kiel Auditorium, Dr. Allen asserted women perhaps unknowingly hold secrets which may yet save civilization from what he termed extinction.

Tracing the background of women in history, Dr. Allen said: "She was the first teacher who understood so well the prophet, poet and priest of God who glorified and made sacred the individual human personality."

Picturing women in today's society, Dr. Allen pointed out fields of male endeavor in which women have become prominent. "There are more than 6000 women practicing law, about 12,000 in medicine, 7000 in engineering fields, 1000 architects and millions in Government service and in upper brackets of the business world," he said.

"Individual and collective security and freedom is within reach of all men who are stirred by love, hope and understanding, all of which derive their bases from women's beginning," Allen said.

About 5000 nurses, doctors and laymen attended the convention which closed this afternoon.

Miss Ruth B. Freeman, associate professor of public health administration at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, was elected president of the league today. She succeeds Miss Ruth Sleeper, director of the nursing school and nursing service at Massachusetts General Hospital. Miss Freeman will serve for two years.

On the Farm Price Bill.

This reporter has sat in news conference after news conference where efforts were made to draw out those two Democratic Presidents on bills before committees or actually on the floor.

Both declined, saying always that they could not discuss measures while they were under consideration, but must wait submission of them to the White House for approval or disapproval.

President Eisenhower exhibits no such inhibitions. For example, at his news conference this week he made a strong appeal for retention of the flexible farm law the Administration got through the last Congress.

This was while the House was in the midst of hot and furious debate on the Democratic bill to kill the flexible price supports and restore rigid price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

Nor did White House expression of opinion on pending legislation stop what that. Soon after the news conference, the President struck a blow for the bill to extend the reciprocal trade program in broadened form which was being debated in the Senate.

This was through a statement by his press secretary, James Hagerty, which described the measure as it came from the finance committee to the floor as "satisfactory" to the President.

It is not "satisfactory" to a number of Senators, more Republicans than Democrats; but the President thus put himself on record against changes they were proposing.

Nor was this intervention in hot fight over Capitol Hill the first by the President. It has been going on sporadically for some time. His procedure, however, is a sharp change from the attitude in the earlier phase of his Administration and a good part of the last Congress. He leaned over backward to keep himself completely away from the slightest appearance of telling Congress what to do.

To the point, in fact, where he was criticized for "lack of leadership" and implored by some of his well-wishers to exercise his power and prestige with Congress. This the President is now doing, though gently and courteously.

He still refrains from criticizing Congress as a body or individual members, as both of his predecessors often did. He merely expresses his own views rather positively, and lets it go at that. The method upon which his two Democratic predecessors relied chiefly was to exert pressures behind the scenes upon Congress to get what they wanted.

They kept plenty busy at that. The present Administration uses such tactics also, which are in fact almost routine with every

Greatest Derby Horse
Of All Time—Citation?

"CAN you name the all-time No. 1 Kentucky Derby winner?" was a question lightly tossed at us during a luncheon-table gabfest. . . And, of course, we could—with no guarantee attached. . . Imagine knowing all about all 80 Derbies in history.

Due to the long stretch of years since Aristides won the first Derby in 1875, and to the changes of every sort in racing conditions since then, it's impossible to find a common denominator that will serve as a yardstick.

Taking the easy way out we replied that to approximate an answer the best way would be to accept the eight Triple Crown winners as a basis for consideration.

With this idea as a springboard you at once jump to the conclusion that Citation, a Triple Crown winner, ought to have the honor on his wonderful record. . . He had outstanding class, he had speed and he set world records. . . He won the fabulous total of $709,000 plus in a single season and ended his career by becoming the world's first thoroughbred to win more than $1,000,000.

So far okay, but. In a race between horses that in past years have won the Triple Crown, all hypothetically at their best as of three years of age, would you pick Citation as a sure winner over—
SIR BARTON (1919), first winner of Triple Crown;
GALLANT FOX (1930), standard bearer and international champion;
OMAHA (1935), outstanding national and international champion;
WAR ADMIRAL, one of Man O' War's greatest sons;
WHIRLAWAY (1941), still holder of 15 camogie records;
COUNT FLEET (1943), son of one of the world's greatest sires of another, he set the mile record for two-year-olds in 1943;
ASSAULT (1946), who was a standard over the best in his time.

Why Not 'Old Bones'?

HO can be sure, racing being what it is, what would happen in such a field? . . . Because of his 18-K class opinion would probably favor Bull Lea's greatest offspring to win the "dream race."

But that doesn't end the No. 1 Derby horse problem. . . What are you going to do about "Old Bones" Exterminator, a Derby winner the year before Sir Barton, one whose record for long performance (8 years) over distances, carrying over 130 pounds many times—rate him with Citation?

In eight racing campaigns Old Bones won 50 races, was second and third 17 times each and won $252,996 in day of playmate and money compared to the fabulous payoffs of today. . . A great performer in the book of every hardboiled.

Other great Derby horses like Native Dancer, Twenty Grand and Zev take consideration. . . Man O' War? . . . Oh, yes—his owner didn't think the Derby was worth the trip west. . . He kept Big Red at home and won the Preakness and the Belmont and beat all the best Derby contenders of 1920 in other stakes features.

Black Gold Won the Most Glamorous Derby.

THERE have been many thrilling Derbies in this turf classic's long history, but that run in 1924 was unequalled for its glamorous finish and its interesting by-products.

It was won in a blanket finish of five horses, with the first four separated by a length overall. . . According to the official placing the chart showed Black Gold first by half length, . . . followed by a nose over Beau Butler, with Altwood fourth a nose ahead of Bracdale.

That was the order of the payoff too. . . But Post-Dispatch photos established that, in a day of photo-finish cameras, the third and fifth place horses were misplaced. . . The camera revealed the markings on the forefeet of the horse on the rail and on his jockey's cap and blouse, to be those of Bracdale. . . But the cashiers paid off on Beau Butler tickets.

Black Gold's victory broke most of the country's future books, at payoffs ranging from 40 to 1 down, with post odds of only 1.75 to 1.

BLACK GOLD's pedigree had a bar sinister in that his dam, Useful, was "short bred," although a winner on the bush tracks.

Still, Black Gold carried on to win three more derbies, only to break down a year or so later when he was destroyed. A monument to its memory now stands in Fair Grounds Park, New Orleans.

A by-product of the race produced this story: Bracdale's owner, Harry Sinclair, and E. R. Bradley, owner of Beau Butler, had a $5000 side wager, horse against horse. After the unofficial placing, Sinclair, so the story goes, demanded that Bradley pay the bet, despite the official faux pas. . . "You know you lost and so does your jockey," Sinclair charged. "Well, Harry, do you want me to make liars of the judges?" Bradley retorted, smiling. . . The solution: Both their checks were sent to charity.

Home Looks Even Better to Cards Than Virdon's Homer

They Limp Off Road To Meet Braves

By Jack Rice

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, May 6—The schedule, almost as efficient as the Dodgers are in shoving around the Cardinals, had the Redbirds spending most of their time rattling homeward today from a tour of the league.

It was not spectacular fun, either the tour or the rattling with a journey's-end prospect of a game tonight against Milwaukee at Busch Stadium. But at least there is a souvenir.

The souvenir is Bill Virdon, rookie centerfielder. He is hitting .400 and while a goodly number of those points are probably spring blooms that won't be around in September, Virdon has made many believers in him as a man here to stay and to star.

Red Schoendienst, not often caught volunteering opinions or forecasts, said of Virdon, "He's a ball player, that one. He's going to be one of the best."

New Yorkers, trying to think of something nice to say to Eddie Stanky after two games lost at Brooklyn, and lost in the manner to which the Cardinals have become accustomed there, found Virdon and his potential the best book on which to hang a compliment.

Better Late . . .

Virdon came late to the party. He missed the first game of the trip at Cincinnati and he was a late-inning sub for defensive purposes at Milwaukee. He was out a week with a virus. He was batting .400 with six hits in 15 times at bat, when he last played at St. Louis. Thirty times at bat, and 12 hits later he still is batting .400 he's seen most of the league, and the left-handed batter has seen some of the best left-handed pitchers and it is plain the education is taking well with him.

"The only park I had seen before was the Polo Grounds," said Virdon today, "I looked down into it from a taxi cab."

When he was Yankee property the club brought him to New York for treatment of an injury, and until the late lamented swing East that peeping glance at the Polo Grounds had been his only sight of the National League world outside Busch Stadium. He looked forward to the homecoming. Busch Stadium seems the park most likely to cater to his hitting.

Virdon is not beginning to plot a career as a pull hitter, however. That may arrive, but if it does, it will come naturally.

"When I try to concentrate on pulling that ball, it seems I get into a jerky swing," he said. He has hit to all fields.

Checkmate for Awhlie. Yesterday at Ebbets Field, Virdon made two good moves with a bat. He hit a home run over the right-field scoreboard in the fifth inning, against right-hander Clem Labine. That tied it at 3-3. With two out in the seventh and Wally Moon on first, Virdon hit a single to right. It advanced Moon to third base. It also was the Cards' fifth and final hit. The Dodgers took it from there, on a run without a hit in their eighth, 4-3.

Virdon couldn't suppress a spontaneous grin when the homer was mentioned. He was a trifle proud of the way that one took off quickly, but it seemed to occur to him that individual joy was not in order at the end of a four-victory, six-defeat trip. He did not drive to his rich uncle's funeral in a new car, he seemed to be the idea.

"Losing like this is bound to get a team down," he said, most gravely. "But maybe we can win a couple, pull one out of the fire, and get going. This team has it."

It's a thought to be encouraged, anyway. One of it's best encouragements could be Virdon, the young man from West Plains, Mo., who got his chance to right in the same place he got his uniform number. He was in the minor league player's phase of the deal that sent Enos Slaughter to the Yankees.

"I dunno," said a Cardinal. "Is that legal? Well it is for them." He walked away, and grinned.

Gordon Jones is scheduled to pitch tonight in the series opener with Milwaukee. Tom Poholsky is scheduled to make his second start, Saturday night. Harvey Haddix, a loser for the third time yesterday, is to start Sunday.

Haddix was not without distinction. He's the first left-hander to be party to a decision, win or lose, against the Dodgers, and their preponderance of right-hand power this season. Brooklyn has 18 victories in 20 games.

The Dodgers' early foot may make them the only logical contenders for Nashua.

Brooklyn Starter Tom LaSorda made three wild pitches in the first inning, and thereby tied a league record held by not so many—only four others. The Cards scored a run without a hit then on two walks and three wild pitches. LaSorda's damage was physical too. He was cut on the knee as Wally Moon slid home with the run. Stitches were required. Other notable Dodger pitcher doings included Clem Labine's homer—his first since 1949, at St. Paul.—J.R.

Moon and LaSorda Collide at Plate

Three New Pin Marks

In Major City League

The championship Griesedieck team wound up its Major City Scratch League campaign by setting three new records at Du-Bowl. Frank Mataya rolled a 727 total for new individual three-game record and his team registered team high three of 3159, including 1134 game, for the other two new marks. Mataya's 200 average is No. 1 in the Major City.

leaped and caught and dropped a liner to the third. The Cardinals staunchly held their bases, sure they were to be had but not quite certain how. Reese threw to home for one force, and Campanella threw to third for another, as the runners held and their untenable positions, and the double play was accomplished.

"I dunno," said a Cardinal. "Is that legal? Well it is for them." He walked away, and grinned.

Newcombe Reinstated; More Penalties Promised by Bavasi

BROOKLYN, May 6 (UP)—Don Newcombe, husky Negro pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers who was suspended yesterday for insubordination, was reinstated today after a conference with Vice President E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi.

Bavasi, in announcing the reinstatement, said that restoring Newcombe to the team would "result in further penalties."

Those penalties probably will be determined later today when the club travels to Philadelphia. Newcombe will accompany the team.

Manager Walter Alston previously had announced that Newcombe would pitch against the Cubs and Redlegs on the Dodgers' forthcoming western trip.

Newcombe was suspended yesterday when he refused to pitch in batting practice before the Dodgers' game with the Cardinals. While the suspension lasted only one day, it cost him more than $100 in salary and although Bavasi refused to discuss what the "further penalties" may be, he indicated that they might be severe.

Jockey Despirito, Minor, Fined for Buying Drink

BALTIMORE, Md., May 6 (UP)—Jockey Tony Despirito—the second leading rider at Laurel—was fined $50 in Central police court today for buying a highball last night although he is a minor.

Despirito, a bar owner and a waitress were arrested in a police vice squad raid on a tavern.

The baby-faced, 19-year-old jockey posted $200 bail to assure his appearance as a state witness against the bar owner and the waitress. Despirito was found sitting on a bar stool and sipping a highball at about 8 o'clock.

Ten Horses Are Named in Official Entry for Kentucky Derby

Cain Hoy Lists Two To Start

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6 (UP)—Blair Stud's Nashua headed a field of 10 three-year-olds entered today for the eighty-first and richest running of the $152,500 Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs tomorrow.

There were no surprises or changes in the field which was set last Tuesday after the running of the Derby trial.

Rex C. Elsworth's Swaps was the first horse named for the mile and a quarter classic while G. Rollie White's Trim Destiny was the last.

Nashua was the fifth colt named for the first of the triple crown classic and John Fitzsimmons who signed the slip at a cost of $250 said the winner of the Flamingo Stakes, the Florida Derby and the Wood Memorial was ready to go. It will cost another $1250 to start.

Summer Tan was one of the last named for the race. Sherill Ward strolled into the racing secretary's office about two hours after it opened and named the horse expected to give Nashua the toughest fight for the winner's purse of $108,400.

Other horses named were the Cain Hoy Stable entry of Racing Fool and Flying Fury, Jean's Joe, Blue Lem, Honey's Alibi and Nabesna. Trainer Mickey Tenney arrived at the secretary's office at Churchill Downs 12 minutes after the box opened to enter Swaps.

Shoemaker to Ride. Tenney confirmed that Willie Shoemaker would ride the horse in the mile and a quarter tomorrow. He had the Santa Anita derby winner on the track for a blowout and said he timed Swaps in 1:02.5 for five furlongs.

"Well, what is there to say," Tenney said as he filled in the slip naming his horse for the richest renewal of the race.

"My horse is in good shape but I think he is going to have to run better tomorrow to win than he did to win the Santa Anita Derby."

At 7:47 Trainer Bill Finnegan entered the second horse—Murchin Stable's Jean's Joe. He named Steve Brooks as the jockey.

"My horse has had a lot of racing so I just galloped him around this morning," Finnegan said. "He has been second so many times I'll be satisfied if he can be second again. But that's only a hope."

Jean's Joe was second to Swaps in the Santa Anita Derby, to Racing Fool in the Blue Grass Stakes, and to Flying Fury in the Derby trial.

To Use New Tactics. No. 3 was W. L. Ranch's Honey's Alibi entered by Trainer Joe Insalona, who also had his horse out on the track this morning for a blowout.

"He went four furlongs in :48.4-5," Insalona said. He added that he was a little disappointed with the horse's race in the Derby trial Tuesday.

"I was surprised to see him up close so soon," he said. "But the horse wanted to run and the boy let him. When he doesn't do that he loses his finishing kick. He'll race different tomorrow after that race and he came from way back."

Willie Harman was named as his rider.

Next was Clifford Moore's Nabesna with Johnny Adams named as rider. Veteran Trainer John Clark grinned as he filled in the entry blank.

"I waited 53 years to get one of these in my hands so don't try to hurry me," he said.

Then came the big horse, Blair Stud's Nashua, favored to win the mile and a quarter classic. John Fitzsimmons, son of Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons who has trained the horse by telephone from New York, signed the slip. Eddie Arcaro will ride.

"He's as good as we can make him," he said. "All we want is the best horse, the best jockey and the best post position." He said with a grin. "When we get them we feel fine."

Trainer Lloyd Gentry entered the Cain Hoy horses Racing Fool and Flying Fury. In the "mule barn" on the backstretch, the sixth and seventh three-year-olds through the box. He filled in the names of Jockeys Conn McCreary for Flying Fury and Hank Moreno for Racing Fool.

Trainer John Kermath entered Blue Lem next, about two hours after the box opened. He said he had the colt out on the track this morning to canter. Chris Rogers was named as his rider.

"He likes this track," he said, "but he would like it a lot better if it was good and muddy."

Next came Sherill Ward to enter Summer Tan. "I had him out this morning to gallop about a mile and a half. He's ready. Eric Guerin doesn't ride in New York today and I think he will be down later today to ride," he said.

Trim Destiny Tenth. Trim Destiny, the Arkansas Derby winner, was the tenth horse to pass through the box. Trainer Cecil Locklear also entered the horse at the "mule barn" on the backstretch and named Louis C. Cook as his rider.

Mendoza Tries Hiding the Ball

None Better Than Nuernberg in 40 Years, but Kutis Wins, 3-2

By Dent McKimming

An inspired Kutis eleven again has brought honor to St. Louis soccer. Playing as though international prestige hung upon the outcome, the eager native sons last night defeated the artistic Nuernberg, Germany team, 3-2, at Oakland Stadium in a delightful exhibition match.

No visiting team in the past 40 years had better command of the ball or finer understanding between players than this German League team. Nuernberg is a soccer version of basketball's Harlem Globetrotters, every player a master of ball handling skill. From penalty line to penalty line, the Central Europeans were amazingly effective.

But Kutis three times found a hole in the visitors' armor. Rich Meisemann and Bob Rooney scored first-half goals, and Bill Looby drove home a second-half tally, just enough to overcome two brilliant scoring efforts by Max Morlock and Horst Schade.

In many respects, the game was a replay of the 1951 match in which the St. Louis Zenith team (same group now known as Kutis) defeated an older German club, Eintracht of Frankfurt. Speed, tenacity and the ability to take full advantage of scant opportunity marked the play of the all-St. Louis team last night, just as it did in that game of four years ago.

Fall of the Mighty. As five Nuernberg forwards, closely supported by two wing halfbacks moved the ball about in a series of perfectly placed passes, controlling the play without appearing to extend themselves, it became easy to understand how they had defeated New York's finest, 7-1, last Sunday.

And it was no cause for surprise to learn that they had won a Wednesday night game at Hartford, Conn., 11 to 1.

Beaumont Off And Running—Like Brooklyn

Any day now it will be reasonable to expect prep baseball followers to start calling Beaumont the "Brooklyn" of the Public High League.

Like the swash-buckling Dodgers of the National League who won 10 straight, the Bluejackets of North St. Louis have jumped off into a lengthy winning streak which reached 12 yesterday when they defeated Central, 16-6. Five of those triumphs have been in league play and they leave the Jackets trailing McKinley, the 1954 champion, by one fewer in the regular season.

The big blow against Central was Rich Krueger's grand slam home run in the sixth inning. It came at a time when Beaumont was losing and took Bert Barth, the starting hurler, off the losing end of the losing streak.

Central, behind by 3-0 starting the top of the fourth, hammered Barth for four runs to forge into the lead. Vern Bradburn's Redwings continued their pounding in the fifth and rival coach Ray Elliott sent Tom Daniels in to put out the fire. He did to become the winner.

Beaumont, on the short end of a 6-3 count in the last of the fifth, put over six runs and finally pinned the defeat on Central starter, Bob Bushy.

Rich Rogers homered for Beaumont and Art Moser also whacked a circuit drive for Central.

McKinley upped its record to 6-0 with a 5-1 triumph over Central behind the three-year-old pitching of Don Mitchell and Fred Walton. It was the first league setback for Vashon, which had won four straight.

Southwest, stung by its state tournament one-run loss to McKinley Wednesday, blasted out 15-4 decision over Soldan over Blewett. Sumner nipped Cleveland, 8-6, and Hadley Tech pinned the fifth league loss on Washington Tech, 11-1.

In Catholic Athletic Conference contests, McBride, behind the six-hit pitching of 15-year-old Louis Bertani, a sophomore, defeated De Andreis, 10-0, and Mercy broke a tie in the fifth to nip Laboure, 4-3.

Maplewood scored in the seventh on Denny Holmes's three-run homer with two out, overcame Ritenour and won 4-2. Maplewood's Tom Kelly started the late rally with a walk and advanced when Gene Huff was safe on Ron Seago's fumble, thereby setting the stage for Holmes' wallop.

The loss was only the second for Ritenour in seven Suburban League games.

In a sub-district final, St. Charles defeated Eureka, 8-1, and now will play Festus in a district game.

The Granite City pitching assignment was shared by Andy Angeloff and Ron Parker, with Parker getting credit for the triumph. Charles Johannigmeier homered for the Warriors 10-4 Starr of Belleville.

Borgi, Jost Honored. Frank Borgi, Simpkins goal keeper, was honored as the "soccer player of the year" at the Kutis-Nuernberg game last night at Oakland Stadium.

He received the annual "most valuable" trophy. . . . Nick Jost, manager of Kutis, was given a trophy by the Missouri Soccer Referees Association as the manager who showed finest sportsmanship during the past season.

First call for players who will represent the C.Y.C. against a French soccer team here June 8 has been issued. . . . Hennessy-Brickey team and Meramec Sport Club played a 1-1 tie as a preliminary to the Kutis-Nuernberg game.

Trainer Would Have Derby Run Over Hill and Dale

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

LOUISVILLE, May 6—If Meshach (Mickey) Tenney had his way, tomorrow's Kentucky Derby would be run broken-field over a cactus obstacle course rather than on the flat-top ancient oval of Churchill Downs.

The 47-year-old trainer of Swaps, third choice in the Derby, has handled thoroughbreds since 1939, but he still has a fondness for the years he and Swaps' owner, Rex Ellsworth, rode the range punching cattle.

"If we really were concerned about improving the breed, we'd put these race horses through a cow pony's paces, run 'em over hill and dale, dips and turns, both left and right," Tenney said, adding, wryly:

"The British have the right idea with their more difficult courses. The only level place a horse ever runs on is a race track."

Meshach—remember Shadrach and Abednego of the Bible and the pre-war spiritual that became a popular song?—is easily the most colorful trainer here. A devout Mormon and a simple man, Tenney shoes his own horses and, though he has a cot in the tack room, he sleeps on a bedroll in Swaps' stall.

Facts and Figures On Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6 (AP)—Here are the facts and figures on the eighty-first running of the Kentucky Derby:

Place—Churchill Downs.
Distance—Mile and one-quarter.
Post Time—4:30 p.m. St. Louis day.
Purse—$152,500 added to nomination and starting fees.
Second time—Two minutes one and two seconds to win.
Record time—1:59.4 by Secretariat in 1973.
Weather—Fair and hot.
Radio and television—15 to 4:45 p.m. St. Louis daylight time by CBS (KWN-TV in St. Louis).

Moreno might be able to get him off to good start and draw out the field to give McCreary and Furry a better shot, but frankly, I don't think either horse has much chance against Nashua."

There is a defeatist attitude around the barn area, but Ward, Summer Tan's trainer, doesn't share it even though his colt has lost four out of five to the favorite. He bristled when someone quoted him as having referred to Nashua as a "Super-horse."

"Super-horse," Ward bit off the words. "That must have been said by the same fellow who said Summer Tan was a frontrunner and can't be rated. It's entirely possible, not probable, but possible that he'll beat Nashua."

The Derby weekend weather outlook was fair and a little cooler.

Top Trainer of Race Horses Ends His Life

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6 (AP)—Robert Hyatt (Red) McDaniel, at 44 one of the leading trainers in American horse racing, drove his beige colored Cadillac to the middle of the towering San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge yesterday and for some unexplained reason jumped to his death.

The Coast Guard recovered the body 24 minutes after three witnesses saw him vault over the railing of the upper deck at 4:30 p.m. McDaniel's wallet, left in the front seat of the automobile, contained no notes or information concerning a motive.

McDaniel, who established a new turf record in 1953 as trainer of 211 winning horses, saddled Poonia II in winning the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap last February with Willie Shoemaker up.

McDaniel was en route to his home in San Mateo from Golden Gate field race track, where his last winner was Aptos, in the sixth race yesterday.

Neither his widow nor associates could shed any light on his action. Although he had suffered from ulcers, friends said he did not appear to be seriously ill.

Three for Arcaro.
NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Eddie Arcaro, who will ride Nashua in the Kentucky Derby, brought in three winners at Belmont park yesterday. He was up on Long Row 55, Polly's Jet $11.70 and Evening Out $4.60.

Four Records Set as Riverview Wins Meet

By Harold Tuthill

Riverview Gardens may be in for a track reign as long as its name if the Rams continue to dominate the North County League as they did yesterday at Fairview when they retained their meet championship.

Bob Egan's Rams scored 96½ points to beat Fairview, 62, and Hazelwood, 55½. Jennings was fourth with 38½ and Pattonville fifth with 14.

Much of Riverview's success came from the showing made by Joe Rozycki, who won both dashes, setting a record in the 220, and who also anchored the winning mile relay team for a total of 18 points. Rozycki, a senior, negotiated the 100-yard dash in 11.2 and captured the 220 in a record 22.8, breaking a mark which was lowered in the preliminaries Tuesday. Then Ken (Butch) Stockwell of Fairview posted a time of 23 seconds flat, good until Rozycki's performance in the final.

Four Marks Bettered.
The 220 was one of four marks to be bettered. Charlie Jones of Hazelwood, who took both hurdles, won the 180-yard low hurdles in 22.6 seconds, which broke his record, also set in Tuesday's preliminaries. Jones won the discus throw Tuesday, making him the only triple winner of the twentieth annual meet.

The half-mile relay standard came tumbling down, too, as Fairview's quartet of Gary King, Dan Wallen, Judas Calandro and Ken Stockwell, was timed in 1:38.1 to beat a 16-year-old record of 1:38.7 set by a Bayless combination of Markland, Fuchs, Frick and Chase in 1939.

Wesley Pape, a slight pole vaulter, a junior, contributed another eight points to the Riverview total when he vaulted a record 11 feet. The bar was raised an inch after he set the new height and Pape almost cleared it, so chances are he will go higher when he competes in next year's meet.

The old record, 10 feet, 10½ inches was made by Don Zimmerman of Hancock at a time when the south county schools, along with the north county, belonged to one group, called the County League.

South County Meet Today.
Now the South County conducts its own meet and that will go on today at Maplewood High. Hancock, the 1954 champion, qualified 18 for the finals and looks like the team to beat, although Bayless will give it some trouble. Running events will start at 2 o'clock.

Scheduled to start at the same time, although in a different place, will be the first annual Catholic Athletic Conference meet. St. Mary's will be favored to win in competition for juniors and seniors in an affair to be held at the Public Schools Stadium.

Five of the Public High Schools—Cleveland, Hadley Tech, Sumner, Vashon and Washington Tech—along with St. Louis U. High have indicated they would run in the East St. Louis relay tonight at Parsons Field.

Host University City will be favored in the eighteenth annual competition for Suburban League schools—senior and junior—in tomorrow's finals on the Indian track. Kirkwood most likely will keep its trophy as guest winner.

New School Record.
Ladue, which has made rapid progress in track this spring, had a new school record of 10.6 in the 100-yard dash as a result of Denny Griffin's performance against Brentwood yesterday. Ladue, using athletes who for the most part would not run at U. City, defeated the Eagles, 39½ to 34½. Griffin also won the 220 in 24.1.

George Gobel Revisits St. Louis, Once Worked Here for $50 Weekly

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
GEORGE GOBEL signing autographs in lobby of Post-Dispatch Station KSD yesterday.

TV Star in City for One-Night Stand Tonight—Broods Over Fact He Is Always Expected to Be Funny.

George Gobel, who worked here in 1938 for $50 a week, was back today at something like $6000 a week but holding no grudge against the city that got him so cheap.

His only gripe—and that a good-natured one—was that here, as everywhere else, people expect him to produce laughs all the time just as he does on his television show, after a week's work by him and his high-priced writers.

Gobel was here for a one-night stand at Kiel Auditorium Opera House tonight. He arrived yesterday, appeared on Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV in the afternoon and visited the office of one of his sponsors, Pet Milk Co.

Key to City... 'Will It Fit?' On the TV program, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker gave him a key to the city and, since lights and cameras were on him, he got laughs. "Will it fit anything?" he asked in his deadpan way.

Frank Eschen showed him HIS key, a tiny one, and Gobel came back: "You got the key to the back door."

"I've been here before," Gobel went on, "and always got in without a key, but I'm glad to have this one. It's the first key to a city I've got."

Asked if he had come by plane, he said: "I fly all the time. With an act like mine it's a good idea to get out of town as soon as possible." And how was the trip? "Very nice—I think. I slept."

In hungrier days, playing a guitar was about all he had to offer. He was handed one yesterday, strummed it once, and handed it back, saying, "That's work. I don't play very well anyhow. I've got a brother who can't play at all."

At his sponsor's offices he posed for pictures dressed as a chef, and with ear muffs and scarf, and being fed ice cream. He got his chuckles there with nothing but facial expressions.

"I Was Flying High." He thought back to 1938, when he played his guitar and sang hillbilly songs for Radio Station KMOX, starting at 5:30 a.m. He had to pay his agent $5 of his $50 a week, and lived at the Reed and Warwick Hotels and the Y.M.C.A. "I was flying high," he said.

Asked if he would like to say something about St. Louis in general, he couldn't think of anything suitable. His press agent, Sam Honigberg, suggested this: "St. Louis—a city with a future, but oh what a past!"

"That's not funny," Gobel said, "don't quote ME on it," and the press agent dropped the idea as if it had been a hooded cobra, with professional deference to Gobel's time-trying judgment of what is funny.

Gobel began to brood over the impossibility of turning on laughs as one would a faucet. "At a night club where I've been working some people will invite me over for a drink. They say 'What'll you have,' and I say 'scotch and soda.' Not funny."

"I sit there sipping it, and they say, 'Gee, you're awfully quiet off stage.' Pretty soon I see one of them nudge another and whisper, 'Maybe he'll loosen up after a drink or two.'"

"They don't realize this is a business, and hard work. If you were selling shirts you wouldn't keep the store open 24 hours a day."

He thought of Casey Stengel, the New York Yankee manager, whom he met in Detroit last Sunday, and with that he brightened up.

"If there's ever a style I copied, it's Casey's," he said, laughing. "The guy never finishes anything." Then he gave an imitation of him: "Well now in the American League there's a lot of hitting power. You take Detroit, and then there's Chicago. But if the other fellow gets some pitching and they get a good shortstop then you can't tell who might finish in the second division. But that all

ST. LOUISAN KILLED IN PLANE COLLISION

2nd Lt. George F. W. Ramming, Student Pilot, Was on Training Mission.

Second Lt. George F. W. Ramming of St. Louis, a student pilot, was killed yesterday when his Air Force F-86 Sabrejet fighter plane collided with another on a training mission 35 miles southeast of Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., where he was stationed.

The pilot of the other craft, Lt. Michael F. Filliman of Knoxville, Ia., bailed out and suffered a broken hip when he tried to slip his parachute to avoid landing in Lake Mead, above Hoover Dam.

The accident occurred as the two jets were rejoining a formation on an applied tactics mission. Both planes were destroyed.

Ramming, 24 years old, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Ramming, 9705 Bellefontaine road, Bellefontaine Heights. He was a graduate of Lutheran High School and attended Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau two and a half years before enlisting in September 1953. He received his commission last December and was scheduled to go to Japan in July after completion of advanced training at the Nevada base later this month.

GOATS' CURIOSITY GETS THEM INTO TOADSTOOL TROUBLE

CHICAGO (UP)—The "inherent curiosity" of dairy goats has made toadstool poisoning a problem in the livestock industry, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The association said curiosity drives the goats to graze in areas favorable to toadstool growth, where they apparently become stricken. Toadstool poisoning has "often-times been considered only a human problem," the A.V.M.A. says.

STANDARD GASOLINES

...balanced for top power, economy, and all 'round performance
... and raised to the Highest Octane levels in our history

We are mighty proud of our new gasolines. They have been stepped up to the highest octane ratings in our history... designed to give knock-free performance in the most modern of high compression engines, and older cars as well. But important as octane is, good gasolines need something more. They must be balanced too. STANDARD WHITE CROWN and RED CROWN Gasolines are balanced to give you top performance, with controlled volatility—the right gasoline for the right season—with no vapor lock even in the hottest summer weather.

Try a tankful of one of these clean-burning, high octane, balanced gasolines today, and prove to yourself that there is a difference in gasolines.

You expect more from and get it!

Are all gasolines

pretty much the same?

NO, THEY'RE NOT. Standard Gasolines are distinctly different. Our chemists and engineers conduct a continuing program of research and development to bring you the best in gasolines. In addition, Standard guards the quality of the gasoline all the way from the refinery to your car through private and exclusive terminal facilities, lake tankers, river barges, pipelines, tank cars and trucks. And a good thing to remember is this... no gasolines arrive at or go out of our terminals but Standard Gasolines.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 6 (AP)—A House committee reported favorably on a local bill after some unsolicited and unofficial help from a newspaper reporter. Reporter Lynn Nisbet moved for a favorable report on a bill providing for open meetings of all municipal council meetings at Statesville.

Before anybody realized the motion came from a non-member it had been seconded and the favorable report recorded by unanimous vote.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 6 (AP)—A discussion of humor was under way when Mrs. Frances Lea discovered unidentified insects invading her high school classroom.

She sent a note to the janitor reading "I have bugs" and asked the class to speculate on his reply. One boy suggested: "You're lucky. Most teachers have students." Instead the janitor sent back word: "Be right over." He was.

U.S. Museums Urged to Request Loan of China Art Treasures

American Authority Believes Nationalists Want to Lend Collection for Extended Exhibitions.

NEW YORK, May 6—A group of American museums should request the Chinese Nationalist Government, for an extended loan of the bulk of the Chinese art collection now stored in the Formosa caves, Horace H. F. Jayne, vice director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, proposed today.

In an article in the current Art News, Jayne said the collection, which includes 6425 paintings alone, was "an international obligation that cannot be shirked." Jayne is a leading authority on Chinese art.

About a year ago the Nationalist Government offered to lend a "selected group" of the collection for exhibits in this country. Jayne said he was now convinced that the "whole collection—or at least the paintings"—should be requested.

The Art News article is accompanied by a list of the art treasures received by the magazine from Nationalist sources. Paintings, porcelain, jade, bronzes, lacquer work, gold plate and other items total 70,000 pieces packed in more than 2000 cases.

The first public disclosure of the whereabouts of this great and antique collection since World War II was in January 1954, when Dr. Hu Shih, former Chinese ambassador to this country and a trustee of the collection, told a gathering of museum officials here that 200 of the finer pieces would be shown here in a series of exhibitions, the first to open about Nov. 10 at the National Gallery at Washington.

Jayne said that although the project had "bogged down," he had received "certain assurance the matter is still in the works." He said he believed the offer had meant more than had appeared on the surface and was intended primarily "to egg us on" to request extended exhibition of the bulk of the collection.

He pointed out that although the collection was well cared for at present, it was nevertheless subject to more than normal risks in the future, and that the Nationalists would not want it destroyed.

Wants to Send Historical Treasures to Washington.

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Stanislav Mackiewicz, anti-Communist Polish exile leader, wants to ship a collection of his country's historical treasures to Washington.

Mackiewicz told reporters Monday the collection is "deteriorating in storage" in Quebec. He said it is valued at $60,000,000.

The Poles removed the collection from Poland during the German invasion of 1939.

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (UP)—Helen Roy, practicing driving with a learner's license, couldn't have picked a worse spot for a recent traffic accident. Her foot slipped from the brake pedal to the accelerator, and the car plowed into a building occupied by the California Highway Patrol and the Division of Motor Vehicles—the agency that examines and licenses drivers.

AMERICANS TOURING EUROPE LEARN TO RELAX WHEN EATING

NEW YORK, May 6 (UP)—An internationally known gourmet, says American tourists in Europe usually bring home better eating habits. The problem is to make them stick.

James A. Beard, lecturer and author of many books on food and wine, has just spent several months touring western Europe.

"It's a wonderful thing to see Americans actually relaxed while eating their meals," he said. "In all kinds of restaurants I found Americans really enjoying themselves in an atmosphere that is certainly not very different from many of our own restaurants at home. Perhaps it's because we're away and in a different environment that we seem to enjoy ourselves so much, but I hope these habits stick with our tourists when they come back home."

The most important hours in your car's life

What's your guess? Here at L. M. Stewart we believe the most important hours in the life of your car are those we spend getting it ready for you to drive away after you've bought it.

These are busy hours in the Service Department of L. M. Stewart. Your handsome new Chrysler or Plymouth is gone over from top to tire-treads. Careful hands clean the inside, polish the outside. Skilled, factory-trained mechanics tune the engine to perfection.

This is why we've never promised you "three-minute delivery" on a new car... or even three-hour delivery. We like to take our time with this important work because our cars and our customers deserve it.

Perhaps this is why the people driving beautiful new Chryslers and Plymouths from L. M. Stewart are so enthusiastic. They've discovered... as you will... that it costs no more, and usually saves you money, when you're treated like an L. M. Stewart customer.

EXAMINER URGES PERMIT FOR DAM FOR IDAHO POWER

FPC Aid Rejects Company's License Plea for Two Other Projects in Hell's Canyon.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—A Federal Power Commission examiner recommended today that Idaho Power Co. be authorized to build a dam in the Hell's Canyon reach of the Snake river between Idaho and Oregon.

Examiner William J. Costello issued an initial decision authorizing construction of one dam. He turned down the company's license applications for two other projects in an area where construction of one high dam by the Federal Government has been proposed.

The decision technically could be final but it is certain to be appealed to the FPC, either by Idaho Power or by public power groups advocating the federal project and opposing the company's plan.

Costello recommended granting a license for the Brownlee dam, upstream from the sites of the company's two other proposed dams and the federal project. Its existence in the reservoir area of the proposed federal high dam would make the latter economically infeasible.

Largest of 3 Dams Proposed. The examiner said Brownlee dam, largest of the three proposed by the company, would fit into a comprehensive plan for developing the waters of the Snake and Columbia river basin and it would provide power needed in the firm's service area.

He said that on the basis of a theoretical comparison federal planners, confronted with a choice between the three-dam plan and the single high dam, would choose the latter.

He declared, however, the likelihood of Congress authorizing construction of the high dam and appropriating money to pay for it is so remote as to make a recommendation to Congress by the FPC that such a dam be undertaken by the Government a "completely useless action."

Costello said the making of such a recommendation, authorized under federal law, would only freeze the middle Snake river for power development for an indefinite period. He added: "If the Congress feels that the commission has not performed its function in the public interest and in accordance with the provisions of the statute, the commission's power to issue a license may be withdrawn or suspended at any time."

Brownlee dam, nine miles downstream from Roblinette, Ore., would impound 1,000,000 acre-feet of water for flood control and capacity power production of 360,400 kilowatts.

Cost Put at $95,435,000. FPC engineers estimate the rockfill structure, 395 feet high and 1700 feet long, would cost $95,435,000.

Idaho Power Co. witnesses testified at a year-long hearing on the firm's applications in 1953-54 that its three dams could be built for $133,000,000 and would have installed generating capacity of 783,400 kilowatts.

Costello, however, accepted the FPC engineering staff's construction cost estimate of $191,328,000 compared with $389,570,000 for the proposed federal dam, which would have generating capacity of 800,000 kilowatts and would impound 4,000,000 acre-feet of water.

The FPC's legal staff had recommended that the three private utility dams be licensed.

In denying applications for the company's proposed low Hell's Canyon and Oxbow dams, which would store no water, Costello said "it would be clearly not in the public interest" to license them because no market could be reasonably predicted for their power.

"Fancy-Priced" Power. Costello said power from Idaho Power Co.'s proposed three-dam plan would have to bring 6.6 mills a kilowatt hour, which is "fancy-priced power in the northwest area."

There is a crying need for firm power additions in the Northwest," he said, "in view of the lagging program of development by the Federal Government and the steadily growing loads."

One of the seemingly attractive aspects of the Idaho Power proposals and one which has been exploited and publicized was that Idaho Power Co. would, without cost to the taxpayer, relieve this need to a substantial extent.

Whether power costing 6.6 mills is marketable on a firm basis is open to serious question.

Costello's decision denied the applications for Oxbow and the low Hell's Canyon licenses without prejudice, meaning the company may apply later, when its demand for power increases and the energy can be sold.

SUMMERFIELD ASSAULTS ATTACK ON POSTAL WORKERS

FLINT, Mich., May 6 (AP)—Summerfield said today that "we resent publicity branding tens of thousands of conscientious employees as chiselers."

The General Accounting Office recently criticized what it termed sick leave abuses found in a survey of 19 post offices, including St. Louis. It was to publicity on this that Summerfield referred. He is at his Flint home recuperating from a virus infection.

"For many months," he said "the department has been engaged in a campaign to correct the abuse by the minority. 'Postal employees as a whole are loyal and conscientious, and certainly all of them should not be censured for the abuse by a minority of a benefit which for many years has not been properly explained or strictly controlled.'"

ALTON MAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF VENDOR

Andrew C. Acker was charged today with the murder of Leroy Stritz, newspaper vendor for the Alton News, for which Acker worked on a part-time basis.

A federal fugitive warrant also was issued against Acker, who disappeared Wednesday shortly before he was to report to police for further questioning. He and other suspects had been questioned Monday.

Acker, who lives at 104 Dooley drive, Alton, with his wife and five children, was reported to be driving a 1952 Pontiac two-door sedan bearing Illinois license 26284171. He was regularly employed by Alton Radionics Inc.

STIRITZ'S BODY, WITH THE SKULL FRACTURED WAS FOUND APRIL 26 IN A CREEK NEAR EAST NEWBORN, ILL. HE WAS REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN CARRYING ABOUT $300.

MRS. J. E. FIDDMONT CHOSEN AS NEGRO MOTHER OF YEAR

Mrs. Lucy Irene Fidmont, 7910 West Bruno avenue, Richmond Heights, has been selected as Negro mother of the year by the Women's Achievement Association of St. Louis.

She will be honored at a reception Sunday at 5 p.m. at Achievement House, 76 Vandeventer place. Mrs. Fidmont, wife of the Rev. James E. Fidmont, pastor of Mount Zion Baptist church in Richmond Heights, has 12 children, ranging in age from 16 to 36 years old. She is active in civic and social work.

L.&N. UNION PRESIDENT MEETS WITHDRAW OFFER WITH AIDS PRIOR FOR ARBITRATION TO DULLES'S TRIP

Announce Action After Shooting of Two Strikers, One of Them Fatally.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Striking unions in the Louisville & Nashville Railroad walkout announced today they are withdrawing their offer to arbitrate the 54-day dispute as a result of the shooting of two strikers.

George Leighty, union negotiating chairman, said the unions will insist on a neutral arbitrator. He added that prospects for any early settlement appeared dim.

Charles Wright, a striking L.&N. carman, was killed last night in an altercation near Mount Pleasant, Tenn. The Tennessee Bureau of Investigation said that Roy Van Brindley, an L.&N. employee, had signed a statement admitting he shot Wright.

Leighty said Wright was shot by L.&N. armed guards. But he cautioned strikers in the 14-state area against retaliation. "Let us not seek revenge," he said.

Another Is Wounded.

Another striker was seriously wounded today in Kentucky. Police reported the victim, John Kenneth Nichols Jr., was shot while he and another man were throwing chunks of brick at the home of a non-striking L.&N. worker.

Government mediators have been trying for weeks to obtain an agreement to submit the main issues of the case to arbitration for the binding decision of a neutral. Such an agreement appeared to be near last night when the fatal shooting in Tennessee occurred.

At Nashville, Tenn., Commissioner of Safety W. W. Luttrell said Brindley told officers he and three other men were riding in an L. & N. truck last night when they were overtaken by a man in an automobile.

The automobile rammed into the truck, Brindley said, causing both vehicles to crash. Luttrell said only one shot apparently was fired and it struck Wright.

Shoot-to-Kill Order.

The shooting came only a few hours after the Mayor of Knoxville, Tenn., issued a shoot-to-kill order in a move aimed at halting violence in one of the many trouble spots in the Southern Bell Telephone Co. walkout.

Both strikes — economically costly and marked by outbursts of violence and disorder — entered their fifty-fourth day today.

The CIO Communications Workers of America asked President Eisenhower to step into the nine-state Southern Bell strike picture, proposing "full public arbitration" of contract issues.

But Southern Bell again turned down proposals for arbitration of the telephone strike issues. Commenting on the request to President Eisenhower, the company said:

"The CWA is demanding that Southern Bell be told to give up to a third party the fundamental responsibility of the business."

Earlier in the telephone strike, Mayor George Dempster of Knoxville issued shoot-to-kill orders to a special police squad and saw that the men were equipped with machine guns and tear gas.

Dempster said he would assume full responsibility for the order. "They asked for it," he said. "This has gone as far as it can."

The action followed two explosions yesterday that wrecked two telephone cable distribution boxes in the Knoxville area. Two men were arrested for questioning in connection with the blasts.

In Atlanta, W. A. Smallwood, district director of the Communications Workers of America, said in a statement:

"Wild accusations of a man who does his thinking with a machine gun should be called directly to the attention of the public."

THREE ST. LOUISANS ACQUIRE PEORIA TRANSIT LINES, INC.

Peoria Transit Lines Inc., which last year hauled 12,500,000 passengers, has been sold to three St. Louisans associated with Transit Casualty Co., here, it was announced yesterday.

They are Preston Estep, president, Lloyd E. Boas, general counsel, and William T. Conway, secretary of the firm that insures transit operating companies. The sellers were E. Roy Fitzgerald, president of National City Lines, Inc., of Chicago, and Daniel McGlynn, East St. Louis politician and lawyer.

To be known as Peoria City Lines Inc., the new company was capitalized at 26,000 shares of common stock at $10 a share. Boas said the purchase was made by Tisco, Inc., which he and his associates incorporated. The sale was approved last Wednesday by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

TWO MEN SWIM 279 MILES DOWN THE COLORADO RIVER

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 6 (AP)—Two Los Angeles insurance salesmen today reported they had completed a 279-mile swim in 26 days down the Colorado river to prove that "flexibility of the human body is greater than that of any boat."

The two, John S. Daggett and William K. Beer, jumped into the river at Lees Ferry near the Arizona-Utah border on Easter Sunday and climbed out yesterday at Pierce Ferry, near the Arizona-Nevada border.

They said the swim and floated "roughly 280 rapids." They wore rubber shirts, long underwear and swimming trunks. Each carried a buoyant rubber pack weighing about 80 pounds.

'Routine Security Council Matter Discussed'—Secretary Leaving For Paris.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—President Eisenhower conferred for 30 minutes today with his key military and foreign affairs advisers. The White House said they discussed "a routine National Security Council matter."

Meeting with the President were Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The session was held a few hours in advance of Dulles's scheduled departure for Paris meetings on Far Eastern problems and western Europe's defense.

In announcing plans yesterday for today's White House conference, Assistant Press Secretary Murray Snyder declined to give newsmen any information whatever on the nature of the meeting.

No Hint of Subject.

After the half hour session ended today, Snyder called reporters to his office and said the conference had dealt with "a routine National Security Council matter left over from yesterday" when the council held its regular weekly meeting with the President.

Snyder declined to give any hint of what the "routine matter" was.

Mr. Eisenhower invited Dulles to have luncheon with him. Snyder said the President wanted to talk over matters that Dulles will deal with in Paris.

In Paris, Dulles will attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council at which West Germany will become the fifteenth NATO member. Dulles also plans to talk with French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay and British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan about Far Eastern matters.

Snyder said Dulles's Paris conversations will deal specifically with the "latest developments in the French-Viet Nam situation, and most recent developments on the Austrian treaty."

Big 4 Parley Possibility.

Asked whether Dulles might also discuss the possibility of a Big Four conference, involving Russia, Snyder said he did not know about that. Snyder added, however, that he doubted that Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles would devote much time to that subject at their luncheon meeting.

"They know where they stand on that," Snyder commented.

Dulles is expected to press Pinay to give strong support to Premier Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam, whom the French a week ago were saying was inadequate for his job.

A major interest of the Western ministers at Paris, diplomats said, will be to evaluate evidence that the Communists both in Russia and in China are trying to make some peaceful adjustments to the free world force with which they are confronted in Europe and the Far East.

This evidence includes Red Chinese talk about negotiations with the United States on easing Far Eastern tensions and Soviet moves to complete an Austrian independence treaty.

Evaluation of such events as these will have a direct bearing upon what the Big Three Western ministers decide to do about proposing a Big Four conference. Dulles is prepared to insist that any Big Four talks at a high level must first take the form of one or more foreign ministers meetings.

There have been reports that the Eden government at London, facing an election May 26, would like to go at once into a conference of chiefs of governments, including Mr. Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden.

Meeting in London, a committee of British, French and American experts, with Germans sitting in, completed discussions yesterday about the best approach to Russia for a four-power conference.

When the Western power foreign ministers meet in Paris they will study the experts' findings.

The French, as well as the British, are understood to be ready for top-level discussions.

STATE'S ATTORNEY CHECKING RED ROOSTER TAVERN LICENSE

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter of St. Clair county said today he was investigating the issuance of a liquor license for the Red Rooster tavern, on the St. Clair-Madison county line in the 8800 block of Collinsville road, which has been notorious for gambling.

The license was obtained last Monday by Gordon Foster, a nephew of Frank (Buster) Workman, Capone gang lieutenant. County Board Chairman Ben F. Day said today he approved it along with several others on recommendation of the board's license committee.

Alvis Emge, the committee chairman, said he checked with the sheriff's office, learned that there had been no recent law violation at the Red Rooster and had no reason to refuse approval. In the past, the Red Rooster has used a Madison county license.

5 BODIES FOUND IN WRECKAGE OF PLANE; CRASHED MARCH 9

WASATCH, Utah, May 6 (AP)—Hidden by snow for almost two months, an airplane and its five dead occupants were found on a mountain meadow yesterday.

The plane, a Beechcraft en route from Chicago to Arcata, Calif., was found by two sheepmen seven miles west of here and about 18 miles from Evanston, Wyo.

Positive identification was made by Sheriff Frank L. Naramore of Uinta county, Wyo., for Robert J. Willis, 38-year-old Chicago plywood broker, and owner of the plane; his 6-year-old son, Jacques; Pilot George Dott, 37, Wauconda, Ill., and Harry W. Gindelle, a Pittsburgh plywood man. A fifth body, presumably that of Harry Knutson, San Francisco and Costa Rica lumberman, also was in the wreckage.

The plane went down March 9 en route from Rock Springs, Wyo., to Salt Lake City in rugged mountain country. It disappeared within hours of the crash of an Air Force B-25. A search for the two planes covered most of Utah. The B-25 was found on Mount Timpanogos four days later. Its five passengers dead. The search for the Beechcraft was called off March 21.

CONVERTIPLANE HERE FLIES FIRST COMPLETE CYCLE

McDonnell Craft Rises and Descends Like Helicopter — Fast in Forward Flight.

McDonnell Aircraft Corp.'s radical, new XV-1 Convertiplane, which can maneuver like a helicopter and fly as fast as a conventional airplane, has been flown successfully at Smartt Field in St. Charles county, the company announced yesterday.

The Convertiplane, an experimental liaison reconnaissance and research aircraft developed for the Army under direction of the Air Force, uses an overhead rotor, like that of an ordinary helicopter, to take off vertically.

After the craft is in the air, a pusher-type propeller situated behind the pilot's compartment then drives the plane in conventional flight.

In landing the revolutionary craft, the procedure is reversed. Power is shifted from the pusher propeller to the rotor, which is permitted to "windmill" during forward flight. Then, when forward speed has diminished, the plane settled to earth like a helicopter.

'New Concept of Flight.'
McDonnell said the four-place XV-1 "embraces a new concept of flight which combines the vertical flight characteristics of a helicopter with the speed and range of a conventional fixed wing aircraft."

Although the forward speed attained by the XV-1 was not disclosed, the machine was designed to travel faster than 170 miles an hour. At least two successful, full-conversion flights have been made, the first for this type of plane, it was reported. The conversion was estimated to have taken place at an altitude of about 4000 feet.

With its convertiplane, McDonnell thus won the race to be the first to fly such a machine through the complete helicopter-plane, helicopter cycle. Other concerns also are developing such aircraft.

Convertiplanes, it was pointed out, should not be confused with vertical takeoff planes like the Navy's Convair XFV-1 and Lockheed XFV-1. The latter aircraft take off or land sitting on their tails, but fly in the normal horizontal position.

Sponsored by Army.
The XV-1's development was sponsored by the Department of the Army and directed by the Air Force Air Research and Development Command.

The program was described as offering both a prototype aircraft for Army liaison or reconnaissance missions and a research aircraft by means of which the convertiplane principle could be adapted to troop and cargo-carrying jobs.

The XV-1's rotor is driven by jet engines situated at the tip of each of the three blades. The pusher propeller is powered by a Continental reciprocating engine. This engine also drives compressors that supply air to the jets during helicopter flight.

Since the XV-1 has skid-type landing gear, it cannot land as a conventional airplane. It is 30 feet long, 10 feet high and 26 feet wide. It is designed to carry three passengers—or two litter patients and a medical attendant—in addition to the pilot.

HENNINGSON TO DEDICATE BOYS TOWN TOMORROW

Boys Town of Missouri will be dedicated by Senator Thomas C. Hennings (Dem.), Missouri, in a ceremony at 2 p.m. tomorrow. An address will be delivered by David J. McDevitt, president of the United Steelworkers of America, who will dedicate the Philip Murray cottage, a gift from union members.

About 200 St. Louisans are expected to attend the ceremony at the institution near St. James. They will leave on a special train at 9 a.m. from Union Station. Boys Town has been in operation almost six years.

William F. James, president of Boys Town, said the program will include inspection tours before the ceremonies begin, music played by the St. James High School band and a softball game between teams of Boys Town and Rolla.

Flashes of Life

Condensed.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Superior court has approved the petition of a screen writer to reduce the total of his names from six to two. Frank Stanley Gilman Borden Chase Fowler obtained permission to narrow his name down to Borden Chase. He explained: "I was named after a flock of rich relatives but it didn't take, I never inherited a thing. So I picked the name Borden Chase out of the lot for a pen name. I used the Borden on account of the milk and the Chase because of the bank."

Early this year Mrs. Buzard elected president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Jaycee organization. Thursday Buzard was elected Jaycee president.

Convertiplane Test Flight

With chief test pilot JOHN R. NOLL at the controls, McDonnell Aircraft Corp.'s XV-1 Convertiplane takes off at Smartt Field, St. Charles county, on the first flight in which it was maneuvered as a helicopter and also flows as a conventional airplane.

'Ballad of Davy Crockett' Alters Life of His Great-Grandson

of Wild Frontier'—Adults, Youths
Call on Telephone.

DALLAS, May 6 (AP)—Life just isn't the same for David Crockett, great-grandson of the "king of the wild frontier."

Tiny children now gang up on him when he comes home. "You Davy Crockett, really?" they ask.

"Sure am," he answers. "Sing the song," they demand. "I try," said the 55-year-old drug company accountant. "And it seems to make them happy." Adults and older children who ring his telephone off the hook want to know if he really is related to bear-killer Crockett.

He is and right proud of it, although life has become more involved because of television shows and "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Crockett is the son of Ashley Wilson Crockett, the original Davy's grandson. Ashley was the son of Davy's boy, Robert Patton Crockett.

Davy Crockett of Dallas was born at Granbury, near the farm where Davy's widow, Elizabeth Crockett, is buried. He said the first, famed Davy Crockett had a "rather long face with a prominent, pointed chin. I think I look a little bit like him."

There is one thing that is a little bit trying for Dallas's Davy. Often when he is intro-

CHURCH COUNCIL TO FIND CHRISTIAN ATTITUDE ON WAR

The New York Herald-Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa., May 6—A leader of the World Council of Churches announced yesterday that the council has plans for a major study of Christian attitudes toward war and peace against the background of nuclear warfare.

The Rev. Dr. Robert S. Bilheimer, associate general secretary of the council, with offices in Geneva, Switzerland, told the 150-member United States conference of the council that the inquiry may stir up the traditional pacifist vs. non-pacifist argument in church circles.

But it is necessary, he said, for "top level" clergy and laymen in the council to re-think the subject "because of the possibility that the hydrogen bomb has created a new element in warfare for which the established Christian attitude has little relevance."

The proposed inquiry, subject to formal approval this summer by the World Council executive committee, would be undertaken during the next three years.

SAYS ALL AMERICANS WANT A FREE AND STABLE ISRAEL

All American citizens, whatever their religion, want a stable Israel as a part of the free world, Clarence L. Coleman Jr. of Chicago, new president of the American Council for Judaism, said at a press conference here today. Coleman was guest speaker last night at a meeting of the council's St. Louis chapter at the Park Plaza Hotel. He stressed that Americans of Jewish faith have the same objectives for United States foreign policy as Americans of other faiths.

Coleman cited a resolution adopted by the Council last March in Dallas, in which the Council expressed the hope that Israel would become a secure nation for its citizens of all faiths and national origins, but insisted that the State of Israel has no right to interfere in the life of American Jews.

NIXON LAUNCHES $10,000,000 CEREBRAL PALSY FUND DRIVE

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—A $10,000,000 nationwide drive for funds for cerebral palsy aid was launched by Vice President Richard M. Nixon yesterday in a special ceremony at the Capitol.

Nixon turned on a 16-inch plastic beacon made at the United Cerebral Palsy Industrial Training Workshop of Los Angeles. He posed with three youngsters stricken with the disease who had been selected as symbols for the nationwide fund raising drive.

They are Marilyn Kerr, 7 years old, Worcester, Mass.; Vincent Staskel Jr., 5, of Shenandoah Heights, Pa.; and Elaine Wagner, 8, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

TWO MOROCCAN TERRORISTS SHOT FOR KILLING POLICEMAN

RABAT, French Morocco, May 6 (AP)—Two Moroccan terrorists, convicted of killing a French policeman two years ago, were shot here yesterday.

In Casablanca a military court gave death sentences to three Moroccan accused of terrorism in that region. Prison sentences ranging from 5 to 20 years were given to six accomplices and one was acquitted.

WILSON DOUBTS DEFENSE COSTS WILL DECREASE

Says Spending Will Continue at 'High Rate' Of 35 Billion for a Long Time.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson sees no prospects of reducing military spending in the near future.

In his annual report to Congress made public last night, Wilson said that even with the "strict austerity" he is enforcing, defense spending will continue at the "high rate" of 35 billion dollars a year for a long time.

This figure was $3,500,000,000 higher than the defense appropriation approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Wilson warned that when unspent funds carried over from the Korean war years are used up, "requests for new obligations" will have to rise to finance defense outlays.

Wilson cited guided missiles as the one area where spending is rising.

Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens said in the report that "aggressive" research is being conducted on weapons "to meet the threat of low altitude air attack and the possible danger of intercontinental missiles."

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbot said hydrogen bomb training has been made part of the regular courses in the Air Training Command and the new Air Force Academy.

Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas urged "very substantial" new United States shipbuilding to deal with the "startling strength" of the Russian navy. Both the Army and Navy registered mild complaints over manpower cuts ordered by the administration.

Wilson called America's "formidable" defense forces "the major factor securing the peace of the world." He said these forces are being strengthened continually with emphasis on the air-atomic power in which the nation has "the greatest advantage."

New Weapons.

The defense report amounted to a catalog of new airplanes, guided missiles and other weapons which have been going into operation in the present administration.

At one point Wilson described the Army's atomic cannon as having a 30-mile range. The Army said its range was 20 miles and Wilson's office then attributed its own figure to a typographical error.

Wilson said in his report that settlement of the Indochina war would not reduce the need for military aid in Southeast Asia, but would increase it.

CONGRESSIONAL GROUP IS GUEST OF NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, May 6 (UP)—Two Senators, 65 Representatives, 31 members of the Senate and House staff and more than 150 members of their families arrived here today for a sight-seeing weekend in New York as guests of the city's Department of Commerce and Public Events and a number of business firms.

The congressional party will be greeted at City Hall by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

The weekend itinerary includes a visit to the Italian Line flagship S.S. Cristoforo Colombo, a Saturday breakfast at the United Nations with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., a tour of the harbor and excursion trip around Manhattan island and a visit to the Kings Point Merchant Marine Academy.

The group will be guests at meals and receptions of Pan American World Airways, Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. and the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association.

FORMULA FOR SALK POLIO VACCINE GIVEN TO INDIA

NEW DELHI, May 6 (AP)—The Salk poliovirus vaccine formula was presented yesterday to India's health minister, Mme. Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, by United States Ambassador John Sherman Cooper. India is the first country to receive the formula under directions of President Eisenhower.

Cooper said Mr. Eisenhower chose India for initial recognition because of its contributions to research. Kidneys of rhesus monkeys imported from India provide the only live tissue in which polio virus grows.

Mme. Kaur, thanking the United States President, said India would immediately undertake the manufacture of polio vaccines.

LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS REVUE ON STATION KETC-TV

A 30-minute musical revue with an interracial cast of 28 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union will be presented on St. Louis Educational Television Station KETC at 9 o'clock tonight.

Entitled "A Night in Greenwich Village," the program is the first of its kind by the station.

The show will be directed by Miss Rita Oberbeck, 5539 Waterman avenue, and Mrs. Leah Millman, 9337 Olive Street road, Olivette, is choreographer. The chorus will be directed by Kenneth Billups, a Negro, 4254 West Cote Brilliante avenue, who is choral director of Summer High School.

Bitten by Dog

JILL OLIVER

Moving Post Office. DETROIT (AP)—Detroit's marine post office is on the move again. The 45-foot launch, J. W. Westcott II, delivers mail and emergency supplies to freights in the Detroit river.

5-YEAR-OLD GIRL SEVERELY BITTEN ON FACE BY DOG

Jill, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Oliver, 555 Brookhaven court, Kirkwood, is in St. Louis Children's Hospital with severe face lacerations, suffered last night when she was bitten by a large mongrel dog at the home of D. C. Baird, 3085 Arlmont drive, Bel-Nor.

The Olivers had gone to the Baird home to look at an automobile Baird had advertised for sale and Jill was standing near her father when the animal, a collie-shepherd mixture, suddenly attacked the child.

The dog, which weighs 80 pounds and is 12 years old, was placed under observation and probably will be destroyed, Mrs. Baird said.

No City Cat. BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—A 16-pound female bobcat on his front porch greeted Carl A. Newquist when he arrived home for lunch. He dashed into the house, emerged with a .12 gauge shotgun and one blast ended the wild cat's curiosity about city life.

ATTACK ON DOCTOR FEE SPLITTING URGED RIGID TRAINING COURSE FOR POLICE IN COUNTY

A.M.A. Committee Submits
4-Point Program to Fight Practice.

CHICAGO, May 6 (UP)—An American Medical Association committee today submitted a program to attack the "basic economic causes of fee splitting."

Fee splitting is the sharing by doctors of money received from a patient.

The A.M.A.'s committee on Medical Practices said it found "general agreement among doctors that there are greater financial rewards for the practice of surgery than for the practice of medicine."

"The higher surgical fee also creates intense competition for surgical patients," the committee said in its report, published in the journal of the A.M.A. "Some surgeons offer . . . a split of the surgical fee 'to meet the competition'."

The committee said "there is a long human history of broken oaths and regulations where law does not conform to the realities of a situation." The committee, therefore, recommended a four-point program:

1. Creation of a special committee to work on a relative value scale, based on points and not dollars, for the whole of the practice of medicine and surgery.
2. A program of public education on the value of diagnostic and medical work to increase the public's appreciation of non-surgical work.
3. Encourage various specialty boards to reappraise the value of their regulations restricting the practice of those seeking or holding board certificates.
4. Continue to discourage arbitrary restriction by hospitals against general practitioners.

Dr. Dwight H. Murray, Napa, Calif., chairman of the A.M.A. board of trustees, termed the report "the most constructive and exhaustive relating to the problem of fee splitting ever written. The report will be submitted to the A.M.A. House of Delegates when it meets in Atlantic City June 6-10."

A.M.A. Urges U.S. Aid for Medical Education at Hearing.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (UP)—The American Medical Association said today that federal aid is a "dangerous device" but urged Congress to provide some to meet a "demonstrated emergency" in medical education.

Dr. Walter S. Wiggins presented the A.M.A. view before a Senate Labor subcommittee. He is associate secretary of the A.M.A. Council on Medical Education and Hospitals.

Wiggins supported a bill which would provide $50,000,000 annually in federal aid to medical schools to be made available for construction and expansion over a five-year period. States would match the federal funds putting up one third to one half the federal outlay.

Wiggins said that "federal aid is a dangerous device because of the degree of regulation that must necessarily accompany federal funds." He commented, however, that the proposal, is temporary.

"We feel that the need is great enough to justify a one-time expenditure of federal funds," Wiggins said.

The measure is sponsored by Senator Lister Hill (Dem.), Alabama, who heads the subcommittee as well as the full Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

KREMLIN PROMISES TO ANSWER PHONE QUIZ BY STUDENTS

PROVO, Utah, May 6 (AP)—Brigham Young University students today awaited a reply from Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin to five questions they telephoned to the Kremlin.

The eight minute call cost $38. Spokesman for the students was 19-year-old Peter Lysenko, born in the Crimea and a United States resident for the past several years.

Among the questions asked: What do you think is the major stumbling block to better relations between the United States and Russia? What can students do to improve relations between the two countries? Would you be willing to increase trade between the United States and Russia?

Lysenko talked to a man who identified himself as Bulganin's private secretary and promised to relay the questions to Bulganin. He said Bulganin would answer them.

The students also telephoned the questions to the White House. Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, said President Eisenhower answered such questions only at his press conference.

GEORGE C. DARMSTATTER COLLAPSES; DIES IN LOUNGE

George C. Darmstatter, retired Belleville attorney, collapsed and died last night at the Shamrock Cocktail Lounge, 1929 North Grand boulevard.

Mr. Darmstatter, 52 years old, was part-owner of the lounge. He retired two years ago after serving for 10 years as chief clerk for the Selective Service Boards in St. Clair county. He was also instrumental in finding homes for many members of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pauline Darmstatter, and a sister, Miss Aurelia Darmstatter of New Athens, Ill.

LOW WATER HALTS FERRY

Operation of the Grafton to St. Louis ferry was suspended yesterday because of low water at the Missouri landing approach.

Daniel Maher, president of the Grafton Ferry Co., said he expects to resume operations next week when a new landing will be constructed.

the offer of the St. Louis Police Department to make available its police academy and crime laboratory to the new county department, because the establishment of such facilities in the county at this time was precluded by present budget limitations.

Careful training and selection of the new officers is very important because of the divided jurisdiction in the county, he said. The new department will have direct responsibility for law enforcement in the unincorporated areas but may assist, when called upon to do so, in the various municipalities.

"We have no intention of impinging on any of the established municipal departments in the county," DuBois emphasized, adding that it would require careful study to preserve the autonomy of these local departments.

A study of the budget, on which he is presently engaged, will determine the recommendations he will make for the number of men needed at the start next July 1, he said.

He is also working on the minimum qualifications to be established for employment of officers. These standards will include a "grandfather clause" for present members of the sheriff's office and the offices of the various constables which are now the law enforcement arm of the county, he said.

Another essential matter is the establishment of a uniform system of crime reporting throughout the county, including crimes committed in the various municipalities.

"In order to control crime, you must know its extent, where and at what time it is happening," he said.

On the subject of juvenile delinquency, DuBois believes the police officer should assume a pre-delinquency role of referring recalcitrant and troublesome youngsters on his best to social agencies or religious youth organizations.

DuBois is occupying temporary offices at 8003 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton. A former deputy police commissioner of Philadelphia, he is receiving the same salary he drew in the eastern city—$10,000 a year.

Schlaflly Chides Rhodes for Asking Insufficient Amount — $492,230
Outlay Approved.

The Board of Education yesterday almost doubled the amount of money for annual repairs and improvements to school buildings recommended by its building commissioner, V. Harry Rhodes, who was chided by one member for having recommended an insufficient amount.

Rhodes submitted two lists of improvements, which are to be done during summer months by outside contractors. One was for $492,230 and the other for $221,960. Rhodes, stating he felt he would be required to stay close to his last year's budget, recommended the lower figure. The higher figure included additional interior painting and maintenance work.

Criticized by Schlaflly, Board Member Daniel L. Schlaflly said it was Rhodes' duty to recommend whatever was needed, and let the board decide whether the money was available.

Rhodes pointed out that he had recommended about $600,000 in this category of repairs for the current school year ending next June 30 and that the figure had been reduced by the board to $139,489.

Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey, chief budgetary officer of the board, had expressed the hope that the forthcoming budget would be close to the current year's.

Schlaflly said the board would have more than a $1,000,000 surplus at the end of the fiscal year because of unanticipated income from taxes and other sources, adding that it should be spent for maintaining the school plant.

Other Figures Requested. Meeting as a committee of the whole, the board adopted the higher figure and instructed Rhodes to bring in other recommendations for needed work that had been cut from the current year's budget. Among the jobs deleted last year was the interior painting of 21 schools. Rhodes had recommended that only 10 schools be painted next year.

Miss June Williams, an exchange teacher from Windsor, England, who has been teaching at Irving and Ashland elementary schools, reported to the board on her work here. She said her greatest gain was in "getting to know and becoming fond of quite a number of Americans." She explained she had received a distorted idea of Americans from movies and American tourists encountered in England.

NEW HAMPSHIRE
POLLED, 80 PCT.
BACK EISENHOWER

The New York Herald-Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. WASHINGTON, May 6—More than 80 per cent of 6000 New Hampshire voters solidly support President Eisenhower's foreign and domestic policies, Representative Perkins Bass (Rep.), New Hampshire, reported today in announcing results of a poll he had conducted.

"I'm sure that we in New Hampshire reflect in only a small way what people are thinking throughout the country," Bass said. "Based on this poll, I predict Ike will run and be re-elected in 1956." New Hampshire's presidential preference primary is less than a year away.

Bass's poll indicated that 89 per cent of the voters favored Mr. Eisenhower's domestic program, and 81 per cent his foreign policy.

Results of the New Hampshire poll were almost exactly similar to those of a state-wide poll in Iowa a fortnight ago conducted by Senator Thomas E. Martin (Rep.) of that state, who mailed 42,561 questionnaires and received 6599 replies.

COURT PLACES HIGHER VALUE ON LESCHEN FAMILY'S STOCK

A value of $1,598,315 was placed on stock held by members of the Leschen family in the old A. Leschen & Sons Rope Co., Inc., in a judgment entered by Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin yesterday. The judgment is against the Watson-Stillman Co., a subsidiary of H. K. Porter Co. of Pittsburgh. The Porter firm bought 70 per cent of Leschen stock at $75 a share in 1953 and merged the company with its subsidiary. Members of the Leschen family refused to sell their stock for that price and brought suit asking the court to set a fair value on their holdings. The judgment gives the family $184.80 a share.

Plaintiffs and the amount they will receive are Mrs. Betty Norma Leschen Phelps, $55,002; Mrs. Suzanne L. Naunheim, $13,241; Mrs. Amy L. Moore, $32,797; Mrs. Edna H. Leschen, $61,113; John A. Leschen II, $13,241; William F. Leschen, $305,566—all St. Louisans—and Mrs. Mary G. Roebeling of Trenton, N.J., as trustee for her son, Paul Roebeling of Trenton, $1,117,355.

RHODE ISLAND GOVERNOR
REFUSES $10,000 PAY RISE

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 6 (AP)—Gov. Dennis J. Roberts today refused a $10,000 pay hike to $25,000 annually, which would have made him one of the highest paid governors.

In vetoing a bill, which would have given other state officers smaller increases, the Governor, a Democrat, said he did not believe state officers should receive boosts in a term to which they had been elected.

CINCO DE MAYO
CELEBRANTS RIOT
IN SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 6 (AP)—Hundreds of persons celebrating Mexico's national holiday—Cinco de Mayo—rioted last night when a policeman arrested three of the celebrants for disturbing the peace.

Police wielded night sticks and drew their pistols to quell the disturbance in Castano park. Officers arrested 100 persons on charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

A dozen officers were bruised by stones thrown at them however, no one apparently was hurt enough to go to a hospital. Police said the trouble started when patrolman Mike Tijerina put his three prisoners in his squad car and started to drive off.

The prisoner in the front seat began kicking him and Tijerina was forced to stop.

The crowd then surged toward the squad car, throwing stones, and began shaking it. Tijerina radioed for help and headquarters issued a riot call, sending all available officers to the scene.

Cinco de Mayo (fifth of May) marks Mexico's victory over the French in 1862.

July 1.

BROWNELL OBJECTS TO BRICKER PLAN

160 Years of Successful Foreign Relations Should Be Considered, He Says.

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—
Attorney General Herbert Brown-nell said yesterday the Bricker amendment would place "radical limitations on the traditional sovereign powers of the United States and on the President's authority to conduct the country's foreign affairs."

He testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment. He said
"the success with which our country has dealt with both foreign and domestic problems under the Constitution for more than 160 years should not be disregarded."

Among witnesses who opposed the amendment to curb the treaty-making power were Philip B. Perlman, former solicitor general under the Truman administration; and Dean Erwin N.
Griswold of Harvard University Law School. Favoring it were Clarence Manion, former dean of Notre Dame University Law School, and the Daughters of the American Revolution, whose representatives called the amendment necessary to prevent "one-man law" and world government depriving the United States of its sovereignty.

Defeated by the Senate last year, the amendment proposed by Senator Bricker (Rep., Ohio), provides that a treaty or other international agreement in conflict with the Constitution shall be of no force or effect.

U.S. CUTS AMERICAN FIRM OUT OF CARTEL-TYPE DEAL

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—
The Department of Justice announced yesterday it had broken up American participation in an alleged cartel arrangement involving the marketing of some equipment used in textile mills and other manufacturing plants.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell said he filed an antitrust suit in the United States District Court at Cleveland. As a result of advance negotiation, he simultaneously obtained a consent decree against the American MonoRail Co. of Cleveland.

The complaint alleged American MonoRail had agreements providing for a division of world markets. It alleged North and South America were reserved for the American company, the remainder of the world being allocated to British interests. The suit named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, Dodd Investments, Ltd., of England and British MonoRail, Ltd., British manufacturer.

The consent judgment requires American MonoRail to cancel the alleged agreements with the British interests within 90 days, thus throwing open the world's markets to straight competition between the companies.

3 KILLED, 2 FACTORIES RAZED IN INDIANA FIRES

INDIANAPOLIS, May 6 (AP)— Million-dollar fires in opposite corners of northern Indiana yesterday killed three workmen, injured several other workers and firemen, destroyed two big industrial plants and damaged two others.

Three men died in the ruins of the Whitley Products, Inc., plant at Columbia City, 20 miles west of Fort Wayne in northeastern Indiana.

Seven other workmen suffered burns and three of them were hospitalized. Company spokesmen said the loss was more than $1,000,000.

At Hammond, in the northwest corner of the state, the Great Lakes Warehouse Corp. building was destroyed, along with its contents. The nearby plants of the American Chemical Service Co. and the Pratt Food Co. were damaged.

The loss of the warehouse building alone was set at $1-000,000 and there were unofficial estimates that the contents and the damage to the other buildings would add up to $1,000,000.

P.-T.A. URGED TO MAKE PLANS FOR EVACUATING CHILDREN

Use of the Parent-Teachers Association as the organizing unit of civil defense plans in the public schools was urged here yesterday by Col. W. D. Paschall of the St. Louis Office of Civil Defense.

Speaking at a monthly meeting of the St. Louis Council of Parent-Teacher Associations at Stix, Baer & Fuller department store, he said plans for evacuating school children in the event of attack should be made immediately.

He added that parents should decide now whether they want their children to come home from school or be evacuated directly from school. In the latter event, additional plans for transportation would have to be made, he said.

4-Alarm Fire on Franklin Ave.

Rush-Hour Traffic Re-routed—Two Men Carried to Safety.

Fire swept through the warehouse of the Co. at 1700 Franklin avenue late yesterday, causing rush-hour traffic to be rerouted and attracting a large crowd of home-bound workers. Four alarms were sounded.

Dense smoke poured from the three floors of the brick building and spread through an adjoining structure at 1704 Franklin, where firemen carried two men to safety. They were Isaac Hendricks, 50 years old, 1720 (rear) Franklin, and John Ginkopoulas, 57, 1704A Franklin. Both were in Ginkopoulas's room when they became ill of smoke inhalation.

Automobile and bus traffic was routed around the fire by police who set up fire lines to hold back spectators, and the Public Service Co. set up a shuttle bus service on by-pass route when Wallston street was blocked by fire fighting equipment.

The warehouse, contained mattresses, stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and household furniture.

Twenty-six pieces of fire fighting equipment answered the

An old St. Louis company that has been known for 30 years for selling only fine-quality furniture, appliances and clothing—now their huge warehouse stock, slightly damaged by smoke and water, has been purchased from the insurance company by Gold Front Store Co. at an extremely favorable price—and the bargains are your benefit. In many cases the damage is so slight you will have to search carefully to find it! Whether you need one piece or a houseful, this is the greatest opportunity of a lifetime!

This fire was an unfortunate incident in the life of a well-known firm. We do not wish to trade on the value of their good name, and for that reason their name has been omitted from the reproduction of the news article. Every sale must be final, no exchanges, no refunds, and all goods also has been included. Shop immediately for best bargains.

Timely TV Tribute To Courageous Editor

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, May 6. EDWARD R. MURROW'S low bow to Roland K. Towery, the small town Texas editor who unearthed a major land scandal in the Texas Veterans Administration, was astonishingly well-timed.

ROLAND K. TOWERY.

The "See It Now" camera crew had been down in Cuero, Tex., for weeks shooting the story. After it was wrapped up, they stayed an extra day on the bare chance Towery might win the Pulitzer prize. Editor Towery, who is one-third of the editorial staff of the Cuero Record, answers all the phone calls at the paper after 4 p.m. when the awards were announced, they just started the camera grinding every time the phone rang. Eventually the right call came through and Towery became the very picture of astonished modesty.

"You're not joking, are you?" said Towery into the phone, a grin slowly spreading over his face that I thought would crack it in half. "Well, the world of wonders never ceases. Well, for goodness sake!" And again, after a moment: "Well, for goodness sake!"

★ ★ ★ THEN HIS CO-WORKERS crowded in to congratulate him. It was a heart-warming scene and an excellent example of how the Murrow crew gets some perfectly wonderful acting out of amateurs who are just playing themselves.

It was quite a story. Towery, a young, earnest, easygoing veteran of Bataan, gradually uncorked a scandal that reached right up into the statehouse and in so doing risked the ire of some pretty important people.

In conclusion, Murrow remarked pointedly: "3800 isn't much circulation, not much power as newspapers are generally measured. But courage and power are not always found in the same package. There are newspapers and radio and television networks with bigger circulations and greater potential power than the Cuero Record. The Pulitzer committee merely called attention to courage, perhaps in the hope that it will be contagious."

★ ★ ★ THIS IS NOT ONLY a handsome compliment from the representative of one medium to that of another but also a pretty sharp reminder that radio and television, Murrow's own media, are not exactly noted for courage.

The absence of courage on the part of radio and television (Murrow is a conspicuous exception) is not cowardice, exactly; it is more the absence of a tradition of editorial leadership which newspapers have had for so long that they take it for granted. Broadcasters have never taken any such thing for granted. The idea still lingers—though the pressure of events is gradually destroying it—that a network is a communication medium open for hire to any respectable person with money in his pocket, just like a telephone.

★ ★ ★ BROADCASTERS SEEM curiously unaware of the power they possess. In newspaper history, it is not at all uncommon for an editor to toss an advertiser, who presumed to dictate editorial policy, right down the stairs and toss his ads out of the paper. Even for a network with hundreds of times the power and money of any newspaper, this would be unthinkable. Now, this is not entirely timidity (though there's plenty of that, too); it's simply the tradition that he customer is always right—just like Macy's.

That's a splendid policy for a department store but not at all appropriate for a network. It's not the moral fiber of the industry that's at fault; it's a whole philosophy which ought to be replaced. Actually, there are signs that it is being replaced by something more positive and assertive—but it's not going to happen overnight. It didn't happen overnight in newspapers either.

Cancer Treatments

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

THE latest medical applications of X-rays, radium and other radio-active materials to the diagnosis and treatment of disease occupied the Fifth Inter-American Congress on Radiology in Washington, D.C., the week of April 25.

Cancer research, diagnosis and treatment had a big place in the scientific discussions by Central and North American doctors.

A Texas radiation specialist reported that hollow needles containing radium implanted in the cancer is still one of the most effective treatments. Even in this age of super-power X-ray machines and powerful radioactive cobalt, Dr. Charles L. Martin of Dallas, Tex., observed that radium needles are highly effective. They can deliver radiation to accessible localized cancer, such as in the cervix, in sufficient quantity to kill it without harming nearby normal tissues of the body.

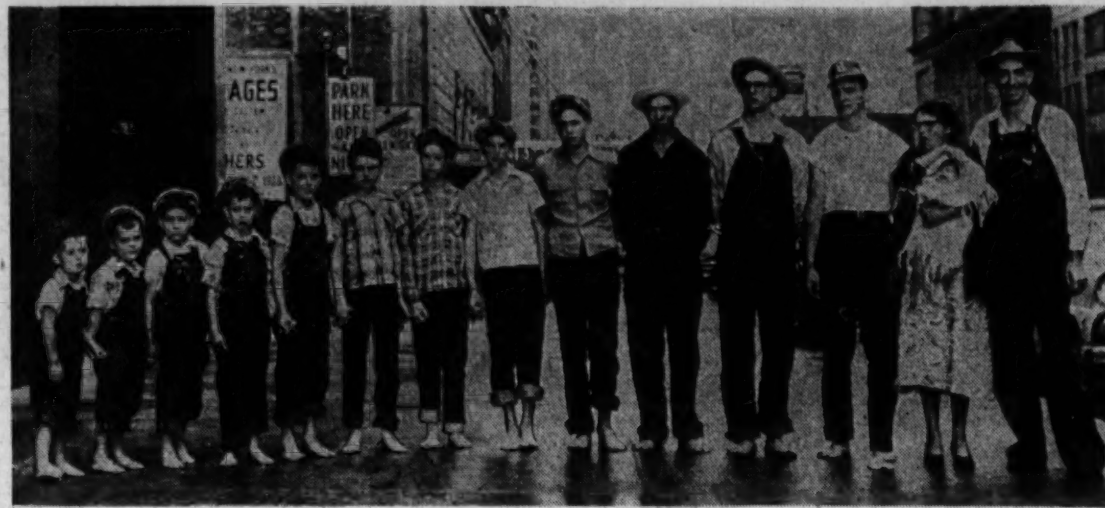

★ ★ ★ ANOTHER REPORT, by Dr. Raymond R. Lanier, described experiments on mice, indicating that some chemicals made X-ray treatment of cancer more effective. Dr. Lanier is radiologist of the University of Colorado School of Medicine. His group has used nine different chemical compounds in experiments on mice, tending to show the chemicals make certain mouse cancer more susceptible to the killing effect of X-rays. He doesn't yet know why. Finding that out might reveal more about the still-hidden basic growth differences between cancer and normal tissues.

★ ★ ★ ANOTHER APPROACH in cancer research was described by Alice E. Moore, of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research. Miss Moore said, "We're trying to find a virus which, when injected into a cancerous tumor, will kill the tumor but leave the patient healthy and unharmed." Working with mice, Miss Moore has used six viruses from Africa and South America and one from Russia that tend to kill cancer without hurting the animal. One tumor that usually kills all the mice was destroyed by the virus and the mice remained well. However, these mice had been bred to resist fatal infection by the virus.

When tried in human beings having cancer who volunteered, the virus treatment did not produce any real benefit. Human experiments were stopped. Miss Moore said, "As usual, only more work will tell whether this (virus) approach to the problem (of cancer) has any future."

13 Sons, Poverty, but No Delinquency

Mother Gets Award, Boys Hit TV Jackpot, Father Tells How They Raised Them

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP). HE parents of what is believed to be the nation's largest all-boy family don't see why poverty should cause juvenile delinquency.

Emory and Thelma Harrison, a farm couple who live near Johnson City, Tenn., have 13 sons ranging in staid style down from 21-year-old Guy to Ivan, an infant of three weeks. Money poor all his life, Harrison said his children "never caused us a speck of trouble," and explained why.

"It's the way we raised them. We raised them to obey us, never to bother anybody, and never to pick up anything that belonged to anybody else."

"If they need a spanking, they get it. But they don't need it often. Each has his chore—one feeds the hogs corn, one feeds them slops, one does the milking. Some dry the dishes, some cut wood, some carry it in."

"They all help each other. The big boys are just as crazy about the new baby as my wife and me are."

"There never was a child born but what there was a bite made to fill its mouth with—but there have been fathers and mothers too trifling to fill a child's mouth."

"When we had one child we just lived. When we had six children we lived. Now we got 13—and we're still living."

Mrs. Harrison was named "Honorary Mother of the Year" by the Inter-faith Movement in recognition of "her exemplary life as wife, mother and neighbor." The Robert Hall clothing firm paid the expenses of the entire family here so they could see her get the award.

★ ★ ★ DURING a four-day stay the boys won a $3200 jackpot in cash and prizes on a television network show, "On Your Account." But the wonders of Manhattan paled quickly and left the whole family homesick.

"It's corn plantin' time," explained Harrison.

The tall, rawboned farmer, who had to quit school after the fourth grade to go to work, is a man of natural dignity with a rich vein of homespun humor.

Having a large family came naturally to the Harrisons. His wife is one of 16 children. His grandfather, a religious man as he tells it, had 27 children, three wives, rode a red mule to church every Sunday until he was 85, and died triumphant at 93, still praising the Lord for a good life.

"And he raised all 27 children on a 70-acre farm," said Harrison.

"I courted for a year before I got married when I was 23," he added. "I'll never forget that day. I didn't have anything at all—only a woman"—Mrs. Harrison glanced up with a shy smile—"and maybe 75 cents in my pocket. I earned only $2 the first week we were married."

After years of struggling labor during which he sometimes had to go out after his day's work and cut wood to trade it for groceries, Harrison was able with the help of a friend to buy a 72-acre hill farm.

The farm has two horses, three cows, 225 chickens, six or eight hogs, a large vegetable garden. The cash crops are wheat, corn and tobacco.

"We don't spend more than $13 to $14 a week for food," Harrison said. "We raise the rest."

"I don't believe our medical bills have been more than $50 all told since we were married, not counting the cost of getting the boys born."

"If they get a cold I just mix up some hog lard, turpentine and kerosene, rub it on their chest—then turn 'em off barefooted. We don't pay no attention to 'em not wearing shoes."

★ ★ ★ ONE Tuesday last October a fire destroyed their home. For the first time in his life Harrison felt completely down at heart. But the next Sunday the congregations of 12 nearby churches pitched in with money, materials and labor and built the family a larger, better home.

"I think I know now what faith and friendship come to," said Harrison. "I've known a right smart of trouble, but I've had a happy life."

"But the children—they're the biggest enjoyment we've got in this world. It would be lonesome without any one of our children. We'd miss him."

Mrs. Harrison nodded quietly. Harrison said he hoped to use the cash money the family won on television to give his boys as much schooling as possible.

"If I give them an education I know it's the one thing nobody'll be able to take away from them later on," he said. "It'll help 'em go farther than their daddy."

A Simple Duty
Secrets of Charm

MANY women, and a few men, too, ask if there isn't too much self-interest in a wish to develop charm.

Actually, the development of charm is a simple duty to others as well as to yourself. By making the most of what is in you, you have the most to offer anyone else. Those you meet and casual acquaintances enjoy seeing you. The hours, days, and years fellow workers, friends and your family spend with you are enriched for them by your own honest effort to share and to give your best self.

It is quite wrong to suppose that charm can be copied. Your own unique and intricate measure of charm must be discovered, not patterned after a model of perfection. The reason for this is that charm cannot be put on. It must come from the inside, and the fundamental you is different from others, just as your physical self is different.

Just as individual characteristics enter the physical picture, they also enter the personality picture. You stand the ways of others, but you cannot merely adopt them. You must learn to recognize your own best qualities and to bring them out into a sum total of the finest person that it is possible for you to be.

Until a sincere effort is made to develop charm, you may not realize the good qualities you have. But a sincere effort never seeks to clothe ego in a glittering sheath. It does, instead, without your being aware of it, bring out an inner shine.

GOOD BUYMANSHIP: If you need a water heater—and your water is hard and corrosive—an electric heater lined with rust-proof hydraulic stone should work well. At least one is now available with a 20-year guarantee.

★ ★ ★ Stainless steel sinks are now being priced competitively with cast iron. One 17-pound twin-bowl model without seams or crevices, and with sound-deadening undercoat, costs $57. . . . Some turkeys are now going from producer to kitchen oven-wrapped in heavy aluminum foil which keeps them in good condition, saves time, fuel, all juices in roasting.

★ ★ ★ Watch for upholstered furniture with "built-in" slip covers—zippered sets, fitted to the foam rubber cushions. . . . Look for silicone treatment in increasing list of items: women's suede jackets (silicone makes suede as cleanable as fabric), men's white dinner jackets (water-borne stains wipe off), golf shoes (repel moisture from wet grounds), and sun-tan lotions (stay on through dips).

★ ★ ★ NEW PRODUCTS Steam-Powered Rotisserie: Now there's a portable rotisserie that turns by its own steam power—no electricity, wires or motor needed. Put two quarts of water in the tank, light charcoal, and steam is quickly generated to turn meat on the spit. A valve regulates steam pressure and turning speed. Folded up into attractive suitcase container, it's easy to carry along for picnics, beach parties, camping and automobile trips, easy to set up on its pull-out legs. At home, it fits neatly on the andirons in the fireplace.

★ ★ ★ Self-in-the-Wall: If you need more storage space around your house, garage or workshop, you can get it neatly with a steel five-shelf unit that goes right into a wall. It fits between standard stud spacings, recesses two and three-fourth inches deep to fit even a 2x3 wall. Its trim flange adds three-fourth-inch more depth, makes it 38 inches high, 16 inches wide. Easy to install with a professional look, you simply hold shelf against wall, mark opening to be cut, saw through, insert shelf, screw to side studs, and flange covers cut neatly all around. Cost: $8.95.

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, giving date of appearance and enclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Money in Teen-Ager's Date Life

By Elinor Williams

MONEY—that's the Big Problem in the date-lives of many of the high school boys who get out their pens and write to me.

Money for dates. They want to enjoy date fun as much as anybody, they explain, but simply do not have the folding money for many dates, corsages, proms, etc.

These boys aren't dull or unattractive, by any means. Many of them are popular and have part-time jobs, but they must buy their clothes or help the family budget with almost all of what they earn. Not much left for date-doings.

But it's not such a dark-blue situation, boys, if you remember that many girls (except the gold-diggers!) would rather have an inexpensive date than none at all. It's a fact.

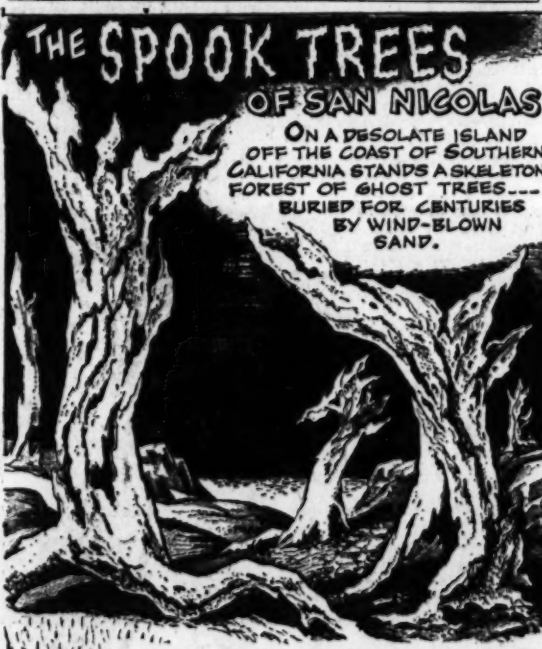

A girl who really likes you will consider it a date if you walk home with her from a meeting of the Camera club at school. She'll want to go to school games, track meets . . . even a practice session of your favorite team . . . and will probably invite you in afterward for a snack.

When you've found a girl who "has fun just being with you," explain your money problem and she'll suggest house dates, a walk in the park, a picnic on Saturday afternoon.

Meanwhile, you can have fun without much money in your church's young people's group, a neighborhood or community club, the Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.W.C.A.'s social doings (their clubrooms have many activities that don't cost a cent).

Look into the free concerts, programs and classes in the art museum, public library or civic center. Get a friend to teach you to play bridge, then ask two girls to make it a foursome. Good luck!

Tasty Tricks

For quick as a wink Eggs Benedict, for each serving, place slices of cheese on toast, top with poached egg, and serve with celery sauce made by combining one-fourth cup milk with one can condensed cream of celery soup.

My Neighbor Says:

When you apply wall linoleum or tileboard, it often pays to put up a temporary brace to hold the material tight against the wall until the cement is hard. The portion of the brace coming in contact with the wall material should be covered with a cloth so it won't damage the high finish of the material.

Should you want to paint over woodwork that has been finished with a red mahogany stain, better play safe and give the surface a coat of aluminum paint to serve as a seal. If you don't, the stain may "bleed" into the paint.

The New Films

By Myles Standish

Cute, Delightful and Refreshing

A FINE example of how Hollywood can improve on even a good play is offered in "SABRINA," which opens tonight at the ST. LOUIS THEATER. The outline of the plot—the great American fairy tale, poor girl nabs rich boy—has been retained, and some of the best lines of dialogue. But Producer-Director Billy Wilder has collaborated on the script with Samuel Taylor, author of the play, "Sabrina Fair," and Ernest Lehman, to rewrite it into a sophisticated romantic comedy which is even more delightful and adroit than the original, carries much more conviction and a stronger plot structure, and is handsomely performed.

It is ironic indeed that one of the stalest of plot themes should be so cutely and refreshingly executed. Wilder has given it a crisp cleverness and considerable charm in his handling of the scenes. As the sons of the vastly wealthy Long Island Larrabee family, Humphrey Bogart and William Holden bear witness to the stimulating effects of off-beat casting—Humphrey as a rigidly reserved and conservative business giant, Bill as a debonair wealthy playboy. The skill with which they invest their unfamiliar roles serves as a frame for the luminous and enchanting Audrey Hepburn as Sabrina Fairchild, the chauffeur's daughter, who goes to Paris to cooking school and return a svelte, sophisticated and ravishing creature who immediately has the playboy at her feet. It is hard to tell just how much of Miss Hepburn's performance is due to her lissome elfin radiance and how much to her considerable talents as an actress, but anyway the net results are remarkable. She makes the role glow. Her warm velvety voice, carrying the witty opening narration, alone sets the mood of the comedy.

Part of the effect of this film is obtained in the settings. It was all right to talk casually about great wealth in the play, but the impact of the huge fortune of the Larrabees hits you with views of the great estate with its terraces, swimming pools (indoor and out), tennis courts (indoor and out) 20-car garage, private dock, etc., and the magnificent offices in which Linus Larrabee does his tycoon-ing (okay, there isn't any such word).

Merry Medics

In contrast to the grimness of the medical school sequences in "Not as a Stranger," shortly to be released as a moving picture, a British film, "DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE," opening tonight at the SHADY OAK and RICHMOND takes a light-hearted view of the thing, reasoning it isn't a sin to have fun, even while training to be a savior of mankind. The comedy, which traces four young men through St. Swithin's medical school for five years, is gay, rollicking, uninhibited and quite funny—reminiscent in its brightness and added approach to last year's British gem, "Genevieve."

Taken from a novel by Richard Gordon, it is a merry and loosely episodic tale which takes a wacky and irreverent view of the trials of a medical student's life—from the confusion and timidity of most of the students, hopelessly baffled by the spate of technical knowledge being ruthlessly crammed into them, to the efforts of his pals to introduce a young man who studies too hard to the diversions of a love life. Though some of the antics of the students are reminiscent of "Petey Simmons at Siwash," they have a zestful rather than purely juvenile air, and are balanced by some frankness in the delineation of the Bohemian life of the four students which makes its point perfectly clear while being in good taste.

Dirk Bogarde is the serious, if bewildered student. Kenneth More, who will be remembered from "Genevieve," contributes another diverting comic job as an insouciant, jaunty young man who is making a career of being a student because his income from his grandmother's estate stops when he graduates. Donald Sinden is another playboy veteran, and Donald Houston a rugby fanatic. George Coulouris contributes some bright bits as a guinea-pig patient who knows more about his own illness than the medical students. Kay Kendall and Suzanne Coutier add both beauty and to the general alien of the piece.

Lady Doctor, Sick Plot

At first, "STRANGE LADY IN TOWN," at the FOX, shows promise of being a different Western, a romantic comedy with a pungent idea—how a woman physician (Greer Garson) comes to Santa Fe in 1879 and battles for her right to practice the medical profession against the concerted prejudice of the population and the particularly sarcastic opposition of the established local doc (Dana Andrews).

Red-headed Greer is still every inch the cool and charming lady, even when having chow with some cowhands she meets out on the range when her rig breaks down, and it is too bad her aptitude for the role is wasted in a weak script. For where the subject could have used the witty sociological comments of a Bernard Shaw, it has been penned with a blunt instrument by Scripser Frank Butler. There is no wit, so in place of it is substituted rapid fodder.

The heroine has a weak brother, an Army lieutenant (Cameron Mitchell) given to such peccadilloes as cheating at cards, shooting opponents who protest, defrauding the Army and bank robbery. Misunderstandings in love early smother out misunderstandings on the rights of women. The woman physician's victory over her opponent in treating a girl psychotic case is signaled by an irrelevant brutal fist-fight. The climax concerns a melodramatic gun battle and a threatening mob, hardly apropos of the question of women in medicine. This diverted, rather than diverting comedy is in CinemaScope, which again proves a wide screen can't disguise a narrow imagination.

The co-feature, "TEN WANTED MEN," suffers from no such dramatic schizophrenia. It starts out to be a stock action Western and ends up that way. It knows its one purpose is to show Randy Scott playing himself again, which he can do very well by now. It's about the good people of a town being bullied by the ruffians before they fight it out. Randy finally catches the murderous shoot, Richard Boone, with his gunbelt off, but does Randy shoot him? No, he gives Boone two chances to grab a revolver before letting him have a slug in the belly. This demonstration of fair play will doubtless have a salutary moral effect on the kiddies who watch their hero at work. Teaches them never to shoot a man unless he has a gun, too.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A STRONG-MINDED LADY always bought the suits her husband wore. The worm turned one day, however. He positively shouted at his wife, "Where did you pick up these awful trousers I've got on?"

"In a bargain basement," she admitted. "They're seconds."

"Hmph," he growled. "I stooped over in them at the office, and now they're split seconds."

A PUBLISHER, introducing his most distinguished author, used some very flowing language by way of proving he belonged in the same league. He tossed in one six-syllable word, then became worried, and asked the author, "That's the way it's pronounced, isn't it?"

"Yes, indeed," agreed the amiable author. "Frequently!"

The Legend and the Lady

Garbo—The Woman Behind the Wall

She Broke With Gilbert After Death of Stiller, Lived Secluded, Frugal Life in Rented House

By John Chamberlain

(Sixth of a Series.)

THE success of Greta Garbo's protracted strike against M-G-M added one more bright threat to the fabric of her legend. A virtual newcomer to Hollywood, she had quietly but firmly defied its mores by disputing the wisdom of Louis B. Mayer, one of the film community's most powerful chieftains. She had taken issue with him on the highly sensitive subject of money, and she had made her will prevail. Her legendary character was now endowed with another element: sagacity.

Her business manager, Harry Edington, took steps to see that this newly acquired reputation for astuteness was perpetuated. From reading stories that had been published about his new client he realized that her remarks in print did not always sound like conversational pearls. Acting on the proposition that silence never betrays, he advised her to stop giving interviews, except any that he might approve. In addition, Edington used his influence at M-G-M to put an end to the practice of using his client in circus-type publicity photographs.

By design and by happenstance Garbo was gradually being fashioned into the legendary figure who was to become known as "the Swedish Sphinx," mysterious and wise. She needed to be invested with one other quality, Edington felt, and that was dignity. He decided that she should no longer be spoken of as Greta Garbo; instead she was to be called, with simple dignity, just Garbo, as if she were a latter-day Bernhardt or Duse. Edington's idea was happily accepted by the M-G-M publicity department, and it wasn't long before the word "Garbo" could mean only one thing—in English or nearly any other language—the woman of legend.

In keeping with her rise in stature, Garbo was next cast in the title role of an adaptation of Tolstoy's classic, "Anna Karenina." The title of the film, which was a modern-dress version of the novel, was thoughtfully changed to "Love," possibly because John Gilbert was again co-starred with Miss Garbo and, reports of their romance being in wide circulation, Metro could see no serious disadvantage in being able to advertise the picture with the potent and timely caption, "John Gilbert and Greta Garbo in 'Love.'"

"Love," when exhibited, brought forth a shower of praise from the critics and a rain of cash at the box office. At the premier the management saw fit to emphasize the nature of the film by projecting an enormous, blood-red heart on the stage curtains during the playing of the overture.

MAURITZ STILLER had now come to the end of the road in Hollywood. After the success of "Hotel Imperial," he had directed not one more picture, as he had planned, but two. Both were failures. He had gotten into a squabble with Paramount and had left the studio with bad feelings on both sides. Blacklisted by both Paramount and Metro and ailing in health, Stiller packed his belongings and headed for home. Both Garbo and Stiller wept when he kissed her goodbye.

"I will see you soon, Moje," she called as Stiller waved farewell from the departing train. That was the last time she saw her mentor.

When Stiller returned to Sweden, he was suffering from a lung ailment and also, though he did not then know it, from an incurable circulatory disease. In the fall of 1928, he collapsed and was taken to the Red-Cross Hospital.

It was there that Victor Seastrom, who returned to Stockholm with his family in November, found his old friend, eager to hear all the news, especially about his protégée. She had written a few letters, but Stiller had dozens of questions. She was then in the middle of making her eighth American film, "Wild Orchids," in which she was being supported by her countryman Nils Asther. When she finished her current film, she was going to have a few weeks off, and she was coming home for Christmas. Stiller cheerfully predicted that he would be out of the hospital by the time she returned.

But his condition worsened and on Nov. 8, 1928, he died, at the age of 45. Seastrom cabled the message of Stiller's death to Garbo. The wire was delivered to her on the set of "Wild Orchids," where she was playing a love scene with Asther.

"She turned deathly pale," one of the men who was on the set has said. "I thought she was going to faint. She walked slowly away from all of us, as if she were in a trance. When she got to the other side of the building, she stood there leaning against the wall with her hands pressed against her eyes for several minutes. Then she pulled herself together, came back and continued the scene. She didn't say a word to anyone about what was in the wire."

Whether Stiller was in love with Garbo and she with him is a matter on which his closest friends have never agreed. But all such speculation is unnecessary. For by her actions through the years Garbo has revealed more clearly than any words what Stiller meant to her. From the day of his death she has been engaged in a never-ending search to find a substitute for Mauritz Stiller.

Her sorrow was alleviated to some extent by her preparations for returning to Stockholm for Christmas. It was a triumphant homecoming. To Garbo's disgust, however, she was besieged with requests for interviews, her phone rang almost incessantly, until she had it disconnected. One morning she taxied to the office of Hugo Lindberg, who had been Stiller's attorney and was acting as executor of his estate. Garbo asked permission to look at Stiller's possessions, which were in storage, awaiting auction.

"I went with her," Lindberg said recently, "and I remember vividly how she walked about the room, touching this item and that."

Before leaving, Garbo asked Lindberg for directions to find Stiller's grave. He told her in what part of the cemetery, on the outskirts of Stockholm, Stiller had been buried, and offered to accompany her there.

"Thank you," she said, "I will go alone." Though Garbo's friends were aware that she planned to start back to Hollywood early in March, she kept the exact date of her departure a tightly held secret and was thus able to slip out of Stockholm without having a brush with photographers.

When, a couple of weeks later, the studio received word from its New York office that Garbo had been entrained for Hollywood, M-G-M made plans for a suitable reception. Metro executives and a mob of fans were on hand to meet her train at the Los Angeles station. She wasn't on it. She had gotten off instead at San Bernardino, where she was met by Gilbert, ebullient as ever. In the three months she had been gone he had talked of her incessantly to his friends. They knew that he regretted the bitter quarrels he and Garbo had had before she left and that he had hoped of reviving his tempestuous romance with "The Swede."

But absence, in her case, had not had the advertised effect of making the heart grow fonder. Before she and Gilbert reached Hollywood, they were quarreling again. According to Gilbert, Garbo told him, "You are a very foolish boy, Yucky. You quarrel with me for nothing. I must do my way. But we need not part."

That was not the speech that Gilbert had hoped to hear from his leading lady. He came to the conclusion at last that his affair with her lack of love had no chance of a happy ending.

WHILE on location at Catalina Island, Garbo learned of Gilbert's sudden marriage to the well-known actress Ina Claire. The information came as a considerable surprise not only to Garbo but to the entire movie colony. Gilbert had met his most recent bride one week after Garbo had returned from Sweden.

Garbo received the news from a reporter who flew to Catalina with the first edition of the newspaper carrying the story under a banner headline reading "John Gilbert Weds Actress." Encountering Garbo on the set, the reporter handed her the newspaper spread open to reveal the glaring headline. She glanced at it, scanned the story and returned the paper. "Thank you," she said. The reporter began pressing her with questions about her reaction to the news. "I hope Mr. Gilbert will be very happy," she said, and walked away.

The fact that Garbo declined ever to say anything further in public about Gilbert's marriage did not prevent Hollywood columnists and fan magazines from speculating at great length on how she felt about it. But aside from her great annoyance at the fanciful stories about the affair, Garbo was not, according to people who were close to her at the time, much affected by the denouement of her friendship with Gilbert.

When the commotion was at its height, Garbo made up her mind to remove herself as far as possible from the maddening crowd. The only person who knew where she had gone was Harry Edington, her business manager, who at Garbo's request had rented for her a home at 1027 Chevy Chase Drive, a quiet residential street in Beverly Hills. A conventional two-story structure of California-Spanish architecture, it had eight rooms and three baths. Behind the house was a garden planted with lemon trees and at the rear of the garden was a swimming pool. A high, rose-covered cement wall separated Garbo's property from the one adjoining hers at the far end of the garden.

Having acquired the house,

Barbo requested Edington to make arrangements for help; she wanted a Swedish couple, the woman to cook and the man to serve as butler and chauffeur. The first couple Garbo interviewed were a young pair named Gustaf and Sigrid Norin. Gustaf had come from Sweden with the hope of breaking into the movies but had had no luck; his wife, though a good cook, had never held a job before. They were low on cash and thought it would be a living as well as a lark to work for Garbo. She talked to them briefly in Swedish, and said they could have the job.

WHILE Garbo was living her exclusive existence on Chevy Chase drive, her legend was growing apace. The magazines responsible for keeping the world informed on the thoughts and deeds of America's film aristocracy were consistently thwarted in their efforts to discover why she had taken up these strange, hermitlike ways and how she spent her hours. Some capitalized on their lack of information by explaining what they had not been able to discover about "The Woman Who Lives Behind a Wall." More interesting were the articles that made no pretense of presenting factual information but dwelt instead on the loftier plane of character analysis.

"She is a woman about whom it is easier to feel than to speak," one article began, a trifle discouragingly. Making a stab at defining the unusual personality, the author went on: "There is no mystery here, unless it is that mysterious and unbearable ache that lies at the mainspring of humanity. . . . She was born with that same thing Chopin came into the world with, and which his Slavonic mother called 'zoll' and the Germans 'velt-schmerz.' A world-pain, life-hurt."

At length, after probing other corners of Miss Garbo's soul, the author concluded: "There you have her. This tall, white, Scandinavian woman, who marches to some unstruck music, inscrutable, authentic and sure."

As a matter of fact, when this tribute was published, Garbo was listening, if not exactly marching, to the music of Sophie Tucker. The songs of "The Last of the Red-Hot Mamas" evidently helped to soothe Garbo's life-hurt, since she played them oftener than any others. Her taste in literature, as her Swedish couple observed, was also down to earth. Though she occasionally read novels, her favorite reading matter consisted of movie fan magazines. Gustaf the butler had instructions to keep his employer supplied with the latest issues of all the screen magazines; Garbo pored over them by the hour, marking the articles about herself. If, in his magazine shopping, Gustaf made a mistake and bought two copies of the same issue, Garbo sent him back to the stationery store with the duplicate to get a refund. Once in a while he was also given the chore of returning magazines in which Garbo had found no article about herself and negotiating a refund for them too.

Garbo displayed a highly developed sense of economy in other directions. The day Gustaf went to work, Garbo informed him that he was to be in charge of doing all the buying for the house and that the monthly budget for all household expenses, including food, was not to exceed $100. By using considerable ingenuity and shopping at cash-and-carry markets, Gustaf managed to hold the first month's expenditures down to $85. However, after Garbo had examined the bills at the end of the month, she called Gustaf in and complained that he had been extravagant.

"We found we couldn't please her, no matter how we schemed," Gustaf said later. "She scolded on general principles. It was a comedy at the end of every month."

SIGRID was in charge of taking care of Garbo's wardrobe, which was not extensive. Her preference in clothes ran to plainly tailored tweed and jersey suits. With these she wore men's shirts and ties, of which she had a large assortment. She seldom wore anything except men's oxfords.

Most of Garbo's recreations were solitary ones—swimming in her pool, lying in the sun, walking and horseback riding. She liked especially to walk in the rain, partly because it provided a kind of natural screen that isolated her from people. On Sunday afternoons she generally went to the movies, sometimes in Pasadena, Long Beach or some other nearby town, where she felt the chances of not being recognized were fairly good. She was impressed by Gary Cooper's acting and seldom missed one of his pictures. She also made a point of seeing every film directed by Ernest Lubitsch and Erich von Stroheim and usually saw her own pictures two or three times, on different occasions.

And then, after a long spell of being in virtual hiding behind the walls of her house on Chevy Chase Drive, Garbo gradually emerged.

1♠ Pass 1NT Pass
2♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
4♥ Pass Pass Pass

Obviously, North-South bid the hand up to the hilt, but each and every call was well within the bounds of reason. North felt, logically, that he had enough in high cards and distribution to give South another chance when South mentioned his second major suit, and South saw no compelling reason to hang just one trick short of game at rubber bridge.

West made his natural opening, the king of clubs. This was taken in dummy, and South lost no time in setting up his spades. He cashed the king and ace, then led a third round, ruffing on the table. Obviously, however, this effort was doomed. East overruffed and returned a club. West won and led his last spade, letting East overruff dummy again. This gave the defenders three tricks, and it was rather difficult for South to avoid the loss of a diamond.

The situation in this hand, i.e., establishing a vital side suit via one or more ruffs, as needed, comes up time and again, and it will repay players to give it some thought. South started off correctly when he took the first trick, cashed the king and ace of spades and led a third spade, but his ruff of this spade was anything but correct. He should have discarded the jack of clubs, letting the enemy win the spade trick.

Observe the vast difference effected by this change in technique. First, the spade suit may break 3-3, so that it is now established with this concession of one trick; but even though it does not break, South will still win out. It does not matter what West returns after winning the spade. South ruffs a club quite safely on the board, and can then afford to have East overruff on the next spade lead. . . . Try it out for yourself.

If you want a fine-flavored pot of tea, use water that is boiling furiously. Water that's "very hot" won't do.

Summer Trips Abroad For Many St. Louisans

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

PRESENT schedules indicate that ships crossing the Atlantic this summer will be crowded with St. Louisans all bound for a summer in Europe. Among the most recent to complete plans are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Lee of the St. Regis apartments, 4054 Lindell boulevard, who are to sail June 8 on the Constitution after a few days in New York. A nine-day cruise will take them to Italy, France and Switzerland, next on the agenda, and a visit in England is in prospect. The Lees will sail for New York on the Nieuw Amsterdam Aug. 6.

On board the Ile de France as the ship sailed yesterday from New York were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Pingree, 625 South Skinner boulevard. They expect to buy a car for a leisurely all-summer trip. A motor trip down the Brittany coast and a tour of Spain and Portugal are included in their itinerary.

The Britannic took Miss Margaret Shapleigh, 4950 Pershing avenue, and Mrs. Arthur S. Bland to Europe a few days ago. Sailing from New York late last month, the travelers, who have been abroad several times, will visit points of interest not usually seen by tourists.

The John F. Langenbergs, 7 Aberdeen place, will spend eight weeks in Europe, traveling both ways by French ships. Going over they will be on board the Flandre, sailing from New York June 18, and returning they will be passengers on the Liberté. England by car, then a visit to Mrs. Langenberg's aunt, Mrs. Erich Trawitz in Hamburg, Germany, are arranged for. Later Mr. and Mrs. Langenberg will spend some time in Italy, including a week in the lake district, and a few days in Paris.

Mrs. Langenberg will miss a visit with her sister, Mrs. William P. Yeoman of Waukegan, Ill., who is to be here in June for her twenty-fifth class reunion at Mary Institute. Mrs. Yeoman, the former Miss Susan Chaplin, will be with her mother, Mrs. Treseott F. Chaplin, 7754 Kingsbury boulevard, Clayton.

Miss Louise Moore Shoupe, who now lives in New York, will sail May 11 on the Liberté. Daughter of Mrs. Walter Clyde Shoupe, 4922 Forest Park boulevard, she will be accompanied by Miss Beverly Fleming and Miss Phyllis Tracy, New York friends with whom she will travel in England, Scotland, Ireland and France.

In England Miss Shoupe will visit her mother's cousins, Sir Chad and Lady Woodward of Arley in Worcestershire.

Miss Shoupe, associated with the juvenile department of Simon and Schuster, publishers, will also visit British and French publishers in connection with her work.

June Wedding for Miss Sallie Joseph.

MISS SALLIE JOSEPH and Ronald Walter Payne, whose engagement was announced in January, will be married Friday night, June 10, at Ladue Chapel. The 8 o'clock ceremony is to be performed by the Rev. James F. Neill. A reception will be given later in Fellowship Hall of the church by the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Joseph, 22 Brookwood Acres, Topping road, St. Louis county.

Miss Nancy Siebens will serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Crane of Glencoe, Ill., and Miss Sherrill Seeley of La Canada, Calif., former roommates of the prospective bride at the Principia College, Elsie, Ill., and Miss Mirelle Clark of New Orleans.

Mr. Payne has asked Richard C. Talbot of Joliet, Ill., to be best man. Ushers will include Richard Bates of Joliet, Douglas Stuart of Munster, Ind., and Rene Wernicke of Dalton, Ill. All are Phi Gamma Delta fraternity brothers of the bridegroom-elect. Mr. Payne, who is to be graduated June 5 from Purdue University, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Payne of Munster, Ind.

A breakfast will be given May 14 for the engaged pair by Mr. and Mrs. William Protzmann, 7223 Delmar boulevard, University City, and Mr. and Mrs. Marwood Konold in the Konold garden, 645 Scott avenue, Kirkwood. Miss Joseph will share honors with Miss Lucy King Ambler, whose marriage to Albert J. J. van L. Maas will be an event of June 9, at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Henry Fett at her home, 130 Elm avenue, Webster Groves. A kitchen shower has been planned for June 7 by Mrs. Elmer G. Kiefer, 29 Clermont lane, Ladue.

Late May Wedding for Miss Carol Holton.

PLANS have been completed by Miss Carol Lucile Holton for her wedding May 28 to Peter Martin Welk of Spokane, Wash. Miss Holton, who has been living in Spokane, arrived here April 5 to make preparation for her marriage at 8 o'clock in the morning of May 28. Msgr. Joseph A. McMahon will perform the ceremony at St. Luke's Catholic Church in Richmond Heights. Later Miss Holton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Oliver Holton, 7028 Stanley avenue, will give a breakfast for the bridal party in the St. Louis Room of the Missouri Athletic Club, an afternoon reception in the Crystal Room of the club and a dinner for out-of-town guests at Algonquin Country Club.

Mrs. Alfred di Scipio of New York, a former roommate of Miss Holton at the College of New Rochelle, N.Y., will be matron of honor and Mrs. Joseph McNulty, Washington, a classmate, Miss Marjorie Ann O'Keefe and Miss Betty Kuhlmann will be bridesmaids. Judith Elaine Meador and Catherine Ann Holton, nieces of the bride-to-be, will be junior bridesmaids and Carolyn Marie and Daniel Justin Minnich Jr., a niece and nephew, will be flower girl and ring bearer.

Mr. Welk, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Welk of Spokane, will arrive here May 24. His brother, Frederick Stephen Welk of Spokane, will be his best man and ushers will be Daniel James Aughey of Spokane, who will be graduated June 8 from St. Louis University School of Dentistry, the bride's brother, James O. Holton Jr., and her brothers-in-law, Alfred H. Richter, Daniel J. Minnich and Dr. James R. Meador. Her twin, Carl Linwood Holton, who is studying for the priesthood at St. Mary's (Ky.) College, will serve the nuptial mass.

Varied Programs for Sororities Highlight Mid-Spring Calendar

By Louise Grant Smith

DELTA ZETA has joined the list of sororities which this year have chosen Kansas City as the location for state-wide meetings. Members will attend an all-day program tomorrow at the University Women's Club where Mrs. M. J. McKee of Dallas, Tex., regional alumnae director of Delta Zeta, will be guest speaker at luncheon. Mrs. Carl Jourdan, Missouri state chairman, will preside. In the St. Louis delegation will be Mrs. Foy J. Anderson, president of the city alumnae chapter, and Mrs. C. L. Thomas, Panhellenic Association delegate.

Student members from the sorority's chapter at Missouri Valley College at Marshall, and alumnae from Missouri and eastern Kansas areas will be guests of the Kansas City alumnae chapter, the hostess group.

Kappa Alpha Theta will have a luncheon meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Don Haeffele, 818 Elm Tree lane, Kirkwood. Newly elected officers of the St. Louis chapter are: Mrs. T. R. Armstrong, president; Mrs. John W. Lose Jr., vice president; Miss Elizabeth Nolte and Mrs. E. E. Murphy, secretaries, and Mrs. William L. Spencer, treasurer.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA will honor seniors of the sorority's chapter at Washington University who will be guests at an alumnae luncheon Thursday at the home of Mrs. Albert Ahner, 1615 Holly drive, Webster Groves. Mrs. Leland Hosto, who was elected director of collegiate chapters for Zeta province at a recent area meeting in Lawrence, Kan., will speak. Mrs. Carl Chappell, hostess chairman, will serve with Mrs. Charles Grun, Mrs. Stuart Hines, Mrs. Alexander Jones and Mrs. George Barnes.

Sigma Kappa alumnae will meet Thursday evening at the Brotherhood Theme at Art Exhibit

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. I HAVE a plea for an orphanage called Madonna del Grappa, which is located near Florence in the department of Tuscany, Italy. I am told by a priest, who is at present in this country, that Monsignor Facibent at the orphanage needs help very badly.

Father Don Alfredo Ciapetti, with whom I talked and who was born here and has returned from Italy to visit his family, said that he hoped to make some contacts here in order to help these orphans.

There are more than 1000 orphan boys living in 16 houses at the orphanage, and at times, I gather, it is hard to know where to get food and clothing for them. The orphanage is taking care of little ones and older ones and trying to educate them to bring them up so they will be good citizens of Italy. But Italy's difficulties are many at present. She is not able alone to meet all the pleas that come to help children and the disabled and the ill.

SO FATHER CIAPETTI asks if there are people in this country who would be interested. Urgently he asks whether anyone will help the orphans in the Madonna del Grappa. While visiting in this country his address is 28 Codman Hill avenue, Dorchester, Mass., and I hope everyone who is interested will contact him for further information.

Children everywhere in the world must make an appeal for help because they cannot look after themselves and their future does depend on what our civilization can provide for them.

NOW, let me turn to something in this country which I think may interest many people. The World Brotherhood Organization is sponsoring an exhibit of paintings and drawings by American teen-agers on the theme, "What Brotherhood Means in Our Community."

This exhibit opened last Wednesday at the Illustrators' Club, 128 East Sixty-third street, New York City. Public and private schools from all over the country are taking part in the contest and the exhibit, naturally, represents what has been considered best.

Seven judges will select a number of these paintings and drawings for entry in an International Exhibition to be held in July in Brussels, Belgium. These young people have tried to ex-

Women's Clubs

Advertising Woman of the Year

By Fay Profilet

THE Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis has selected Miss Joan Gardner as the winner of its first annual St. Louis Advertising Women of the Year award. Miss Gardner is publicity and promotion director of St. Louis Fashion Creators. She will be presented the award at a combined meeting of the Women's Advertising Club and the Men's Advertising Club to be held at a luncheon at Hotel Statler Tuesday. Mrs. Robert A. Willer is chairman in charge of the presentation. Mrs. Agnes McCaddon, club president, will preside.

By winning the award, Miss Gardner, who has been a member of the Women's Advertising Club since 1946, now becomes the club's nominee in the national competition for Advertising Woman of the Year sponsored by the Advertising Federation of America.

Miss Gardner won the award principally for her work in promoting St. Louis as "the city of young fashions." In that connection she was the first to arrange press showings, programs for out-of-town fashion writers and press showings of St. Louis fashions in New York.

In addition to her professional work, Miss Gardner is active in community affairs. In 1949 she was one of four St. Louis women honored by the Civic League of Business and Professional Women for outstanding performance contributing to the greatness of the city. Last year she was general chairman of the "Cavalcade of Fashion," presented by the Fashion Group of St. Louis and Missouri Historical Society in celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Louisiana Purchase. She is also one of the Theta Sigma Phi group assisting in the publishing of the newspaper at the Veterans' hospital here.

St. Louis Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will have a dinner meeting at the Gatesworth Hotel Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. The guest speaker, Miss Doris Isert, will have as her subject, "Magic Suitcase."

Press in the International language of art what America's goal is in the broad picture of the brotherhood of man.

It is hoped that the exhibition will have a wide attendance during its few days to New York, for so much is said these days about juvenile delinquency that we should be attracted to an effort on the part of young people that has a high purpose and gives an outlet for creative work.

MISS GARDNER ... TO RECEIVE ADVERTISING CLUB AWARD.

Spring Concert.

THE EIGHTH DISTRICT, Missouri Federation of Music Clubs, will present a spring concert Sunday at 8 p.m. at the City Art Museum. Mrs. Fred A. Kennedy is district president and Mrs. Algine F. O'Brien is in charge of the program. Richard Fister will represent the David Earle Piano Club, and Mrs. Edward L. Eyer, the Musical Research Club. The Sonateur Choral Club of Festus, directed by Mrs. Howard Edmonds, will also participate in the program. Miss Shirley Raskas and Miss Eleanor Loida, winners of the final State Superior awards and scholarships to Inspiration Point Fine Arts Colony, Eureka Springs, Ark., and James Wainner, state and tri-state winner of the Young Artist contests, will be featured. The public may attend the concert.

The annual May luncheon of Fort San Carlos Chapter, D.A.R., will be given at Glen Echo Country Club Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. Mrs. Harvey Reis is regent. Officers will be elected and Mrs. Thomas C. Tarrant, honor roll chairman, will give a report.

Key to healing

"If God can heal some things, God can heal anything—and will," says Christian Science. If the sinner's prayer for help is answered, the sick man's prayer also can find the same response. How?

A thankful multitude testify that Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy is the "key" to this priceless understanding. It unlocks the Bible promises, opening for all their healing power. This book, the Christian Science textbook, shows you how to turn to God—how to have His help here and now, no matter what the human need may be.

Science and Health may be read, borrowed, or purchased at any Christian Science Reading Room, or sent $3 and a copy will be mailed postpaid.

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their questions to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

I AM 16 years old. My parents and I returned from a short trip to Florida recently. While I was there I met a boy and we had a wonderful time together but I certainly didn't even dream of falling in love with him. But last night he called me long distance and told me he was in love with me and wanted us to become engaged. I was so surprised I didn't know what to say and finally told him I would write him. Please, Martha, what can I say to him?

TEEN-AGER.

You can tell him that you like him—if you do—but that you are not in love with him and that you do not want to think of becoming engaged yet. Tell him you would like for him to be your friend and that perhaps you will meet again on future vacations. But be careful to keep your letter casual and impersonal and say nothing that he can construe as meaning you care for him. Maybe you'd better show it to your mother before you drop it in the mail, to make sure it meets with her approval.

Dear Martha:

WHY IS IT that girls these days insist that you spend a whole week's salary on them when you take them out on a date? I'm 17 years old and I work part-time but I don't earn much money. But just let me ask a girl where she wants to go on a date and she picks out the fanciest spot in town for dinner, then a movie and later she wants something to eat. Aren't there any nice, simple girls left who would be happy with a walk or a soda.

POOR BOY.

I'll say there are. You just had the bad luck to fall for the wrong girls. The next time you want to see a girl and you don't have much money, invite her to take a walk with you, or go down to the drug store for a soda. If she turns up her nose, you'll know better than to call her again.

IN ANSWER TO Philip: If you can't decide what vocation would be best for you, why not make a date with the Vocational Counseling Service of Greater St. Louis, 3936 Lindell boulevard, where you can take special tests to help you appraise your own abilities and interests. Better call first for an appointment, OLive 2-6500.

Send today for Martha Carr's special leaflets for teen-agers, "E for Etiquette" and "Popularity for Girls." Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Teen-Age Rebellion

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"I HAVE a 13-year-old girl, who has in the past year become a real problem," a mother writes. "She started to go out with a girl from another neighborhood who attends the same school she does. I thought nothing of it until I realized she never took that girl to our house. Then I found out she was smoking. When I threatened to tell the girl's mother, she said the mother knew all about it and allowed her to smoke. So I forbade her to see that girl. It was fine until school started; then they went right back together. My daughter leaves for school about an hour early and goes over to this girl's house, they're together all day, and she has a tantrum if she can't go back at night."

"Tonight I decided I just had to have some advice. After being with this girl all day, she was so furious because I wouldn't let her go out, I felt there was more to it than I suspected. Later she called this girl, and from the conversation I found out there were boys over there and it must have been pre-arranged. She denied it, but she's lied so much lately, I don't believe her anymore."

YOUR PROBLEM is very troublesome and worrisome, but it is also very common. Many girls of this age share your daughter's interest in the forbidden, the unknown, the company of boys, and girls who are somewhat sophisticated about boys. Parents worry about this and feel that it is dangerous. A great rift grows between parent and child.

Actually this rift and misunderstanding is probably more dangerous than the actual harm which will come from the bad company or the bad activities. It is often worthwhile to give in, or to temporize on certain points, rather than to alienate your children completely. (Even when you are in the "right.") Thus hostility between you and your daughter is more dangerous to her than cigarette smoking—which probably is not extensive anyway.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT THINGS to find out is whether boys are involved in these evenings out, whether they are seen just at this other girl's house and whether her mother is there chaperoning them. I would talk things over directly with the other mother. She may not be as bad as you fear. (If she is, you will know better after your talk.)

So, whatever you do, go slowly. Forbidding the other girl's companionship entirely doesn't usually work. Would there be a private school in your neighborhood which you could plan one for another year? Another school in the same neighborhood might help her to make other friends and cut into her friendship with this probably undesirable girl.

The Question Box

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

"IS it considered proper for a woman of 60 to travel by herself? I want to go to Europe but have no friends who wish to go.—Widow."

Certainly it is proper. If rocket ships to the moon were ready for travel, I wager that the first passengers would be the grandmothers of the nation and other travel-minded ladies of Forty-plus. Take your trip and enjoy yourself!

"MY HUSBAND and I are going to try living in a trailer. We are 58. Do you think it would work?—K. and H."

Only you can make it work but many mature couples are having the time of their lives living in a trailer. They find a climate best suited to them and stay awhile.

St. Louis Public Health Nurse in Alaska

Dolores Zeis, Home for Visit and Convention, Tells of Work in North

By Mary Kimbrough

ST. LOUISAN Dolores Zeis is no one to settle for half-way measures. When she decided to leave the big city to get some rural experience in public health nursing, she went practically to the North Pole. Now, seven years after she left town for a two-year "temporary" assignment, Dolores is assistant nursing chief for the Alaska Department of Health. This week she is making one of her rare visits back from the frozen and/or flowering north to attend the convention of the National League of Nursing and to catch up on home town news. She is the daughter of Mrs. H. C. Zeis, 5724 Oleatha avenue, and the late Mr. Zeis, former assistant principal of Southwest High School.

A graduate of St. Louis University School of Nursing, Dolores decided in 1947 to take a hand in the rapidly developing public health program in Alaska, starting out in the Matanuska Valley project, serving as regional supervisor of the south-west section at Juneau, and then organizing nursing services in eight isolated villages which were up to then without medical aid.

GRADUATE work at the University of Minnesota interrupted her Alaskan stay for a year, but she returned to Juneau to take over her present duties. She has seen tuberculosis drop from first to fourth as major cause of death because of improved facilities and better control. She has participated in maternal and child health programs to reduce the infant death rate, has helped deliver an infant in an isolated Alaskan village home by the flickering light of a kerosene lamp.

Like other nurses, who travel by any handy means of transportation, she has made her nursing calls by plane, car or dogsled. In the far northern sections she has been weathered in for days, carried on a community health program with only occasional telephone calls to doctors or hospitals for more detailed counsel.

"No one without a spirit of adventure should try it," she said, "but it isn't just a glamorous job in a glamorous country. You also need a sense of humor, a love of humanity; you have to be resourceful, adaptable—and you have to be patient.

The weather is a problem. When a plane can't come in because of bad weather, you have to sit it out and not worry."

BUT much of Alaska—a territory one-fifth the size of the United States—is mild in climate and modern in customs. Life in the larger towns of Juneau and Anchorage is much like that in an American city, but village life, especially in the snowbound areas near Fairbanks, is in dramatic contrast.

"In Juneau, for instance, the average temperature is 58 and the highest is 88. There are trees and flowers and fresh vegetables. A zero day is unusual. But in Fairbanks, where I spent the last month, the temperature frequently goes to around 40 or 50 below, and when I left there in April, it was 15 below.

"But just to show how different it is in different parts of the territory, on April 12, I was having to melt ice in a village house in order to get drinking water. That evening at 6:30, I was in a city and preparing to appear on a television program."

Miss Zeis, who is looking for other nurses to join the public health force in Alaska, pointed out that one reason for the increased need is that the people are taking a greater interest in health measures than ever before.

"A health center becomes a community project," she said, "with the community even paying a part of the nurse's salary. These people are friendly and responsive and appreciate the work being done to combat health problems of sanitation and disease."

Capital Capers

Truth of the Rumors

By Betty Beale

WASHINGTON. ALWAYS a hot cauldron of rumors, this town has been boiling with them ever since Mrs. Eisenhower canceled all her engagements this past week.

Here are some of the stories now repeated as gospel and often each is the gospel truth.

Rumor: Not one but two doctors were called in during Mrs. Eisenhower's recent stay at her Gettysburg home.

Truth: A doctor is always in attendance where a President or First Lady is concerned. Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the White House physician, was up there checking on Mamie as she attempted to recover from the flu during this month's escape from Washington, and when he left, his assistant took over.

Rumor: The D.A.R.s were furious because Mrs. Eisenhower said last year when she didn't receive them that she would only receive the larger organizations every other year. But she didn't receive them this year after all.

Truth: The D.A.R.s didn't ask to be received this year, says Mamie's secretary, Mary Jane McCaffrey, because they may have felt it would be an imposition to do so. They asked her to be their guest, but she was already in Gettysburg recovering while directing the decorating of her house.

Rumor: Mrs. Eisenhower is refusing to receive all kinds of organizations that used to get the A-1 treatment at the White House.

Truth: Mamie says there are literally hundreds of women's groups that have never been inside the White House or received by any First Lady, and until each has had a chance she is not going to keep on duplicating. According to her staff, no group is too small or insignificant to be invited to the White House providing she can see them on the day requested. She is no longer receiving 600 women daily as her staff said she did her first year in the White House. Now she receives only on days not already filled with other functions, a state dinner, luncheon, tea, etc. She tries not to tax herself with two or three things in one day.

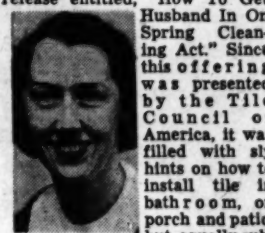

Rumor: When she gave her luncheon for Senate wives a fortnight ago, before they entertained her first (as has been the custom in years past), she probably had no intention of attending their luncheon last Tuesday.

Truth: No such thought entered her mind because her calendar is drawn up months ahead. She picked the earlier date simply because there was room for it on her engagement book.

The Little Woman Spring House Cleaning and the Male Ego

By Clarissa Start

A TIMELY note arrived in the mail the other day in the form of a mimeograph press release entitled, "How To Get Husband In On Spring Cleaning Act." Since this offering was presented by the Title Council of America, it was filled with sly hints on how to install tile in bathroom, on porch and patio, but equally subtle were its words to the wives on getting men in on the spring scouring and scrubbing.

"The sight of the head of the house peacefully doing on a sofa at this season is almost as painful as looking at a dozen windows that need cleaning, or a clothes closet that has to be put in order," it began. But, it continued, you can be spared such a view if you "give that breadwinner a few tasks that appeal to the male ego."

FOR INSTANCE, instead of "wishing he'd do the curtains or put on the summer slip covers," it suggests, "have him paint the bathroom." Just how you go about this is not explained. The man at our house being a person of great concentration and will power would find it just as easy to resist painting the bathroom as to resist putting on slippers. Appealing to his male ego ("Aren't you ashamed, you lazy lout, there on the sofa when you could be painting the bathroom?") never seems to work. The only secret weapon we've found is the direct threat—"I'm painting the bathroom, dear." That gets him up off the sofa like a shot out of a cannon.

These other suggestions we don't find of much use, either. "Get him on a safety check of the home. Does electrical equipment need repair? Are knives and tools sharp? Are guns unloaded and out of reach of children?" All electrical equipment, knives, tools and guns around our house have been unloaded and dismantled by children and put out of the reach of adults. Just where we don't know all the time, in the drain pipe or under the sofa cushions. Father doesn't even notice them when he lies down.

"Put him to work on outdoor areas," the release further suggests. "Use a few blandishments to get him to straighten up the basement and the attic. After all, you can't lift all the heavy things there, so he might as well take on the whole job."

Blandishments, indeed. Blandishments is more like it, and after a housewife has brandished the family shillelagh, her husband can point out reasonably enough, "Anyone who can lift that can manage a few heavy things in the attic and basement. Besides women are better fitted for those jobs than men. Haven't you read those articles on the real weaker sex lately?"

FRANKLY, THE REASON we exert little effort to "get husband in on spring cleaning act" goes back to the basic concept of home on the part of man and woman. A man's idea, and this may give the tile council comfort, is pretty much like that of our neighbor who always maintains, "Some day I'm going to build my dream home, one room all tile with a drain in the middle of the floor. When you want to clean house, move out the furniture and turn on the sprinkler."

A woman's idea has to do with criss-cross curtains, knickknacks and thingamabobs. That is why we dust the doodads, wax the whatchamacallits, and lift the ruffle on the slipcover very gently as we run the vacuum cleaner at silent speed, so as not to disturb the sleeping spouse on the sofa.

Tomato and Lima Bean Soup

Ingredients: One can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup, one can (10½ ounces) condensed clear chicken soup, one can (1 pound) large dry lima beans, ¼ teaspoon dried summer savory.

Method: Turn condensed tomato soup and clear chicken soup into a two-quart saucepan. Drain liquid from beans into a measure; add enough water to make 1½ cups. Add bean liquid and water and the lima beans to the saucepan. Heat slowly, stirring occasionally. Makes six servings.

SHE WAS A KILLER!

You wouldn't know it. Gregory didn't know it when he found this girl in distress and spent 48 feverish hours lost in the byways of Paris, eluding the police, trying to protect her, and, alas, falling in love with her. It's a wonderful story, filmed in the hideaway spots of Paris itself.

Classical Records.

By Thomas B. Sherman

JASCHA HORENSTEIN, the Russian-born musician who will conduct the St. Louis Little Symphony Orchestra during the approaching summer season, is well represented in the list of recordings made by the Vox company, a list which includes two recent releases. The first of these offers the six Brandenburg Concertos by Sebastian Bach with Horenstein conducting an unidentified chamber orchestra of good quality. (Two 12-inch LPs in album with descriptive notes and score.) A special feature of this performance lies in the attempt to reproduce the instruments of Bach's day, which will interest the student and the antiquarian more than the general public. The hollow sound of the recorder, for instance, may be historically more appropriate than that of the modern flute but the latter is brighter and better as to pitch. The high trumpet in the Concerto No. 2 in F sounds more like a clarinet though this may be a fault of the recording. The harpsichord, however, is preferable to the piano and particularly so in the rapid, sweeping passages of Concert No. 5.

All performances are sprightly, cleanly articulated and well balanced. Horenstein also conducts the Bamberg Symphony Orchestra in alert, thoroughly well organized, rhythmically active performances of three Richard Strauss tone poems, "Till Eulenspiegel," "Don Juan" and "Death and Transfiguration." (Vox, one 12-inch LP.) Sound is excellent though the strings of the Bamberg Orchestra seem a little light in impact which also may be caused by the engineering.

OTHER ORCHESTRAL WORKS: A new release in the Mercury series devoted to American music contains "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," "The White Peacock," "Clouds" and "Bauchana" by Charles Griffes and Charles Martin Loeffler's "Memories of My Childhood" and the same composer's "Poem for Orchestra." Performances by the Eastman-Rochester Orchestra under Howard Hanson do justice to all scores and the sound is beautifully reproduced. Griffes writes with delicacy of feeling and a fine color sense; moreover, his ideas are strongly personal, are clearly focussed and inventively manipulated. Loeffler also uses a rich descriptive palette. His nineteenth century electricism, however, no longer sounds very arresting. (Mercury, one 12-inch LP.)

The Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy gives a crisp, streamlined performance of Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 3 in A Minor, a work that the composer wrote in America. Columbia, one 12-inch LP.) It lacks the pessimism, also the Slavic coloring, of his other symphonies and his two important piano concerti and on the whole is much less interesting than any of these. An arrangement of Rachmaninoff's "Vocalise" completes the second side.

Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" suite, full of the loveliest fancies, is probably the most inspired music ever written as a background to a Shakespearean play. A new recording by the Philharmonia Orchestra of London, under the direction of Paul Kletzki, presents the score complete with chorus (unidentified) and two soprano soloists, Adrienne Cole and Eileen McLaughlin. Kletzki's performance is ideal in its fineness of texture and its charmingly graceful lyricism. His light touch is consonant with a purposeful, sustained line and clearly outlined phrase structure. Sound is excellent. (Angel, one 12-inch LP.)

CONCERTO: Ditters von Dittersdorf, an abject admirer of Mozart, claimed nevertheless that Mozart used up too many good ideas in a single work. The Piano Concerto No. 14 in E Flat illustrates what he meant but the skill and felicity with which Mozart combines new material with material already stated allows no basis for saying that this work or any part of it is ever congested. Though not one of the most moving of Mozart's concerti, it is a delightful sparkling work including the somewhat "querulous" first movement. Friedrich Gulda, accompanied by the London Symphony Orchestra under Anthony Collins, gives it a sprightly performance though the recording of the piano tone is a little dull. The same artists also turn out a bright and forceful performance of the Richard Strauss "Burleske," written when the composer was under the influence of Brahms, on the reverse side. (London, one 12-inch LP.)

CHAMBER WORKS: In Mozart's two Divertimenti for Winds in B Flat Major (K-226) and E Flat Major (K-227) the composer seems to be running on his skill which means only that the works are not profound. They are thoroughly agreeable, however, and their performance by the Vienna Wind Group—horns, bassoons, clarinets and oboes—is distinguished by mellow, well-blended tonal qualities and impressive facility. Sound is excellent. (Westminster, one 12-inch LP.)

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

WHEN Marilyn Monroe was in New York for outdoor scenes in "The Seven Year Itch," studio employees had a tough time keeping the public out of camera range. One woman almost ruined a scene by barging right into the action. "Keep back, ma'am," pleaded a fifth assistant director. "There's a movie being shot here." Unashamed, the woman countered with, "There is, hey? Well, if it's anything like the one I saw on TV last night, it deserves to be!"

MY OLD UNCLE HERBERT from Vermont, visiting New York, was appalled by the heavy traffic choking every thoroughfare. "You gotta nice town here," he commented, "but it looks like you fellers let yourselves get quite a bit behind in your haulin'!"

You can drill a hole in glass with a three cornered file with the end broken off. Just put it in a wood brace and rotate.

Designing Woman Disguise for Niches

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THE builder's idea for room-trimming in your middle-aged house may not suit your plans at all.

Those arched niches, for example, may look all wrong now and have become a problem. They can be played down by painting them the same color as the walls—they're far less conspicuous that way than with contrasting linings; and arrangements on shelves can be made so interesting that architectural lines dim.

But to disguise the niches so much that their original shape is lost entirely, turn them into shadow boxes. This is easy enough to do with wide picture moldings, perhaps in an interesting wood such as wormy chestnut. The size and shape of the niches can be changed by covering the arched tops and part of the opening.

The shadow box cover-up can be used on niches of any size, but the larger the finish, the more striking they'll be. Shelves can be left in, or they can be taken out to create the effect of a picture hanging on the wall.

Find out what's wrong with the room before you change it.

Check it over with the help of Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet, "What's Wrong With That Room?," which not only spots weak points, but tells how to correct them. Send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please, with your booklet request addressed to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

Pleasant Surprise Cut small sweet gherkins into thin lengthwise slices. Sandwich the pickle between two flat patties of ground beef, pressing edges of meat together well. Fry in skillet and serve on hamburger buns for a pleasant surprise.

NEXT DAY WHEN MARSHA BRINGS SUPPLIES AND GOES TO THE OFFICE, JONIE PUTS THEM AWAY AND DISCOVERS THE MONEY. SHE TRIES TO GET HER AUNT TO PUT IT IN A BANK, BUT MARSHA LOCKS IT IN A STRONG BOX WHICH SHE HIDES IN THE SINK. JONIE MAKES A TOUR OF THE TOWN, TALKS TO TOM AND IS USING HIS TRAILER WHEN NINA SHOWS UP. AS THE TALK, MR. DOWELL, MANAGER, COMES RUNNING FOR JONIE AND SAYS HER AUNT IS VERY ILL. BEFORE THE AMBULANCE COMES FOR HER, MARSHA GIVES JONIE INSTRUCTIONS TO TAKE $10,000 TO A MAN AT THE GAY CAT CAFE THAT NIGHT AT 9.

TALL, DARK and Dangerous by Rob Eden

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

"SURELY, you're not serious about this?" Jonie asked her aunt.

"I certainly am," Martha snapped.

"You want me to give $10,000 to a perfect stranger without any more identification than work clothes and his hat on the top of his head?"

Aunt Martha tapped the paper on which Jonie had made notes. "You do just what you wrote down there, or I don't go to the hospital."

"That's final!"

"That's final."

Jonie was at a loss to know what to do. If her aunt really was as sick as the doctor expected, she must not agitate her any more than she had. So she made her decision.

"I'll do it. I'll do just exactly what you say. Now you can go to the hospital."

"That sounds like my sensible niece," Martha said. "Naturally, I don't want you to say anything about this to anyone."

"I'm going to telephone father."

"It isn't necessary. I'm all right."

"Father should know. He'd want me to call him," Jonie said. "Well, that's not important. But don't talk about the money over the telephone. You know lots of people hear those long-distance calls."

JONIE was still greatly worried—worried about her aunt's health, and about the money. But she was in it now, and she'd go through with it. She wouldn't deceive her aunt. She wondered what the stranger had to do with Pedro. It seemed such a strange business transaction. But that wouldn't matter now.

The doctor came in and cautioned Mrs. Hallam about talking too much. "Take it easy, now. I'm going back to town to make a couple of calls. The ambulance will be here soon, and I'll see

TENNIS RACKET USED 278 YEARS AGO.

THE game of tennis was a contest of kings and nobles during early times in Europe. Old records tell of various monarchs who played. One was King Henry VIII of England who joined Emperor Charles V of Spain in a doubles match and accidentally struck the hintel of a doorway with his forehead; the old record declares that this brought about his death.

Tennis was known for a time as the "royal game" or "game of kings." To this day the name of "court" in tennis court reminds us that it was popular in the royal courts.

In addition, the world still has the old-fashioned game of "court tennis." This makes use of a court 110 feet long, divided in the middle by a net and surrounded by a 30-foot wall. The rules allow the ball to be kept in play after striking the wall.

THERE are a few dozen places, on both sides of the Atlantic, where court tennis can be played, but many thousands of courts exist for the popular form of the game—lawn tennis. Usually we speak of lawn tennis simply as tennis. It is played indoors here and there, but the vast majority of courts are outdoors.

In closing let me remark that a love match in tennis seldom, if ever, has anything in do with love. The word "love," as used in tennis, grew out of the French word for egg. A person with love as his tennis score has earned nothing, just a goose egg.

I want her to know," Jonie said. He agreed.

"Tom, I'm starved," Jonie said. "Can't we find a place near here where I can get a quick sandwich or something?"

"Sure enough," he told her. "They went back to her car and drove to the little business center of Flower City, only a short distance from the hospital."

At a drive-in they sat in the car, ate sandwiches and drank malts. Then Jonie felt better. She put her hand on Tom's arm. "Tom, you've been awfully good to me," she said sincerely. "I don't know what I would have done without you."

"It was a pleasure," he said smiling.

As Tom drove out of the parking area at the drive-in, Jonie impulsively leaned across and kissed him on the cheek.

CAESAR'S healthy army

Caesar said, "An army travels on its stomach," and all Roman soldiers were to be given a regular ration of milk and other milk products. Military historians call the Roman army the healthiest in the world, up to the 20th century.
